BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Chancellor Franz von Papen and his government of aristocrats are still in the saddle tonight despite an overwhelming vote of nonconfidence by a defiant reichstag.

The reichstag insists the government has been defeated and must resign, while the ministry argues that Von Papen dissolved the reichstag when he placed its "death warrant" before parliament while the members were "voting him out." This confusing situation, which is unprecedented in German parliamentary history, may become a matter for the courts to decide.

Hindenburg Ignores Vote.

Nevertheless, President Paul von Hindenburg up until a late hour tonight ignored the act of parliament and continued to support Von Papen, who thus is dictator of Germany—at least until new elections, which Minister of the Interior Baron Wilhelm von Gayl announced he intended to call within 60 days "unless serious disturbances of public order render elections inadvisable."

But most significant of all is that Chancellor von Papen's ministry still holds the command of the army and of the police in this new political crisis.

Five hundred and twelve members of the reichstag voted their lack of confidence in the ministry and against the chancellor's emergency decrees enforcing his $500,000,000 economic program. Forty-two members voted for Von Papen and fifty abstained.

Von Papen muffed his chance to prevent the vote by neglecting to bring along his famous red portfolio containing the decree which would have dissovled the reichstag when the nonconfidence motion was first introduced.

Blocked by Nazi Speaker.

During a 30 minute recess the chancellor obtained the portfolio, but then was thwarted in his frantic efforts to dissolve the reichstag by the brilliant parliamentary tactics of Herman Wilhelm Goering, reichstag speaker, and, as a member of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists, one of the bitterest enemies of the Von Papen régime. Goering deliberately refused Von Papen permission to take the floor.

But even so, it appears that the Von Papen government is in a virtually unassailable position in holding that any attempt by the reichstag to continue will be illegal. The government tonight pointed to section 33 of the German constitution. It reads:

"Paragraph 3—At their demand the representatives of the government must be heard during discussions; representatives of the cabinet must be heard even outside the regular order.

"Paragraph 4—They are subject to the ruling of the chairman."

A judicial footnote says paragraph 4 means that representatives of the government are subject to the same discipline as deputies but with the reservation of their constitutional right to be present and "be heard whenever they demand cannot be encroached upon by disciplinary measures of the reichstag chairman."

Reichstag Gets Surprise.

When the reichstag convened this afternoon it expected to listen to Von Papen's speech outlining his achievements and his program. A packed chamber watched the chancellor, followed by all members of his cabinet, enter. The red portfolio was missing.

When the reichstag was called to order, a communist introduced two motions—one to rescind the recent series of emergency decrees and another of nonconfidence.

The protest of a single member would have been sufficient to prevent

$148,000,000 Loss in Insull Utility

RECEIVERS GIVE 51,678 STOCK OWNERS NO HOPE

Even Debentures May Be Wiped Out.

The investigation of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., has been completed by the receivers and their accountants, and their report is ready for presentation to the United States District court. It will be filed as soon as certain technical procedure is approved by Judge Walter C. Lindley which will probably be today or tomorrow.

The report of the receivers, Calvin Fentress and George A. Cooke, will give little or no hope for the reported 51,678 stockholders, according to La Salle street. Their investment of $148,000,000 has been wiped out, according to the advance reports.

Money Poured in a Sieve.

This group of investors includes those who bought $6,000,000 worth of prior preferred $5.50 stock, those who paid $4,000,000 for 40,000 shares of no par preferred stock, those who bought 450,000 shares of the second series of preferred stock for $36,000,000 and the multitude who purchased and received in dividends 3,690,897 shares of the common stock of a book value in excess of $102,000,000.

The report will give even the holders of debentures, totaling $58,645,000, with accrued interest, small hope of regaining their investments. The situation, according to information gathered yesterday, is darker than that presented in THE TRIBUNE yesterday. As related yesterday there still remains a good sized block of securities in the Insull Utilities Investments, but it was said that these are securities which the banks would not accept as collateral.

Market Value Is Nil.

As illustrative, the investment corporation holds 15,000 participation certificates, $50 par value, of the Public Service Trust, which cost $3,145,837 to acquire for the investors in the investment company. Its officers have admitted that the market value of these is nil, and the banks—which have loans reported to be $53,000,000—declined to accept them.

Again, the portfolio holds 7,500 of capital stock of the Second Utilities Syndicate, incorporated, which cost $1,630,300. The liquidating value of these was represented by the Insull Investments as only $363,300. The banks refused them. It is said that the receivers will place a still lower value on these shares.

The Insull Utilities Investments had some good securities. Among the best were Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas, and Public Service of Northern Illinois. Of Commonwealth the portfolio contained 181,639 shares, which cost $59,858,874.

Good Shares Loaned Elsewhere.

But the 3,024 shares the banks did not get have been loaned to other Insull companies. The receivers have no Commonwealth Edison stock, unless they have regained it in the last few days.

In People's Gas $42,741,000 was invested for 144,137 shares. All of these have been either pledged or loaned except two lone shares.

Of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois 58,195 shares were obtained at a reported cost of $16,416,000. Not one of those shares remains in the treasury. All have either been pledged or loaned.

Other Valueless Securities.

Those three lots account for $119,000,000 in the portfolio. There were still other large blocks of utility stocks in it. The company records show that $14,516,000 was invested in the common stock of the Corporation Securities company and $18,051,000 in the optional preferred stock of that same company—a total of $32,500,000. The market value of these stocks last January was only one-tenth of their cost—the official estimate being $3,284,000. Now they are practically valueless.

Sad Case of Corporation Securities.

The Corporation Securities is in the hands of receivers, with no securities in its portfolio and cash amounting to only $30,000.

Of Middle West Utilities, the Insull Utilities Investments had 2,895,096 shares of common and 19,645 shares of $6 convertible preferred stock. The cost of these was $44,410,000, according to the company record, but it is reported that the banks have 60 per

THE DOPE ON THE BIG RACE

Gandhi Says He'll End Life by Starvation

BY EUGENE SPECK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader of India who has been a prisoner in the Yeravda jail for months, has answered Prime Minister MacDonald's solution of the Indian situation by announcing he will starve himself to death.

This decision was revealed today with the release of correspondence between the British government and the "holy man." He will consign himself to a slow death beginning at noon on Sept. 20.

He said he has decided on this extreme step in protest against partial separation of "untouchables" from the main Hindu community in MacDonald's allotment of seats for the provincial legislatures as announced last month.

Gandhi first made his threat at the London round table conference last winter. It was renewed in a letter to Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India, on March 11. His final decision reached London by telegram Saturday night.

Issues Warning First.

In his letter to Sir Samuel six months ago the mahatma declared it would not be fair for him to go on a hunger strike without a warning and renewing his previous vow and hope to see the "untouchables" lifted to full political equality with the higher castes.

"You will appreciate my feelings by remembering I have been interested in the condition of these classes since boyhood," he wrote. "I feel that no penance the caste of Hindus may do can, in any way, compensate for the calculated degradation to which they have consigned the depressed classes for centuries.

"I therefore respectfully inform his majesty's government that in the event of their decision to create a separate electorate for the depressed classes I must fast unto death. As far as I can see, my discharge from imprisonment would not make the duty of fasting less imperative."

Writes to MacDonald.

Sir Samuel replied that the government's decision had not yet been made and would not be until the committees appointed by the round table conference, which were then working in India, had reported.

Gandhi wrote to Mr. MacDonald on Aug. 18 after the comunal settlement had been released. His letter follows:

Dear friend: "I have read the British government's decision and slept over it. I will have to resist the decision with my life. It is the only way to do, so I am declaring a perpetual fast unto death from food of any kind except water. The fast will cease if the British government revises its decision to withdraw their scheme of communal electorates for depressed classes whose representatives should be elected by a general electorate under a common franchise, no matter how wide it is.

"If the government decides to release me in order to save themselves embarrassment, the fast will have to continue."

MacDonald's reply challenged Gandhi's interpretation of the settlement. He pointed out that although the Moslems, Sikhs and other communities are separated entirely from the general Hindu constituencies, the "untouchables" remain a part of the Hindu group except in two out of nine provinces, where the number of "untouchables" is negligible.

Gandhi replied that this interpretation was not acceptable.

Bomb Garage Behind Home of Waukegan Ice Dealer

Damage estimated at several hundred dollars was caused late last night by the explosion of a bomb in a garage behind the home of C. H. Lindehot, 612 North Butrick street, Waukegan. A truck and an automobile were wrecked and windows of four homes in the vicinity were shattered. Lindehot, an independent ice dealer who had cut the price of ice in half, said he had been threatened with harm if he did not get out of business.

Ends Life So Insurance Will Help Company

William H. Kleppinger, 49 years old, 7321 South Shore drive, president of the Calumet Foundry and Machine company, shot and killed himself last night so that his wife might collect $50,000 and his company $100,000 from his life insurance policies. News of his death was received by Mrs. Kleppinger as she sat in their home with five directors of the company, summoned to an emergency meeting by their president.

Earlier in the day Mr. Kleppinger had called Charles E. Creahan, vice president of the company, asking him to call a directors' meeting at the Kleppinger home at 5:45 in the afternoon. The president asked particularly that Attorney Gale Blocki be present.

Refused Loan by R. F. C.

Mr. Kleppinger said he was working on a loan for the company. The directors later learned that the company, which Kleppinger had founded 18 years ago, had been refused a loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

At 5:50 o'clock, while the directors sat puzzled in the home, the Hyde Park police notified Mrs. Kleppinger that her husband had shot himself in the head in an alley behind the undertaking establishment of Boydston Brothers at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue. Frank P. Boydston was a boyhood friend of Mr. Kleppinger.

Seeks to Assure Creditors.

Attorney Blocki said Kleppinger had evidently wanted the directors in session so that creditors of the company would be notified they will be paid. The attorney told of the insurance policies.

The plant of the company is in East Chicago. Mr. Kleppinger was a member of the South Shore Country club and was formerly president of the East Chicago chamber of commerce.

Child Dies of Burns from Playing with Matches

Mary Olson, 3 years old, 7605 Forest Preserve avenue, was fatally burned yesterday afternoon when her dress caught fire as she was playing with matches in an alley near her home. Vincent Fullman, 3846 Ottowa, ran from his home when he heard her screams and beat out the flames by wrapping her in his coat. She died in the Swedish Covenant hospital.

Big Overturn on Governor; G.O.P. Trails

BULLETIN.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13. (Tuesday.)—(AP)—Democrats leaped into a sizeable lead in the gubernatorial and two of the three congressional contests in the Maine state election early today as less than 50 of the 632 precincts in the state were unreported.

Louis J. Brann, Democratic nominee for governor, had a lead of 1,300 votes over Burleigh Martin, Republican; E. Earl Moran Jr. was ahead of Congressman John E. Nelson by 2,500 in the Second district, while John Utterback pulled in front of former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster in the Third district by 1,800.

A 1,300 majority in one ward in his home city of Lewiston and a 984 advantage in Rumford gave Brann the boost that put him on top for the first time after the first few early returns from small towns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—On the face of incomplete returns the Democrats appear to have carried Maine today by about the width of an eyelash.

Rockribbed Republican Maine, pioneer stronghold of prohibition, may have swept from its traditional moorings by the onslaught of Democratic candidates who campaigned for all offices on the Democratic platform proposing repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

With fewer than fifty precincts to be heard from the Democratic candidate for governor and two of the three candidates for congress had a lead of a few hundred votes.

President Hoover carried Maine four years ago by a plurality of 98,744.

Congress Race in Doubt.

Only the complete returns will disclose whether a Republican or a Democrat is to represent the Second congressional district in the next congress. The contest was extremely close in the Third district also.

The overturn of normal Republican pluralities was hailed by Democratic leaders as an omen of the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency in November. Ever since 1840 when Maine "went hell bent for Gov. Kent," its state election, two months in advance of the national election, popularly has been regarded a barometer of the political trend in the nation at large. If the Democrats won or the normal Republican plurality was greatly reduced the result was hailed as a harbinger of Democratic success in the presidential election.

All Democrats Wet.

The Republican managers were prepared for an enormous falling off in the Republican vote today, but they had expected to elect the governor by not less than 25,000.

All the Democratic candidates were wet and vigorously pressed the fighting for unconditional repeal of the prohibition amendment. All the Republican candidates adhered to prohibition principles with the exception of Burleigh Martin, the Republican candidate for governor, who did not commit himself on the issue.

Refuse to Concede Defeat.

In the second congressional district returns from 187 out of 213 precincts gave Congressman John E. Nelson, Republican, 35,783; Edward C. Moran Jr., Democrat, 35,585, and Frederick E. Bonney, independent Republican, 1,363. Moran is claiming the election on the strength of unofficial reports from missing precincts. It is 18 years since Maine sent a Democrat to congress.

Returns from 233 out of 274 precincts in the Third district give former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, 31,459, and John G. Utterback, Democrat, 30,778.

The only congressional district in

BONUS REPORT STIRS CAPITAL TO VERBAL WAR

Col. Glassford Given Official Rebuke.

Secretary of War Hurley is cheered and jeered by Legion convention in Portland. Mention of bonus cheered. —Details on page 2.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—The national capital, where the bonus veterans camped and tramped last June and July, was the scene tonight of a riot of words in which the District of Columbia officials hurled statements at each other brisk as brick bats.

Official statements flew back and forth defending the bonus army and denouncing it, upholding the President's statement about the bonus army and renouncing it.

Aimed at the American Legion convention in Portland, Ore., Mr. Hoover's explanation of the bonus war stirred a violent reaction almost in the shadow of the White House.

Glassford Defends Vets.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, Washington's chief of police and the man who kept the marchers in order until that last frenzied day of July 28, began today's trouble when he shot forth a vigorous defense of the veterans. He took issue with the report of Attorney General William D. Mitchell, which the President made public yesterday, and in which the assertion was made that the bonus marchers had numbered among them many criminals, communists, and imposters, and that the use of troops to evict them had been essential.

The comeback to the Glassford statement was immediate. No sooner had it hit the front pages of the local papers than Acting Attorney General Thomas D. Thacher produced the letter of L. H. Reichelderfer, president of the board of District of Columbia commissioners, on which many of Attorney General Mitchell's statements were based.

And no sooner was that statement on its way than another was issued by Commissioner Reichelderfer and his two colleagues on the board, Herbert B. Crosby and Maj. John C. Gotwals.

Deny the Denial.

Brig. Gen. Glassford denied he had approved calling out the troops. The commissioners stated positively that he had. The police chief denied he had said the situation had gone beyond police control. The commissioners denied his denial.

"With reference to the statements appearing in the press and purporting to be made by the chief of police concerning the presence of troops on July 28," their statement read, "the commissioners of the District of Columbia assert positively that Maj. Glassford stated to them that the situation in the affected area was beyond the control of the police; that in response to a direct question as to whether the presence of troops was necessary Maj. Glassford stated positively that the presence of troops was necessary.

Convinced of Danger.

"Two of the commissioners then visited the scene of the disturbance and likewise were convinced that the presence of troops was necessary if law and order were to be restored and preserved. They thereupon asked that troops be sent to the affected area. Inspectors of police who were at the scene were likewise of the same opinion. The commissioners believe that the presence of troops alone prevented more serious bloodshed and far greater disorder.

"They call attention to the statement of fact which they made to the attorney general dated Aug. 2 and which has been released by the department of justice."

Gen. Glassford's proclamation, to which the commissioners took exception, was a repudiation of many facts contained in the Mitchell report, and an outspoken criticism of those superior officers, President Hoover included, who called out the troops.

Says Troops Weren't Needed.

Instead of criminal and radical tendencies, Gen. Glassford found patriotism and discipline among the great majority of the bonus marchers. Instead of calling out the troops, the police chief strongly intimated that had he continued in charge he could have handled the situation with his policemen; and instead of driving them from Washington, he would have recognized their "rights of citizens" and permitted them to stay.

Stating that he had had repeated calls from the press to comment on the Mitchell report, Gen. Glassford said that he could properly deal only with assertions in the report which dealt with the police. Among those assertions, he said, were many which were "in conflict with police records or with facts known to the police department."

He took up first the attorney general's charge that the bonus army brought to Washington "the largest aggregation of criminals that had ever assembled in the city at any one time."

Says Crime Was Less.

"According to police records and statistics," said Gen. Glassford's reply, "there was less crime in the District of Columbia during either June or July than during the month of August after the veterans had been evicted. The report does not show that of the 863 arrests made during the two months of the so-called bonus invasion only 12 arrests of bonus marchers were made for offenses of a criminal nature."

To his statement Gen. Glassford appended a table showing the nature of the arrests made, with "actual criminal offenses" marked with asterisks, and showing offenses before July 28, date of the final riot, on that date, and afterward, as follows:

	Before July 28.	On July 28.	On July 29.

Then he continued: "The report stresses communism, crime, and subversive influences. There are of record many demonstrations of patriotism and discipline by the great mass of the unemployed veterans."

Takes Up Report Details.

He supported this statement with an editorial extract from a local paper lauding the good behavior of the bonus marchers when the bonus bill was turned down by the senate.

Then he again went on to deny assertions in the Mitchell report. He denied the attorney general's statements concerning the prevalence of communism in the bonus ranks.

"The facts are that communists and their ignorant followers were relatively few," Gen. Glassford retorted. "Following two days of circularized propaganda, John T. Pace mustered on July 21 a group of not more than 210 [by police count while in formation] for the purpose of attempting to picket the White House. This was the largest group of radicals gathered together at any one time.

"The attempts of the communists and radicals to circulate and incite disorder in the loyal camps were completely frustrated by the veterans' military police, an organization sponsored by the police department mainly for that purpose."

Denies Approving Troops.

Likewise, the police chief denied Attorney General Mitchell's report that "he replied in the affirmative" when asked the direct question as to whether troops were needed.

"The facts are as follows," the Glassford statement explained: "At a conference held at the commissioners' office within half an hour after the brick battle, I stated that the police could hold the area which had been repossessed during the morning. I stated that if further efforts toward evicting the veterans by the police were insisted upon that afternoon there doubtless would be more rioting and possibly bloodshed. I recommended that should further evicting be required that day the federal troops should be called upon to do it. Nothing was said by the commissioners at this conference to indicate they had reached a decision to call for federal aid."

In substantiation Gen. Glassford presented a memorandum by his secretary presenting substantially the same facts. At no time, said the police superintendent, was he warned that the district commissioners had decided to call on the President for federal aid. And again he denied the statement of Mr. Mitchell that at the time of the second attack when two veterans were shot "a pitched battle on a large scale was imminent" and that "practically the entire police force of the city" had been called and found insufficient to cope with the danger.

Hostility Not Extensive.

"This second attack occurred about 1:45 p. m., more than an hour and a half after the brick battle," said Gen. Glassford. "It was a short spontaneous affair involving seven police officers who were isolated from the main body of police holding the repossessed area, which was in the same block but on the other side of three large buildings.

"It is true that there was a certain amount of hostility, but a very large proportion of the unemployed veterans remained loyal to law and order. Without this mass of loyal men it would not have been possible for me to have stopped the brick battle before it had been in progress five minutes nor to have stopped the second outbreak in which two veterans were shot almost as soon as it had commenced.

"There was no trouble of any kind between 2 p. m. and the time the troops arrived, which was after 5.

"The metropolitan police force numbers more than 1,300 officers. There were at no time more than 454 in the disaffected area."

Refers to Arrest Failures.

Lastly, Gen. Glassford repudiated Attorney Mitchell's charge that the failure to arrest and indict the instigators of the mob of bonus marchers who descended on the police lay with the police, and that a police order had kept detectives out of the main bonus camp on the day of the riot. Police officers were on hand, said Gen. Glassford, and the only order issued that affected detectives was one requiring the eviction of veterans and the quelling of any disturbance to be done by uniformed officers.

Legion Cheers and Boos Hurley Speech; Session Is Charged with Chance of Bonus Fight

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Disregarding boos and shouts of "How about the bonus?" Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley pleaded today with the American Legion for nonpartisanship and declared the Legion must "put patriotism above politics."

The boos and shouts were mingled with general applause that greeted the secretary as he stepped to the platform shortly before conclusion of the opening session of the 14th national convention of the Legion. Loud cheers went up from delegates and spectators as Hurley concluded his brief talk, with the plea:

"Let us live together, my comrades, in comradeship. Let us not let any political issues enter our organization.

Fought as Americans.

"Remember that those of us who marched shoulder to shoulder in France did so not as Republicans and not as Democrats.

"Those men who met the enemy of our nation on the battle fields were neither Democrats nor Republicans; they were greater than either. They were Americans."

"What we need today, my comrades, are Americans who are big enough to put patriotism above politics," Secretary Hurley said, "and I have come to you today not as a public official but as your comrade, as a Legionnaire, and I am delighted by the splendid reception you have given me."

"I had not intended to make a speech to you," Secretary Hurley said as he was presented by Commander Stevens. "I came here merely to greet you."

Economic Responsibility in War.

"This plan," he said, "in my opinion is that which as Legionnaires we have contended for ever since the great war. That plan, comrades, will be presented to you. It does provide for the prevention of profiteering in war; it does provide for equal distribution of the burdens of war."

"I desire to thank my comrades of the American Legion for the excellent service that they have rendered recently in protecting from diminution and destruction the national defense system of these United States.

"Recently I presided as chairman of a commission authorized by congress to find means for the preservation of peace and to bring about the law the American Legion pledged itself to in 1921.

"The plea of the Legion at that time was based upon the proposition that it is unfair, it is unjust, it is dishonest to require one man to die for the republic while another is profiting by war."

Appland Bonus Reference.

Earlier Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy under Wilson, was applauded loudly when he declared that when, "in our need we ask for a deserved and just 'adjustment compensation,' we are denounced as selfish, unpatriotic lobbyists or communists trying to tear down the temple of freedom or as raiders of the treasury."

The convention hall echoed with tremendous cheering as Mayor James M. Curley of Boston concluded an impromptu speech with the declaration that some world war veterans who went to Washington, D. C., "to plead for that to which they were entitled were shot down like dogs in our national capital."

National officers of the Legion declined to comment on the possible outcome should a resolution condemning the administration in the bonus army affairs come before the convention.

Condemns Hoover's Action.

At least one state department, Pennsylvania, has placed such a resolution on file, condemning eviction of the bonus forces and declaring "the President of the United States . . . handled the whole situation in a regrettable manner, which contributed to this incident."

The resolution, which is identical with one adopted by the department convention in Pittsburgh, reads in part as follows:

"In the glorious month of July, 1918, American soldiers turned back the enemy from the gates of Paris, driving him farther and farther, until he sued for peace; turned a dark prospect of defeat into a brilliant noonday of victory.

"Fourteen years later, on the 28th day of July, in our own city of Washington, we witnessed a spectacle alien to the pages of our history—when federal troops, moving under orders of the President of the United States, attacked and drove from the capital city these self same war veterans who such a short time before had saved this nation in its hour of need.

"The American Legion is perfectly aware of the official explanations offered in justification for this act. For we had been watching with keen interest this most novel method used by war veterans under the constitutional rights of peaceable assembly and petition.

"We are equally aware that such methods are not to be encouraged.

"These war veterans marched into Washington, exhibiting their deplorable condition—hoping a tiresome and inept congress would hear their appeal. Regardless of the technicalities of law and police regulations, they should have received at the hands of the fathers of the government a becoming sympathy and leadership.

"That they did receive such sympathy and leadership from that able soldier, Gen. Glassford—and we have out of the mouths of the veterans themselves the evidence of his kindly influence and their respect for his proper authority—is to his everlasting credit.

Tribute to Glassford.

"And when it came the time that he had to enforce the government's orders he went about his task manfully and unafraid. But in the midst of his own police operations he had his authority struck from his hands by the appearance of sabers, gas bombs, firebrands, bayonets, and tanks. An awesome spectacle this display of force, commanded by the very head of the army himself, resplendent in his hastily donned uniform—only less impressive than had he donned gold braid.

"This comic opera spectacle of generals commanding battalions was a revealing thing to us old soldiers and relieved an otherwise deadly occasion.

"It is the opinion of American Legion, department of Pennsylvania, that the President of the United States, being charged with high duties over and beyond the execution of the law, handled the whole situation in a regrettable manner which contributed to this incident."

National Commander Henry L. Stevens Jr. has reiterated that a "full and free" discussion of every matter confronting the Legion will be had on the floor of the convention.

Chicago Drummer Wins.

The Legion's best individual drummers and buglers were chosen today in open competition at the Civic stadium.

J. A. Hathaway of the Chicago Board of Trade post, Chicago, won the individual drummer's championship and J. E. McCurdy of the Harmon Gray post, La Porte, Ind., was adjudged the best bugler.

Hathaway won despite the bad fortune of breaking a drumstick, with borrowed sticks, he continued his performance credibly and his selection won acclaim.

DOUGLAS PARK POST OF LEGION CONDEMNS BONUS ARMY REPORT

At a regular meeting of the Douglas Park post, No. 319, the youngest post of the American Legion in Illinois, attended by over 300 ex-service men, a resolution was unanimously adopted condemning President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell for the administration report on the bonus expeditionary forces.

"It was not sufficiently insulting to use bullets and bayonets to evict the heroes of 1917," stated Assistant Probate Judge Oscar B. Caplan, commander of the post. "The attempt to brand the bonus army as a criminal and communistic organization will make every service man take up 'arms' again to regain the self-respect of the former soldier, sailor and marine who sacrificed their homes and happiness to save this free land.

"Everything is fair in politics," continued Commander Caplan, "but to use such a report as rendered by the legal head of this government as a political alibi is to be censured severely."

START SPEEDING UP TAX SALE OF PROPERTY TODAY

The sale by auction of 400,000 parcels of real estate on which the owners have failed to pay 1930 real estate taxes totaling $75,000,000, will begin in earnest today. The order for speeding up the sale was given by County Treasurer McDonough.

Although in technical compliance with the law the sale was begun a month ago, the treasurer sold only one property a day, giving taxpayers a last opportunity to pay up before sale or forfeiture clouds title to the properties. The press of business in his office and the imminence of the 1931 tax collection forced him to order the real sale to begin.

Only properties for which taxpayers have neither paid taxes nor filed court objections, will be sold. The clerks in the treasurer's office estimate that few of the items will be bought by the professional tax buyers who usually are the only attendants at the auction. The remaining properties will go into technical forfeiture to the state. Redemption can be made at any time by paying the taxes and penalties which accrue at 1 per cent a month.

HURLEY STRIKES BACK AT CRITIC OF ARMY ACTION

Says Troops Protected Bonus Marchers.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—At a dinner of past Legion commanders tonight Secretary of War Hurley made an unscheduled speech. He said he had not intended to touch upon the eviction of the bonus army from Washington, but was led to do so by remarks made in a preceding speech at the dinner by Floyd Gibbons, a former war correspondent and radio announcer. Gibbons had attacked the method used by the government in dispersing the bonus army.

Secretary Hurley's speech began with a restatement of the order he gave to Gen. MacArthur after the civil authorities of the District of Columbia had reported to the President that they were unable to preserve peace and order.

Takes Up Challenge.

"That [meaning the bonus riot] was one subject," Secretary Hurley continued, "upon which I intended not to touch, but being present on an occasion of this kind, faithful, I believe, to the responsibilities which I have, I couldn't remain and permit to go unchallenged the statements made by my distinguished friend, Floyd Gibbons.

"I have no desire to engage in a debate of any kind, but when any man tells you, my friends, that when the lives of two human beings had been snuffed out, when sixty people had been wounded, when the District of Columbia advised the President of the United States that they had lost control of civil government and could not protect life or maintain law and order—when any man tells you that that was orderly procedure he is not stating the facts.

Protects Marchers Themselves.

"When the civil government of the District of Columbia advised the chief executive of the nation that blood had been spilled on the streets of Washington, that people had been killed, and that the police power was helpless to protect the lives of the people and maintain law and order, I then received an order to proceed to bring United States troops to the scene for the purpose not only of protecting the people of the city and restoring law and order but for the purpose of protecting the marchers themselves.

"All the fatalities that occurred incident to the riot took place before the arrival of United States troops, a force of about 600 men. Not one shot was fired after the troops came on the scene. No person was seriously injured. Law and order were promptly restored."

SAM IRBY READY TO FACE HOTEL CHARGES HERE

Sam Irby, former road commissioner of Louisiana and author of an unpublished book, "Kidnaped by the Kingfish," plans to surrender to the New Orleans police on a charge of defrauding the Congress hotel as soon as he arranges bond, according to dispatches last night. Irby left his luggage at the Congress, according to W. J. Seng, in the controller's office, and a bill for about $100 when he and a companion left on Sunday. They had registered under the names Burton and Roberts.

Irby told New Orleans newspapermen that he did not owe the Congress a cent, that when he stayed there last week for six days he was the guest of Robert Brothers, agent of Huey Long, who tried to bribe him with $50,000 to denounce his book.

4 DUGOUTS RAIDED BY DRY AGENTS AT LEGION CONVENTION

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Four "dugouts" have been raided by federal prohibition agents and members of the Portland police department coincident with the opening of the American Legion convention.

Federal agents raided the "91st division dugout" and arrested Paul Resaun, 34, alleged operator of a liquor dispensing station. The agents said they confiscated liquor and alcohol.

They also raided a place advertised as the "Legionnaires' rest." They arrested Parry Tomlinson, Carden Qualla, Albert Estebenet, and Emit Pearson on liquor possession charges and confiscated 165 cases of beer.

Police raided a self-styled "navy dugout" and arrested Frank Russell, alleged bartender, for possession of liquor.

At the Rose City American Legion post, No. 35, dugout, Lloyd Thomas, concession operator, was arrested on a possession charge.

FORMER OFFICER OF ROOFING CO. KILLS HIMSELF

George W. Cooper, 60 years old, former secretary-treasurer of the Rohrman-Cooper Roofing company, 140 South Dearborn street, was found a suicide in his apartment at 4609 Magnolia avenue yesterday. He had shot himself in the head. The apartment was entered at the request of a sister-in-law, Miss Dora Schein, 4611 Magnolia avenue, who had not seen Cooper since Saturday.

Cooper left a note saying he had lost his money in several unsuccessful business ventures since he withdrew from the roofing company 18 months ago on its merger with another concern. The note instructed Miss Schein to pay a dentist bill, dues at the Hamilton club and the bill of a barber who gave him three hair cuts on credit.

OWNER OF STORE SLAIN IN HOLDUP; HUNT EX-EMPLOYE

George Flabouras, 40 years old, 3707 Southport avenue, was shot and fatally wounded in an attempted holdup last night in his fruit and vegetable store at 3713 Southport avenue. Before he died Flabouras told his brother, Apostle, that the robber who shot him was Michael Kapelakas, whom Flabouras formerly employed as a clerk. The police started a search for Kapelakas, who is 24 years old.

Flabouras was shot as he reached for a telephone after the bandit had ordered him to turn over money in the cash drawer. Flabouras disarmed the bandit after the shot and followed him into the street, collapsing a half block from the store.

Charity Fund Collector Sues Mrs. McPherson

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Robert E. Fisher, former collector for the charity relief organization affiliated with the Rev. Aimee McPherson-Hutton's church, has sued Mrs. McPherson-Hutton and the Echo Park Evangelistic association, which is the incorporated name of her church, for $2,953 asserted due him as his compensation for soliciting money, provisions and supplies. According to Fisher's legal papers, he was promised 20 per cent of all cash and 40 per cent of all supplies.

450,000 RETURN TO SCHOOL, SOME OF THEM TO PLAY

Experimental Education Classes Growing.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Nearly 450,000 children in Chicago returned to school yesterday, but not to a mere process of studying and reciting lessons such as their parents knew as school.

More than ever before, authorities said, school in Chicago this year will be filled with such things as "rythmic work," "activity work" of all kinds, music, dramatics, experiments in teaching the social science from the first grade up, and so on, all of which may be grouped under the new experimental education which has as its guiding principle the need of making school work primarily entertaining to gain the best results.

Try Out Latest Methods.

At the new Smyser school, Montrose and Melvina avenues, where the latest methods taught in leading experimental schools throughout the country will be tried out, according to Supt. William J. Bogan, the children were given their first lesson yesterday. It was:

"Now children, we're all going to be happy at Smyser."

A total of 736 children enrolled there yesterday. The school will seat 1,116 children. Possibly 24 more are expected to enroll during the week.

As explained by Mrs. Mina S. Rogers, principal of Smyser, a system of student government which will include even the kindergarten gradually is to be adopted.

Just a Happy Home.

"We hope to achieve a condition comparable to a well ordered home, a well ordered office or a model factory," she said with a bright smile. "If we do, every child will be able to come and go as she pleases, and can be trusted to. He will not have to raise his hand and ask before he leaves the room, or goes to the blackboard, for instance."

Asked what the "rhythmic work" she referred to as an important part of the program meant, Mrs. Rogers replied:

"Dancing of all kinds and rhythmic movements. Folk dancing we will stress in particular. Then we'll have lots of little plays and music and singing in the auditorium."

Mrs. Rogers described how reading will be taught:

"A group of young children will be taken to a nearby store. Then they will come back and write about what they saw. 'I saw cans on the shelves,' and so on. It makes it more vivid for them than reading something out of a book. Although, of course, we do not neglect the three R's. We will still teach reading, writing and arithmetic, but they can be picked up easily when the child's whole school day is packed with interesting experiences."

No Scolding, Either.

No child will be scolded for not learning his lesson. He will never hear it hinted that he is dull or slow. Instead, the teacher will try to interest him.

"Our report cards won't have regular grades for subjects," Mrs. Rogers continued brightly. "No, indeed. It would be too discouraging for a boy to see he had made a low grade in arithmetic, for instance. And there will be none of this competitive striving for grades. We'll list such things as industry, reliability, responsibility, and initiative, and grade the children on those.

"Then, for the sake of the parents, there will be a 'scholarship rating'—indicating what subjects the children are weak in.

"We're not really different from other Chicago schools. They're all progressive now," she continued. "Our only distinction is that we make a special effort to be informal, to be experimental. We teachers will probably learn even more than the children."

More Students Than Last Year.

Incomplete figures for the enrollment in the Chicago schools as given out by the board of education totaled 449,445, as compared to last year's first day figures of 441,458.

More enrollments will be made throughout the week and until Oct. 1, it was predicted. A decrease of 6,232 in enrollment of elementary schools from last year's total of 312,723 was reported. The normal school enrollment was off 298, this year's totaling 829 as compared to 1,127 last year.

HOSPITAL JANITOR ENDS LIFE.

Albert Groenhoff, 72 years old, a janitor employed at the West Side hospital, 1844 West Harrison street, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself from a stairway in the hospital. He was despondent over ill health, police said.

SQUALL SWEEPS CAPTIVE BALLOON OUT OVER LAKE

World Fair Gas Bag Is Lost in Storm.

Sharp squalls of wind, sweeping in with rain from the west and south yesterday afternoon caused damage in several parts of Chicago.

A captive balloon, anchored over the World's Fair grounds at 26th street and the lake and used to [illegible] passengers aloft on windless days, broke loose fr[illegible] its moorings when it was caught by one of the squalls and swept out over Lake Michigan, finally disappearing in the clouds.

According to Capt. R. J. Walters, who held a concession from the Century of Progress to operate the balloon, the craft had been tied down several hours before the wind struck.

Workmen were putting a canvas fence around it when a blast described as a small twister caught it and whirled it aloft. The undercarriage and the 1,000 foot cable holding it broke and remained on the ground.

The balloon was 98 feet long, 30 feet in diameter, and contained 37,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. It had a capacity of four passengers. Capt Walters, who estimated its value at $6,500, was hopeful that it would drift over the lake and be found in Michigan.

Two youths, hurled into the waters of the lake when the small sloop Ilka, in which they were sailing off Belmont harbor, capsized in a squall, were rescued by Lincoln Park Policeman Michael Rice and Knute Swanson, skipper of a speedboat owned by County Commissioner Charles H. Weber. One of the youths, Flavian Viancini, 3321 Kenmore avenue, was trying to swim a quarter of a mile to shore when he was picked up. The other, Rudolph Valasek, 4032 Greenview avenue, clung to the capsized craft.

The squalls were strictly local and the highest wind velocity recorded by official instruments was 24 miles an hour at 3:58 p. m. Rainfall during the blow was slight, but there were heavier showers during the night.

Today, according to the forecast probably will be fair and cooler.

SUBURBAN SCHOOLS OPEN; SOME DISTRICTS PLAN TO CLOSE EARLY

School days began in many of the suburban communities yesterday. According to Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, many of the school districts are opening later than usual this year and will probably close earlier because of lack of funds.

The Evanston Township High school opened with 3,000 students registering and 7,500 pupils entered the elementary school classrooms in that suburb. Schools also opened in Niles, Niles Center, Tessville, Morton Grove, Glencoe and Winnetka.

In Oak Park the township high school serving Oak Park and River Forest opened with an enrollment of 3,750. The elementary schools of Oak Park will open on Sept. 26, and those in River Forest on Oct. 3. Grade schools also opened in La Grange.

Mr. Tobin's office was deluged with requests to permit high school graduates in non-high school districts to attend free junior colleges at the county's expense. The institutions include Crane, Thornton and J. Sterling Morton Junior colleges. Taxes are levied in non-high school districts to pay high school tuition for pupils anywhere in the county. There is no provision for the payment of tuition out of the taxes for pupils to junior colleges. Mr. Tobin delayed his decision.

TENANTS FIGHT; ONE FINED.

George Jessel, 36 years old, 3420 North Seeley avenue, was fined $10 yesterday by Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt for hitting George Ledin, another tenant of the building, with a monkey wrench.

COURT UPHOLDS MEYERS IN PARK BOARD CONTEST

Circuit Judge Craig Hood ruled yesterday that Thomas F. Meyers Jr. had been elected a commissioner of the north shore park district at the last park election. The ruling places Meyers in the vacancy created recently by the judge's order ousting James P. Ward Sr., who continued to hold his seat on the board after his term of office expired. The supporters of Ward—the majority faction on the board—had refused to consider Meyers' election valid.

After the Meyers decision Judge Hood took under advisement the pleading by attorneys representing James B. Phelan, who was appointed by the board to fill the vacancy left when Frederick H. Chetlain, whose status was the same as Ward's, dropped his claims to his commissionership. Meyers' attorneys contend that the late Patrick C. Winn was elected to the post Chetlain relinquished. They say the appointment of Phelan thus was illegal. Phelan's lawyers say the board has the right to fill vacancies and that his appointment is legal.

After the court session Judge Hood called the lawyers into chambers and suggested a compromise arrangement to settle the bitterly contested fight until the park election next April. He suggested that the commissioners seat Meyers without forcing him to get a mandamus order from the courts, and that Meyers' lawyers allow Phelan's appointment to stand. No agreement was reached.

SEEK TWO MILK COMPANY AIDS AFTER BOMBING

Grocery Owner Tells Police of Threats.

The police yesterday were seeking a driver and a milk route manager of the Borden Farm Products company of Illinois for questioning concerning the bombing of a grocery at 1101 West Grand avenue. The bomb was exploded in the doorway of the store early in the day causing damage estimated at $200.

The grocer, Vito Natale, told the police that he had been threatened by the driver and route manager a month ago for using cut rate milk from the Meadowmoor dairy, 1334 South Peoria street. In his statement to police Natale said that the driver, whose name he gave as "John," opened the ice box and saw the Meadowmoor bottles. Natale said the following conversation took place:

Grocer Charges Threat.

"Are you going to quit me?" the driver asked.

"No," Natale told him, "I'm going to try both."

"You'd better be careful. You might get your windows broken," the driver told Natale, according to the grocer's story.

Several days later the route manager went to the store and repeated the warning of the driver, Natale said.

A witness told the police that early yesterday he saw two men place an object in the store doorway and drive away in a small automobile. Assistant State's Attorney Edward Duffey assigned investigators to question Natale further.

F. A. Webb, sales manager of the Borden company, said he had not been informed of the charges.

"I know nothing about the matter," he said, "but I do not believe the charges true."

Probes Explosion of Auto.

After investigating an explosion which wrecked an automobile parked at 3316 North Crawford avenue on Sunday night, Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park police said yesterday that the blast was not caused by a bomb. He expressed the belief that the car exploded after automobile thieves had tried to start it.

Witnesses saw men working with the car before the explosion. Capt. Goldberg said he believed that the thieves had choked and flooded the motor and that the blast was caused by preignition. The car had been parked by Max Meltzer, vice president of the Milford theater, 3317 Crawford avenue. He was preparing to leave the theater and drive to his home when the explosion occurred.

Mill Owners Sign Compact Against Carpenters' Union

The executive board of the Millwork and Cabinet Manufacturers' Association of Chicago yesterday reported that all members of the association, employing some three thousand men in more than a hundred shops, have signed an open shop agreement and will have no further dealings with the carpenters' union. The association will pay 65 cents an hour with time and a half for overtime. Following four months of negotiations the union last week voted to accept a reduction of 15 cents from the previous scale of one dollar an hour. The owners' association stated that competition from the surrounding area forced the move.

FOUR CAPTURED; CONFESS ATTACK ON GIRL OF 17

Four unemployed men yesterday confessed that they attacked a 17 year old girl, who had been missing from her home for four days. The men were arrested when the girl was found in a rooming house at Madison and Aberdeen streets and told her story to Sergts. John Hennessey and John Hock of the Des Plaines street police.

The men are Frank Miller, 42 years old, 1050 West Monroe street; Frank Randall, 32 years old, and William Conroy, 36 years old, both of 1021 West Monroe street, and Thomas Karner, 28 years old, 1943 Warren avenue. All said they had last been employed as bill peddlers.

Girl's Story to Police.

The girl said she left a hospital last week after an appendicitis operation. She told the police she became faint last Friday afternoon as she was walking in Washington boulevard near the river. Miller approached her, she said, and volunteered to take her where she might lie down and get water.

She said she was taken to a vacant room on West Madison street where she was attacked by Miller and the three others who had joined him. She did not go home, she said, because she feared to tell her story.

Points Out Assailant.

The police had been ordered to hunt for the girl after her family had reported her missing. They found her after she was reported seen in the vicinity of the rooming house. She accompanied detectives in a hunt for her assailants and pointed out Miller at Aberdeen and Monroe streets. Miller confessed and named his companions.

The other three were arrested as they were preparing to flee after they had heard of Miller's arrest. Police said they also made confessions. The men are also wanted for passing bogus checks, Sergt. Hennessey said.

ROCKFORD HEARS HORNER PLEDGE PUBLIC ECONOMY

Candidate for Governor Opens Stump Tour.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—His promise to "cut every dead limb from the pay roll tree," if elected governor of Illinois, and urge the legislature to repeal the state prohibition laws, were the high points made here tonight by Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, in his first major speech of the fall campaign.

Taking the stump in a territory not hitherto regarded as sympathetic to the tenets of his party, Judge Horner made a direct plea to the voters to "throw off the false leadership of the Republican party" and "bring about a new day of public service to our nation."

The 3,000 citizens of northern Illinois who packed the Shrine Temple auditorium tonight heard the outline of a broad program of governmental action which Judge Horner would, if elected, put into effect from the statehouse at Springfield.

For a Democratic gathering in this region, the audience was a record size. Republicans have ruled here for so many years that not often has a Democratic candidate even been routed through this section.

Judge Horner talked to this attentive audience while thunder outside and a biting rain whipped the window panes. He spoke for more than an hour using the clear, meticulous language which has characterized his utterances from the Cook county Probate bench for seventeen years.

Principal Planks in Platform.

Here, in brief, are the principal planks of his platform:

ECONOMY—Abolition of useless departments, bureaus, and commissions. "Our finances do not permit indulging in experiental luxuries. My aim will be not only to lower the cost of the state government. I shall also recommend to the legislature the adoption of such laws as will aid in the reduction of cost of local governments."

PROHIBITION—Repeal of the Illinois search and seizure law, in compliance with "the oft expressed wishes of our citizens." Enactment of laws to guard against the return of the saloon.

FARM RELIEF—A square deal for the farmers in state legislation. Relief from the burden of taxation and "the development of voluntary cooperative movements among the farmers. I shall not consult with the political agricultural expert, but the dirt farmers themselves."

Reapportionment Compromise.

REAPPORTIONMENT—Control of the state senate assured to downstate while members of the house of representatives would be selected on the basis of population—giving full representation to Cook county. "With each section of the state thus fully protected in what it believes its own rights to be, distrust would speedily disappear."

BANKING—"Such laws as the state can enact which would, as far as is humanly possible, safeguard the bank depositors as well as the bank stockholders should be enacted."

REVENUE—Amendment of the revenue article of the constitution to obtain "real relief from the inequalities of taxation." Ratification of the "gateway" amendment to the constitution which "will make possible the presentation of amendments to three articles of the constitution at one election."

CHARITY RELIEF—Authorization, by the voters at the November election, of the $18,000,000 charity bond issue passed by the special session of the assembly earlier in the year, "as a simple act of justice."

Discusses Campaign Issues.

Judge Horner began his address with a discussion of the issues presented in the current campaign.

"The real question," he said, "is whether those who have been charged with a duty to safeguard the happiness and prosperity of this great nation have performed their duty well, or otherwise if they have failed, and are, therefore, answerable for all the distress and misfortune to which we as a people have been subjected."

After recalling the prosperity of America prior to the depression—a prosperity not shared equally by the farmers—the candidate charged that "false prophets" had led the voters in an orgy of spending and speculating.

"'Two cars in every garage and a chicken in every pot' was the promise that led our citizens in 1928 to reject a great American who had offered himself as a candidate for President and to turn to the miracle man who made these promises," was his tribute to Alfred E. Smith and his condemnation of the national administration.

Day of Reckoning Comes.

"Herbert Hoover, pictured as a great engineer, a great administrator, a man so great that he was above party and could turn from one to the other at will, was elected. We were assured that a superman was at the head of the government and stocks soared higher. The money that was needed to develop the farms and industries of the middle west was poured into the stock exchange in the east."

The judge next painted a graphic verbal picture of the "day of reckoning," with "the pyramids of paper wealth built upon the strength of the belief in the supernatural powers of the engineer in Washington came tumbling down like houses of cards." The ghost of mass unemployment hovered over the country and the farmer "found that the prices offered for products of his labor would hardly pay for the bare necessities of life.

"Meanwhile the great engineer did nothing but issue proclamations declaring that all this was for the best, that the tide would turn and that prosperity was just around the corner. Even today that pretense is being kept up. Artificial stimulation of the stock market is being resorted to in an effort to prove that we are prosperous, but wage reduction after wage reduction is being made, and in our own state the governor has been forced to call the legislature into special session to provide sustenance for 700,000 men, women and children who otherwise would be left to starve."

Assails Leadership of Party.

This grim situation demands a change, said Judge Horner. "Our citizens are firmly determined to bring about that change. They know full well of the broken promises, the lack of foresight, and the utter confusion of the leadership in Washington."

Judge Horner turned next to a laudation of Gov. Roosevelt, head of the national Democratic ticket, and declared that every candidate on the state slate felt the honor of being nominated in Illinois, while realizing the tremendous responsibility resting upon them. In abrupt fashion he turned to his own tour.

"The conduct of this campaign, as far as I am concerned, will be based upon truth and facts," he said. "If I can't win the governorship that way then I don't want it at all. I shall not seek the support of my fellow citizens on the weakness of my opponent. I am not trying to succeed to office over the damaged reputation of any man. If I can't win on my own merits, then I don't want to win at all.

Submits Own Public Record.

"The candidate against me was governor of our state for eight years. He made his record. It has been published again and again. It is, in part at least, inscribed in the reports of the Supreme court of this state and I will not hurt the sensibilities of my audience by attempting a recital of it.

"I have made and shall make certain pledges during this campaign, but only such as I believe are capable of performance. I am offering my record of eighteen years' public service as a guarantee for the faithful performance of the promises that I shall make."

Problem of Taxation.

Beginning the planks of his platform, the candidate declared the greatest problem the next governor will have to contend with "is that of burdensome taxation. We cannot as a people continue under present taxation conditions.

"On behalf of my opponent promises are being made of reduction of taxes while at the same time wholesale promises are being made of political jobs in return for support of his candidacy. That may be practical politics. I acknowledge my opponent's superiority as a politician, but it is not good morals to talk lower taxes and an increased pay roll in the same breath. On the contrary, I expect to cut every dead limb from the pay roll tree, and thus reduce the costs of our state government. That may not be, in my opponent's view, effective politics, but it is decent and honorable statesmanship.

"It will be the first duty of the government to remove from industry, agriculture and land the burdens that obstruct and discourage. The federal, state and local governments must reduce their expenditures to the lowest possible figures. Some one said that that will not happen 'until men and women boil over, rouse up and demand reduction.' I believe we have reached the boiling point. The demand for it is universal; and woe to the office holder who fails to heed that demand."

INSULL UTILITY STOCK LOSS PUT AT $148,000,000

See Little Hope Even for Debenture Holders.

cent of these stocks. In addition the Middle West itself is in the hands of receivers.

The fact that the banks have such a large block of this stock supplies hope that eventually Middle West may produce some results. This company has a number of good operating companies under its wing.

Middle West and Corporation Securities account for $96,900,000 more in the Insull Investments, or an aggregate so far of $215,800,000 out of a portfolio that was represented by officers of the company to have cost $252,300,000. Some of the investments are said to have been disposed of, so that the receivers are expected to account for a smaller portfolio.

Hard Job for Accountants.

The expert accountants are said to have had a difficult time unraveling the transactions of the company, and have used practically all of the five months in that operation since they were assigned to the task.

To untangle the affairs of Insull Utility Investments, it is said that the accountants have had to investigate the affairs of Insull, Son & Co., Inc., the Public Service Trust, the Second Utilities syndicate, and also delve into the affairs of the Corporation Securities, the Utility Securities company, the Skokie Valley Realty association and the Inter-company syndicate.

Securities were bought, sold, loaned, pledged and borrowed between these various Insull units to such an extent that it is said to have been difficult for the receivers to present plainly the various ramifications. To obtain an accurate picture, it is reported that an investigation has been made of all of the transactions of Insull Utility Investments since it was organized in 1929.

According to La Salle street, no loans of any importance were made to individuals by the Insull Utility, although it is reported that the accountants have found much to criticize. The nature of these criticisms has not leaked out.

Outlook for Debenture Holders.

The possibility of the debenture holders obtaining a part of their investment is looked upon by La Salle street as having a little hope in it. It was agreed with the debenture holders, before they bought, that their security would not be decreased or that at least they would have equal security with others who might lend the company money.

Judge Lindley refused to permit the eastern bankers to sell certain Insull securities at the low market level. He is said to have told the representatives of the eastern banks that if they would hold the securities they had taken as collateral they could obtain a much higher sale price later. The market price of the securities in question — Commonwealth Edison, Peoples' Gas and Public Service has already advanced materially. If they are held long enough possibly enough cash can be obtained to aid the debenture holders. The latter contend that the banks accepted the collateral knowing of the clause safeguarding their security, and therefore part or all of these securities should be returned to the receivers.

The ruling of Judge Lindley is being reviewed by the United States Court of Appeals. A decision is expected within a short time.

PLAINTIFF WIVES NOT SO PLAINTIVE IN DEPRESSION

Judge Edward S. Scheffer of the Domestic Relations court said yesterday hard times have so softened the hearts of wives prosecuting their husbands for nonsupport that a conciliatory spirit has replaced the vindictiveness of more prosperous days. It has become the exception instead of the rule, he said, when a wife insists that a delinquent husband be sent to jail.

"It's really amazing in comparison with the records showing the jail sentences formerly imposed," Judge Scheffer said.

"For instance, one mother of four children who hadn't had a cent from her husband in months, brought him into court and told me she wouldn't have done it then if he hadn't earned one dollar a few weeks ago and failed to give her even half of that. Frequently it happens that men are brought in here as much as $800 behind in their payments, and that a payment of as little as $2 will satisfy the wife for a while.

"The women now realize that a man in jail is a loss to his family financially, and that the longer he stays there the less help the family will get. There is the same effect shown in the men in a different way. We have found that their sense of responsibility to their families has been materially increased."

HELD AS CAFETERIA BURGLAR.

JURY FINDS BONHAM SANE; EXECUTION IS SET FOR OCTOBER 7

Howard C. Bonham, 30 year old convicted murderer, was found sane by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Michael Feinberg and sentenced to die in the electric chair on Oct. 7. First placed under death sentence more than a year ago, Bonham has obtained seven delays in the date of execution. The last execution date was set for the night of Aug. 18 and he was saved then by the present insanity writ.

Bonham was found guilty of the murder of Paul H. Tulupan, manager of the Claridge hotel grill, 1244 North Dearborn street, during a robbery on Dec. 18, 1930. The conviction was affirmed by the Supreme court, and clemency had been denied by the governor on the advice of the parole board.

The present sanity hearing was obtained on the plea of Defense Attorney Harold Levy that Bonham had become insane since pronouncement of sentence. It lasted but 40 minutes and was said by court attaches to be the shortest hearing of its kind in the history of the county.

When the jury announced the verdict, Bonham, who sat listless through the hearing, seemed on the verge of collapse. He was supported by two bailiffs in the journey to his cell.

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The French liner Ile De France arrived tonight 12 hours behind schedule after battling a gale of hurricane proportions in mid-Atlantic which sent 30 foot waves over the decks.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, retired, ambassador to Turkey, here for a three weeks' vacation, said it was the roughest crossing of the 32 he has made.

Among the other passengers were Louis De Cappdelaine, member of the French chamber of deputies; Beatrice Lillie, the actress, and Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Hutchins, who spent a vacation in a lugger on the Holland canals.

It was learned that his physician had advised him to curtail all other activities.

Officials of the club were told that Mr. Barnes would not resume his formal Bible talks which he gave before the regular Sunday evening service of the club.

Some anxiety is felt because of the high percentage of reactionary elements in the population, not to mention the political exiles just across the frontier.

A ten line will, naming his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Wells of 1540 Lake Shore drive the executrix and sole heir of his estate, sufficed to dispose of the estate of Arthur G. Wells, executive vice president of the Santa Fe railroad, who died Sept. 3. The will was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. The estate was valued at $65,000. Associates of Mr. Wells stated that he had suffered heavy losses on Insull stocks during the stock market depression.

BOARD AWARDS CONTRACT FOR SCHOOL COAL

A $300,000 contract for coal was awarded to the Moulding-Brownell corporation by the board of education yesterday afternoon. Payment for the 87,000 tons of coal and the freight charges will be made in school tax anticipation warrants at par value when cash is not available. The coal will last until Dec. 31.

Attorney John D. Black, representing the Consumers' company and the Wisconsin Lime and Cement company, objected to the awarding of the contract to the Moulding-Brownell corporation and asked that his clients have a chance to submit their joint bid. The protesting companies had offered to take payment in the board's warrants at the market price.

"If we paid in warrants at the market price, we would have to give $5,000 worth of warrants for $4,000 worth of coal," said Howard P. Savage, school business manager.

RUSSIA TO OUST JOSEF STALIN AS RED DICTATOR

Collapse of 5 Year Plan Is Cause of Downfall.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 12.—Josef Stalin, successor of Lenin and absolute dictator of bolshevik policies in Russia since the death of Felix Dzerjinski in July, 1926, has lost his influence and will shortly be replaced as secretary of the communist party by Commissar M. I. Kaganovitch, according to an exclusive report received by THE TRIBUNE from Moscow.

JOSEF STALIN.

Kaganovitch, formerly Stalin's protégé in the finance department, has become a follower of Klem E. Voroshilov, the commander in chief of the Red army, who from now on will dictate the policies of the communist party. A complete change of the soviet government's course toward the right may be expected within the next month.

Stalin's Rule Nears End.

During the past week rumors of impending changes behind the walls of the Kremlin in Moscow have been received from several sources. A member of the local representation, Baltic diplomats stationed at Moscow and American engineers who have been traveling about Russia for the past two years and who have arrived in Riga for a short visit to purchase winter clothing, have imparted the news that Stalin's reign is approaching an end.

The failure of the five year plan to industrialize the country, coupled with the growing shortage of food, which is causing workers everywhere to desert the industrial undertakings and return to the villages, has resulted in undermining the power of Stalin and his politbureau.

Voroshilov, Russia's military leader, is also reported to have used the Manchurian situation to weaken Dictator Stalin who has been forced to adopt a more active policy in the far east by the war commissar's supporters. The Red army, which is composed of 85 per cent peasants, is dissatisfied with Stalin's attempts to collectivize Russian villages and communist party decrees modifying the collectivization program have been forced by the action of the army which demanded a change in policy.

Want U. S. as Ally.

Another reason for the fall of the dictator is said to be Moscow's hope to obtain American recognition by a radical change of internal policy. Voroshilov is anxious to obtain America as an ally against Japan, whose plans, Russians fear, threaten Siberia.

Three managers of the Leningrad bakery trust were sentenced to death today on charges of mismanagement and graft and on the testimony of the Gay Pay Ou [Russian secret service]. Four assistant managers received prison sentences totaling eight years. The officials were accused of using both chemicals and yeast to enlarge the bread output and adulterating flour so as to economize in baking.

Plan Far Behind Schedule.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Sept. 12.—The five year plan is not finishing in a blaze of glory. It is far behind the program, especially in the basic industries.

Statistics for the first eight months, published today, show pig iron production of 5,000,000 tons, as compared with the year's program of 9,500,000 tons; the output of steel, 3,700,000 tons, as compared with 8,880,000 tons; roiled metal, 2,800,000 tons, as compared with 7,600,000 tons, and copper, 35,000 tons, against 100,000 tons.

JAP ARMY FORMS FASCIST BODY TO PURIFY POLITICS

Ex-Service Men to Exert Pressure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 12.—A drastic cleanup of what is described as corrupt politics through a nation-wide patriotic movement, with an association of 4 million former service men as a nucleus, is reported to have been decided upon today. The decision was made at a secret meeting at the Army Officers' club. Among those present were Gen. Sadao Araki, Japanese minister of war, other war chiefs, and 117 prominent business men and financiers, including officials of the "big four," Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Okura and Sumitomo. Many of the latter were formerly connected with the army.

The report was given prominence in an article printed by the newspaper Kokumin Shimbun, which is closely connected with the war office.

Hope to Influence Diet.

The movement, headed by Araki, would mobilize public opinion for the task of "purging the diet," using former service men as a political machine to make the "will of the people" known through direct representations to legislators.

The scheme includes active participation in elections, the ousting of professional politicians and boosting of suitable candidates. It was also decided that all petitions to the diet should first receive approval from the ex-service men, who would consult with young men's associations when in doubt.

Similar to Fascisti.

The scheme is described as having derived its inspiration from the Fascisti, in that it would be a self-appointed organization to represent national opinion in Japan.

The war office sidestepped the story, saying the purpose of the meeting was to find employment for retired officers and to promote friendship between army and business men.

Japanese recognition of Manchukuo, the new state in Manchuria, is scheduled to be consummated next Thursday when Ambassador Muto, representing Japan, and Premier Cheng Sino-ksu, for Manchukuo, sign a basic treaty at Changchun, the new Manchurian capital. Count Yasuya Uchida, Japanese foreign minister, will publish a statement on the action simultaneously.

Four Manchurian Train Wrecks.

SHWANGCHENGPU, Manchuria, Sept. 12.—(AP)—At least twenty-six persons were killed in four train wrecks over the week-end, all caused by Chinese bandits. Hundreds of persons were reported kidnaped in daring bandit raids all over northern Manchuria, from the disabled trains as well as from various cities. More than two hundred others were reported killed in a battle between Japanese troops and Chinese bandits near Tahsing. The wrecking of the trains and blowing up of a bridge were laid to a retaliation against the Japanese occupation in Manchuria.

Henry Hilgard Villard, son of Oswald Garrison Villard, New York magazine editor, was a hero in the wreck and holdup of the Harbin-Changchun express in which at least 12 persons were killed and more than two score are missing.

When the train piled up at a point where Chinese brigands had removed the rails most of the 900 passengers fled in panic or became hysterical. But Villard single handed pulled the dead and dying from under the wreckage.

The bandits had stripped him of all his belongings, ripped most of his clothes from his back and threatened to carry him off. But he continued his ministrations as the shrieks of the injured echoed through the night.

Hundreds Die as Storm Sweeps China's Capital

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 12.—China's provisional capitol, Loyang, was swept today by a heavy wind and rainstorm. Hundreds lost their lives as houses collapsed, trees were uprooted and streets were flooded. The district, 170 miles east of Lanchow, in Kansu province, was shaken by an earthquake. Many buildings collapsed.

INVENTOR TELLS THE TRUTH ABOUT HIS LIE DETECTOR

It's Accurate; Interpretation May Be Faulty.

Dr. John A. Larson, assistant state criminologist and inventor of the lie detector, holds that no suspect should be sent to jail and no man should be released from jail solely on the evidence of his invention. The opinion is expressed in his book, "Lying and Its Detection," which is released today by the University of Chicago Press.

The machine, he states, is accurate, but the human interpretation of its records may be faulty, and there is a constant percentage of error ranging from 5 to 25 per cent. Dr. Larson constructed the first lie detector in 1921, when he was serving as a policeman in Berkeley, Cal., under Chief August Vollmer. He has used it continuously for 11 years in criminal cases. Dr. Larson at one time was known as the "only Ph. D. cop in the world."

Protects the Innocent.

In his book Dr. Larson says the greatest value of the lie detector is in protection of the innocent. He declares that the real merit of the machine lies in "getting at the truth" without resorting to "third degree" methods.

The machine consists of a cuff which is placed about the upper arm of the subject, to register blood pressure, and a tube about the chest, to measure respiration. These register on a cylinder of paper driven by a synchonized motor. Reactions to key questions are noted and from these guilt or innocence is determined.

Only Seven Fooled Machine.

In eleven years Dr. Larson reports finding only seven persons who lied without being detected. These seven cases were of mental defectives, psychopaths, and drug addicts. Of hundreds of suspects only seven refused to take the test on advice of counsel and were later found guilty.

"The lie detector does not get false confessions because there is no pain and nothing to inspire fear but a guilty conscience," Dr. Larson writes. "Put a rat in a cell of a nervous woman and she will confess to anything to get away from the rat. Set a hardened criminal facing a glaring light, and after long hours of physical and mental strain he will sign anything. Hit a weakling in the stomach with a billy after every question, and the same result will be gained."

JAILED FOR GIVING BOYS RUM.

Vincent Gubala, 53 years old, 4303 South Wood street, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell yesterday by Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffler for giving liquor to two boys.

Hunt in Vain For Lost Flyers by Land, Ship and Airplane

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, Sept. 12.—(AP)—By land, sea and air, men of five nations carried on a disheartening search in this vicinity tonight for George R. Hutchinson, American aviator, and his "flying family."

More than 24 hours had passed since distress calls were heard from the Hutchinson plane, forced down in the sea while carrying eight persons, two of them children, on another stage of a leisurely flight across the Atlantic. The area from which the signals came in Kjoge bay about 30 miles southwest of here, has been crossed and recrossed by planes and ships.

May be Drifting on Ice.

The search was the more poignant because of the fear for the children—the two young daughters of Hutchinson, aged 8 and 6. His wife, Peter Redpath, navigator; Gerald Altfillisch, radio operator; Joseph Ruff, mechanic, and Norman Alley, cameraman, were the others in the plane.

Word came tonight from Copenhagen that Prime Minister Theodore Stauning had ordered that neither expense nor effort be spared by the Danish government in carrying on the search along the deeply indented coast studded with islands and made treacherous by icebergs.

Americans, Greenlanders, Norwegians, Danes, Germans and British cooperated in efforts that seemed futile to find a trace of the plane or party in the mountainous ice floes. The only chance that the adventurers were still alive seemed to rest in possibilities that their S O S signals had been confused, that they had managed to reach shore, or that they were on some drifting ice floe.

Planes Join Hunt.

A naval plane from a Danish cruiser attached to the scientific expedition of Dr. Knud Rasmussen, the famous explorer, today followed over the course taken by the Hutchinson party. It started from Julianehaab, near the southern tip of Greenland, where the Hutchinsons took off yesterday, bound for Angmagsalik.

Ernst Udet, German war ace now in Greenland with a motion picture outfit and two other pilots also joined the search.

The British trawler Lord Talbot, which picked up the distress signals yesterday and rushed to the position given, remained in the area and was joined by a motorboat from a nearby base of the Pan-American Airways expedition, which is studying trans-Atlantic air travel conditions in east Greenland.

FORMER CHICAGOANS ABOARD.

G. J. Altfillisch, 24, radio operator on the lost trans-Atlantic Hutchinson plane, and Norman Alley, cameraman, are former Chicagoans. The latter lived in Oak Park. Altfillisch, who is the son of W. A. Altfillisch of Davenport, Ia., was associated with radio stations here several years ago. Two brothers, O. W. and W. J. Altfillisch, reside here.

ROB UPTOWN VILLAGE CAFE.

Two robbers entered the Uptown Village café, 4822 Broadway, yesterday afternoon and forced the manager, Ray Wong, to surrender $500 from the cash register. Patrons seated near the cashier's desk were unaware of the robbery.

HEAVY PRIMARY VOTE IN MICHIGAN FORECAST TODAY

Both Parties to Nominate for Governor, Senate.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Michigan voters tomorrow will nominate candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, congress, the state legislature and various county offices in a primary that election officials expect will bring out a total vote of more than 1,000,000.

The estimate is based on an unusually heavy re-registration just completed throughout the state.

More candidates than ever before have sought political indorsement in Michigan appear on the ballots for congressional nominations. Four new congressional districts created by the recent reapportionment attracted a combined total of 111 candidates on the Republican and Democratic tickets.

One Democratic Congressman.

All of Michigan's present members of congress, with the exception of the lone Democrat, Representative Michael J. Hart in the Eighth district, have opposition from within their own party.

In the Sixth and Seventh districts former Congressmen Grant M. Hudson and Louis C. Cramton, defeated two years ago, are attempting comebacks.

Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, candidate for renomination on the Republican ticketfi has four opponents—George W. Welsh, former city manager of Grand Rapids; Mayor William H. McKeighan of Flint, Orla A. Bailey of Byron, self-styled "hitch-hike" candidate, and James C. Quinlan of Grand Rapids.

Teapot Dome Colorado Issue.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Bitter senatorial campaigns have overshadowed all other contests in Colorado's primary tomorrow, with echoes of the Teapot Dome oil scandal providing ammunition for battle in the Democratic race.

Alva B. Adams, Pueblo banker and nephew of Gov. W. H. Adams, is opposed by John T. Barnett, Denver oil man, for the Democratic nomination. Adams served from 1923 to 1925 in the senate by appointment after the death of Senator Samuel D. Nicholson. Speakers for Adams, including United States Senator Edward P. Costigan, attacked Barnett's oil connections and intimated implicacy in the Teapot Dome affair. Barnett requested and received from Adams a retraction of the intimations.

Attorney for Exiled Oil Man.

On the Republican side Karl C. Schuyler, Denver attorney and oil man, will fight it out with Nate C. Warren, state senator from Fort Collins. Schuyler's position as attorney for Henry K. Blackmer, Denver oil man now a self-exile in Paris as a result of the Teapot Dome investigation, was brought into the campaign. Schuyler has concentrated on support of the Hoover administration. Warren stressed his long experience in the live stock and farming industries.

Barnett and Adams both have declared for repeal of the 18th amendment, while Schuyler and Warren stand by the Republican national platform.

Lieut. Gov. Edwin C. Johnson and District Judge E. V. Holland of Denver seek the Democratic nomination for governor. The Republican contestants are James D. Parriott, Denver city attorney, and Warren F. Bleecker, former legislator from Boulder.

Many Candidates in Arizona.

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 12.—(AP)—More voters are registered, more candidates are in the field and more offices are hotly contested for tomorrow's primary than ever before in the 20 year history of Arizona.

For Arizona's 11th primary are registered 110,698 Democrats, 31,025 Republicans and 1,090 miscellaneous.

Nearly 19,000 more voters are qualified than were on the rolls when Gov. George W. P. Hunt, Democrat, won the nomination and election to a seventh term two years ago. Hunt, 73 years old, seeks the right to contend with a Republican nominee for reelection in November.

Four aspirants, their campaigns having at least one thing in common—a plea for a change from the old régime—will oppose him on the Democratic ballot tomorrow.

Senator Carl Hayden, who has opposed soldier bonus legislation in its present form and said he would support the Democratic national platform on prohibition, but also will be guided by the result of a state prohibition law referendum in November, takes issue with each of his three antagonists, Harlow H. Akers, Walter H. Colyear, and William J. Fellows.

The Republican senatorial race finds Hoval A. Smith and Ralph Cameron, former senator, aligned against each other.

Louisiana Votes Today.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Louisiana's senators, once friends, now bitter foes, squared away tonight for a showdown at tomorrow's state-wide Democratic primary in which the senior statesman, Edwin S. Broussard, seeks to break the power of his younger colleague, Huey P. Long, by winning the nomination for a third term.

Long's senatorial seat is not involved in this primary, but he is attempting to strengthen his claim on the "kingfish" title by bringing about the defeat of Broussard and the nomination of a personal friend, Congressman John H. Overton of Alexandria.

Overton defended Long when impeachment proceedings were brought against him during his term as governor. And now the "kingfish" is repaying that debt.

WINS $2,750

MISS MARTHA GULLICKSON.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Miss Martha Gullickson, former Chicago secretary, won a stipulated judgment for $2,750 against Albert Fuchs, elderly Chicago and Los Angeles capitalist, today when she pressed an action in Superior court seeking to collect a previous judgment for $10,000 for breach of promise, which she won in court here in July, 1921.

Today's court proceedings showed that Miss Gullickson, who originally charged Fuchs with enticing her here from Chicago and asking her to pose as his wife without a ceremony, had collected a total of $2,250 cash from Fuchs and had allowed him a rebate of $5,000 on her original judgment.

DEMOCRATS GET MOST FUNDS TO BACK CAMPAIGN

More Income than G.O.P. Shown in Report.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—It is the Democratic party and not the G. O. P. that's handling the big money in this campaign, as evidenced by the reports of the Democratic national and Democratic national campaign committees filed today, as the law requires, with the clerk of the house of representatives.

The Democrats have taken in $353,154 during the period from June 1 to Aug. 31 and have spent $321,111, leaving a balance of $32,042. The recent Republican report showed an intake for a similar period of $88,628 and an outgo of $97,631.

But if the Democrats are more grandiose in their receipts and disbursements, they are also more flourishing as to a deficit. For they owed $236,604 on Aug. 31, as compared with the Republicans' $9,003.

Had Better Start.

The Democratic receipts counted in a balance of $117,627 on June 1, while the Republicans had only $8,443 on that date.

Contributions to the Democratic national committee from June 1 to Aug. 31 totaled $107,493 and to the Democratic national campaign committee $98,319, or a total of $200,812, compared with Republican contributions of $76,025. The Democrats, however, counted in considerable payments due them on their $200,000 pledge from the citizens' committee, headed by Edward N. Hurley, which brought their convention to Chicago. The Republican report included only some $4,000 as the balance due on the pledge to them.

Owe Raskob $122,254.

John J. Raskob, holding notes totaling $122,254, and the County Trust company of New York to which is owed $301,162 were revealed as the two largest Democratic creditors.

The arithmetic of the reports, aggregating the items of the various committee, was as follows: Receipts, $353,154.20; disbursements, $321,111.78; leaving a balance of $32,042.42. Unpaid pledges, $200,502.50, including $61,750 still to be paid by the Chicago citizens' committee, making total assets of $232,544.92. Debts, including the amounts owed Mr. Raskob and the County Trust company, $469,149.15, leaving a deficit of $236,604.23. In addition unacknowledged claims totaled $43,655.69.

The largest contribution listed was made to the national campaign committee and consisted of $35,000 from Vincent Astor.

Other Leading Contributors.

Other principal contributors to the Democratic national campaign committee were: William H. Woodin, New York, $10,000; Wirt G. Bowman, Nogales, Ariz., $5,000; Col. A. Arthur O'Brien, Washington, $5,000; M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Robert W. Bingham, Louisville, $5,000; W. A. Julian, Cincinnati, $3,000; William T. Kemper, Kansas City, $2,500; Mrs. Sumner Welles, Oxon Hill, Md., $2,500; Breckenridge Long, Washington, $2,000; Harry C. Black, $2,000; G. T. Emmet, New York, $1,000; Thomas H. Stonborough, New York, $1,000; Gov. William H. Murray, Oklahoma, $100.

Among contributors to the national committee and victory fund campaign were Alfred E. Smith and James A. Reed of Missouri, $500 each. These contributions were made before the national convention.

TEXAS GOVERNOR CHARGES FRAUDS IN LATE ELECTION

Contests Nomination of Mrs. Ferguson.

Lubbock, Tex., Sept. 12.—(AP)—A petition charging wholesale vote frauds and asserting a count of the ballots legally cast in the Aug. 27 primary would prove him the winner by at least 10,000 majority was filed with the state Democratic executive committee today by Gov. R. S. Sterling. This was his first step in his contest against the nomination of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for governor.

Sterling charged transients taken from trains, residents of bordering states, and Negroes assertedly unqualified to vote were allowed to stuff ballot boxes for the woman candidate, with the connivance of friendly precinct officials.

Claims 4,000 Margin.

The governor declared if unlawful ballots were thrown out that there would be a reversal of the count giving Mrs. Ferguson a lead of nearly 4,000 votes.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, former Gov. James E. Ferguson, were on hand to see that the committee was to canvass the county returns reported to it and certify to the state party convention tomorrow as the winner the candidate with the most votes.

Ferguson Makes Reply.

The Sterling accusation of fraud was answered by Ferguson's charge that the governor was attempting "to steal" the nomination from the woman ex-governor.

Gov. Sterling announced he would carry the contest into the courts if the party managers ratified Mrs. Ferguson as the nominee.

MAINE WOMAN, 101, CASTS 1ST VOTE FOR DEMOCRATIC TICKET

Madison, Me., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth P. Merrill of this town was 101 years old last November, but she cast her first ballot in the election today.

Unusual activity in this vicinity, centering about the contest for sheriff of Somerset county, aroused Mrs. Merrill's interest.

She said she voted the straight Democratic ticket and thought she would make another political sortie Nov. 8.

Operation Takes Surplus Bone from Child's Skull

Dr. Adrian Verbrugghan of the staff of the Presbyterian hospital yesterday performed an operation that involved the removal of a bit of bone the size of a silver dollar from the skull of Sylvia Oppenberg, 7 years old, 1132 South Mozart street. The surgeon explained that the operation was considered necessary because the sutures of the skull, which usually permit expansion of the brain until the age of 14, had become ossified. With the removal of the excess bone, the way is opened for normal development of Sylvia's head, he added.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED IN SHAKEDOWN QUIZ

Policemen Frank Cynova and Owen Leonard of the North Damen avenue station were suspended yesterday by Police Commissioner Allman and ordered before the civil service commission on charges of shaking down an engaged couple whom they found sitting in an automobile.

The two patrolmen, members of a station squad, were surprised on Saturday night by Capt. Max Danner, their commander, and Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller as they kept an alleged rendezvous at Cornelia and Hermitage avenues with Alois Krakau, 3611 North Mango avenue, complainant in the case.

Krakau told Mr. Mueller that on the evening of Aug. 23 he and his fiancée, Miss Alice Pokorny, 3556 North Hermitage avenue, were sitting in his automobile in front of her home. She was resting her head on his shoulder when the two policemen appeared, he said.

The policemen threatened to arrest the couple for a serious offense unless Krakau paid them $100, he charged. Krakau said he gave Leonard his wrist watch as security until he could raise the money. His first attempt to borrow money failed, he said, and Leonard and Cynova instructed him, he asserted, to try to borrow money on his automobile, and arranged the meeting Saturday night. Krakau, meanwhile, had made his complaint at the state's attorney's office.

DEMOCRAT LEADS IN NIP AND TUCK RACE IN MAINE

Candidate for Governor 1,300 Ahead.

which the Republican candidate appeared to be safe on the face of the incomplete returns is the First. In this district returns from 115 out of 145 precincts give Congressman Carroll L. Beedy, Republican, 25,559, and E. F. Connolly, Democrat, 22,257.

The total vote exceeded all expectations, indicating unusual interest in an election in which national dwarfed local issues. More than 200,000 persons went to the polls today, compared with 150,000 two years ago. The vote for the Republican candidate for governor today was 75,000 below the vote for Hoover four years ago, while the Democratic candidate for governor received 20,000 more votes than did Al Smith.

The extent to which the prohibition issue figured in the election and the extraordinary showing made by the wet Democratic candidates against their dry Republican rivals in what was long considered banner dry territory caused widespread comment. Anti-prohibitionists regarded this development of the utmost significance, venturing the opinion that it reflects the operation of forces that will produce a wet landslide in other states.

Put Up Valiant Fight.

The national organizations of both leading parties strove mightily to influence the Maine political barometer with a view to capitalizing the effect of the outcome upon the electorate in the remainder of the country. Each party calculated that if the result could be construed as favorable it would influence the votes of the bandwagon jumpers and others who are chiefly interested in getting on the winning side.

Both parties sent their leading spellbinders into the state in the endeavor to influence the outcome. The Republican speakers included Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Representative Robert Luce of Massachusetts. The principal Democratic orators were Govs. Ritchie of Maryland and Ely of Massachusetts and Senators Wagner and Copeland of New York.

A proposal to increase the tax on gasoline from 4 to 5 cents a gallon das overwhelmingly defeated.

Hoover Scans Maine Returns.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—(AP)—President Hoover took a strong interest in the Maine elections tonight and directed that early returns be sent to him personally at the White House

Although the chief executive did not sit up beyond his usual bed time because of the balloting, he was able to judge the trend of the voting before retiring.

Farley Appears Pleased.

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman and director of Gov. Roosevelt's campaign for the presidency, tonight appeared greatly pleased with the increased strength shown by the Democrats in early returns from the Maine election, but said he would have no statement until more complete figures were available.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
THE CALL OF THE WILD
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Paul Bransom, America's foremost animal painter ...inspired by the savage struggle between the ferocious wild dog and the vicious wolf... as described in Jack London's famous novel of combat against crude nature in the frozen north.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

EXPECT HOOVER SPEECH HERE TO SEEK FARM VOTE

Counter Barrage Opened on Democrats.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The presidential battle for the farm vote began to shape up yesterday with an announcement that President Hoover will make one or two addresses in the middle west in October and perhaps one in the east.

Everett Sanders, Republican national chairman—who returned to Chicago from Washington in company with Walter H. Newton, secretary to the President, who was en route to his home in Minneapolis—said the places and dates for the speeches have not yet been determined. Conjectures at headquarters were that one will be delivered in Chicago, the other perhaps in Kansas City or Minneapolis.

Start Counter Barrage.

With the agricultural regions set for a campaign drive, the Republicans also launched an onslaught upon the Democrats for charging that the Republican party has been seeking to protect Wall street, eastern industries and the bankers, and has given scant attention to the farmer.

In its chapter on agriculture, the Republican campaign textbook, which is to be ready for distribution this week, sets forth that when the Republican party got back into power in 1921 it found agriculture in a sad plight after eight years of Democratic rule. It presents facts designed to serve as foundation for the argument that were it not for machinery set in motion by the G. O. P. the farmer would have been hit by the depression far harder than he has.

Coming almost on the eve of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt's speech in Topeka tomorrow, the Republicans' textbook is regarded as significant as indicating the lines on which the supporters of Hoover will push their agricultural argument.

Tell of Aid to Farmers.

"Before the storm of depression battered all industries alike," says the chapter, "the Republican administration had set in motion machinery which has helped agriculture to withstand the ravages of that storm.

"These included tariff protection for products of the farm; the agricultuve marketing act providing for farmer-owned and farmer-controlled cooperative marketing organizations and the expansion of the inland waterways system so as to provide cheaper freight rates for farm products.

"With the advent of the depression and the ensuing drought, the Hoover administration provided every means at its disposal to safeguard the interests of agriculture as far as possible. Drought sufferers were relieved by direct loans, and aid was furnished through the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"While prices of farm products are too low, their decline has not been as great as that in other countries, nor as great as the decline in the prices of oil, copper, tin, rubber, and many other commodities. Nor has the decline in farm prices been anything like that in the prices of securities."

Political leaders from some of the middle west states are holding daily conferences, a state a day, with Chairman Sanders. Yesterday, a Nebraska group headed by Charles A. McCloud, national committeeman; Robert Smith, state chairman; Mrs. M. D. Cameron, national committeewoman, and A. W. Jefferies, former congressman, held the first of the conferences.

U. S. SENATOR NORRIS TO BACK ROOSEVELT; DENOUNCES HOWELL

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Politics began to hum in Nebraska today with the long awaited official announcement that Senator Norris was going to support Gov. Roosevelt for the Presidency, in November.

Norris made his announcement in a letter to Homer L. Kyle, assistant state's attorney general, who had apparently written to the Nebraska senator to get him to make a couple of talks for Attorney General C. A. Sorenson who is seeking reelection.

In his statement Norris denounced his colleague, Senator Howell and Senator Dickinson of Iowa. He said these two senators worked for agricultural relief bills only to have Hoover veto them as fast as they came up. Moreover, Norris said that if reelected President, Hoover would continue to veto the very bills which Howell and Dickinson would propose to relieve the farmer of his agricultural ailments.

President Hoover's ideas of government are as far from Howell's and Dickinson's as the equator is from the north pole, Norris wrote, yet they plead with the voters to vote the Republican ticket straight.

Norris said he was for Roosevelt and would make a few talks in his behalf. This marks the first break between Norris and Howell. Norris is credited with virtually electing Howell in 1922 when he campaigned the state for him. Again in 1928 Norris was hurried into the state and his half dozen talks were believed to have swung a majority to Howell.

BROOKHART MAY ASK RE-ELECTION AS INDEPENDENT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, radical Republican, recently defeated by Henry Field in the Iowa Republican primaries, stated today that he will decide within the next two weeks whether to run for reelection as an independent candidate. He has until Sept. 23 to file.

As an independent Senator Brookhart would run on an ultradry, anti-Hoover, anti-Wall street platform.

"As the result of the farm strike, there has been an important political upheaval in Iowa," said Senator Brookhart today. "There has been a strong and widespread demand for me to run, but I have not made up my mind whether to do so."

Peddler's Past Bobs Up After He Accuses a Cop

ROOSEVELT OFF ON TOUR HOPING TO WIN WEST

Speaks to Farmers at Topeka Tomorrow.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt set off late tonight on his expedition into the Republican strongholds of the west.

The train left at 11 p. m., Mr. Roosevelt saying he was going to go to bed and get "a good night's sleep." Before he left, Mr. Roosevelt saw reports of the progress of the Maine elections. He had no comment.

Later the governor's secretary, Guernsey T. Cross, said that the governor had said he was "highly pleased."

"Mr. Roosevelt felt that if the Maine Democrats come within 20,000 votes of capturing the governorship they will be doing amazingly well," said Mr. Cross.

The New York governor, Democratic candidate for the presidency, streaks westward without army or staff. No high powered politicians are in his party. He has only one technical adviser, Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia university, who has gathered data for the governor's speeches.

Farley to Join Party.

For the rest, the members of the candidate's party, accompanying him on a special train that will take them through 23 states on a three weeks' journey, are members of his family and a group of newspaper men.

National Chairman James A. Farley probably will join the party at Salt Lake City next Saturday or Sunday. It is planned to have Robert Marks, Cincinnati lawyer and a former judge, join the party en route. He toured with Gov. Roosevelt in the 1920 campaign, delivering a number of stopgap speeches along the way.

The governor's special train is routed tonight across New York state and Pennsylvania to halt momentarily at Cleveland early tomorrow morning. During the day tomorrow the train will stop at Indianapolis, where during a change of engines the candidate will greet and be greeted by some of the Hoosier leaders of Democracy.

The train will not be stopped en route to permit the governor to speak from the back platform to crowds which might gather at small cities and villages. It was decided that the time in which the trip must be completed was now too short to take advantage of greeting voters in this manner.

However, in the event such an opportunity does arise, the governor's private car on the rear end of the train has been equipped with amplifiers strong enough to carry his speech several hundred feet.

Meet Missouri Leaders.

Leaving Indianapolis, the governor's train will traverse the rest of the state of Indiana, cut across a southern chunk of Illinois, and arrive at St. Louis at 6:15 tomorrow evening. The next tarrying point will be Jefferson City, Mo., where Gov. Roosevelt will meet the Missouri leaders of his party, who will be attending the state Democratic convention in that city.

Then the governor plans to go to bed, to waken next morning in Topeka, Kas., where at noon Wednesday he is to make the agricultural speech which he hopes will win him millions of votes in the farm belts of the nation. Leaving Topeka Wednesday night, the governor will head on across the plains, into the mountain country of Colorado and then to the Pacific coast, which he plans to traverse from Spokane to San Diego.

Visit Chicago Sept. 30.

The Roosevelt party will visit Chicago Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, but present plans do not call for a speech there on this trip. It is possible the governor will return later in October for a Chicago speech, although he and his advisers are considering more seriously making a speech somewhere in southern Illinois.

FRANCE ANSWERS GERMANY 'NO' ON ARMS EQUALITY

Move to Postpone Parley as Rift Widens.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 12.—A British move to postpone the reopening of the disarmament conference next week in order to avoid a Franco-German deadlock on the principle of arms equality was launched today.

The move is opposed by the French and France once more is being backed up in her stand by the United States. According to American spokesmen, the time has now come for a showdown, and if the Germans are not satisfied to continue the disarmament conference along the present lines they will have to accept the responsibility for breaking it up.

France Replies to Germany.

The French government tonight published its answer to the recent German aide memoire demanding arms equality. The reply was conciliatory in tone. In substance, it offers Germany the important concession of opening conversations on reducing France's armaments nearer to the German level, but it rejects consideration of the abstract principle of equality for the time being and flatly refuses to consent to Germany's rearming under any circumstances.

The most important single concession is a hint that France, together with other interested powers, might consider recasting the military clauses of the treaty of Versailles in the light of whatever progress is achieved by the disarmament conference, but the note flatly turns down the German demand that the eventual disarmament treaty be substituted for the military clauses of the Versailles pact.

Warns of Armament Race.

Outside of a general warning that rearmament of Germany will mean an armament race among all European nations, the note contained no menaces addressed to Germany. On the other hand, it indicated France's willingness to effect a rapprochement with the reich, if possible, and invited some gauge of Germany's pacific intentions which will permit France to disarm.

How much was not stated, but from the new Franco-American working agreement it can be inferred that France would accept President Hoover's proposal to reduce all armaments by one-third if political guarantees were forthcoming.

The French reply reveals that when the German note was handed to the French ambassador it was accompanied by a verbal warning that Germany intends to rearm on sea as well as on land. This, the French reply said, would upset the Washington and London naval treaty ratios.

Germany to Quit Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Chancellor von Papen declared tonight, after receiving the French reply to the German aide memoire on equality in armaments, that Germany will not attend the Geneva disarmament conference when it is resumed.

Declaring that the first five months of the disarmament conference brought Germany only bitter disappointment, the chancellor asked:

"What has become of the excellent proposal of the President of the United States? It was greeted with fine words, but actually was passed over, showing that the other nations were unwilling to accept the armament regulations imposed upon us. Henceforth the question of our equality must be brought to a decision. We cannot participate further in the disarmament conference until it is settled to our satisfaction."

U. S. Arms Delegation Broke.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—Lack of money is handicapping the American disarmament delegation. This came out when the United States failed to send any one to the meeting of the disarmament conference's commission on limitation of budgetary expenditure scheduled here today. The meeting was informally postponed until Thursday in order to give Germany, which also failed to come, more time to study the French reply and decide whether it will participate in future work of the conference.

The unexpected absence of the United States caused inquiries which brought the explanation that the American appropriation was almost exhausted. The delegation "is watching every cent" in order to be able to carry on at all until congress meets in December.

The American delegation, once forty-two strong, has now been reduced to three.

VON PAPEN RULE VOTED DOWN, BUT HE STAYS ON JOB

Reichstag Refuses to Be Ended by Decree.

the vote. Von Papen's allies, the Nationalists, had announced they would protest and make it possible for Von Papen to speak. But they were silent.

A Nazi leaped up and asked for a half hour's recess. Von Papen did not use this half hour to inform Goering of his desire to speak and his Nationalist supporters did not protest the communist action as they had promised.

When the session reopened Von Papen entered a few minutes late, brandishing the red portfolio containing the dissolution decree like a club. He was so busy brandishing the portfolio that he did not hear the speaker's words—"Since no protest was lodged against the communist motion we will proceed to take a vote."

Von Papen leaped to his feet and demanded to be heard.

"We are now taking a vote," Goering replied. "I cannot interrupt the counting."

Von Papen's face was ashen with rage. He again demanded to speak, but Goering disregarded him. The chancellor pulled a white sheet from the red folder and attempted to hand it to Goering. The speaker rejected it and turned to the reichstag.

"The vote now being taken is for the revocation of the emergency decrees of the Von Papen government and for a vote of nonconfidence in the Von Papen cabinet," he said.

Cabinet Walks Out.

Von Papen and his cabinet marched out.

After announcing the result of the vote Goering picked up the dissolution decree left on his desk by the chancellor an dread it. The decree was sifined by Von Hindenburg, Von Papen, and Baron von Galy.

"An overwhelming majority of the reichstag has expressed a lack of confidence in the Von Papen cabinet," the speaker said. "After the motion of nonconfidence was carried, this cabinet, according to the provisions of the constitution, must resign. Consequently a decree countersigned by an overthrown cabinet is not valid."

Government officials protested that Goering's failure to grant Von Papen permission to speak was a breach of the constitution.

"There is no parliament in the world where the counting of votes can be interrupted with a speech," Goering said tonight. "Von Papen had ample time to ask to speak.

Will Ask Impeachment.

"In the course of the night several German states will ask the Supreme court to impeach Von Papen's government for violating the constitution. I shall write a letter to Von Hindenburg to draw his attention to the fact that an overwhelming majority of the reichstag distrust Von Papen. The reichstag will not endeavor to meet until the Supreme court decides the question of the legality of dissolution."

Von Papen exploited the conflict in the reichstag over the government controlled radio tonight.

"We are at the turning point of the century," he said. "The last fourteen years have shown that the Weimar constitution has weak spots which endanger the reich. The mission of this government is to eradicate these spots. It would not be fulfilling its duty if it yielded to demeratic law and allowed a government built through a parliamentary coalition of parties to succeed."

PROPOSES LEGION MAKE AIR MEET AN ANNUAL EVENT

Joseph de la Cour, commander of the Cook county council of the American Legion, yesterday said that the American Legion charity air meet at Sky Harbor on Sunday was so successful that he will urge the council to make it an annual event for Chicago. He plans to bring the proposal up for consideration by the executive committee at its next meeting.

Mr. de la Cour announced his plan after Capt. B. B. Lipsner, executive chairman of the meet committee, made a preliminary report to him on the cost of promoting and staging the meet. The gross cost, as determined by a certified public accountant of Lawrence Scudder & Co., was $1,967.47, covering about five months of promotion. That sum was covered by cash in the bank from advance ticket sales prior to the day of the meet, Capt. Lipsner said.

"I want to congratulate the committee on the show it put on," Mr. de la Cour said. "I am told that it excelled the National Air races in Cleveland for interest.

An Airplane Classic.

"Just as Indianapolis has its automobile races and Detroit its boat races, I believe Chicago should have its annual air classic, at which the newest and fastest planes may be seen and the world's most renowned pilots will fly. The American Legion is the logical civic agency to conduct such a classic.

"The interest in air races in Chicago was demonstrated by Sunday's attendance of more than 60,000. The Legion is interested in air racing not only from the show aspect, but from the national defense aspect as well, and would do well to establish an annual air racing meet under the direction of Maj. R. W. Schroeder, whose conduct of this meet was so remarkable."

The total net income of the air meet, which is to be devoted to unemployed veterans, will not be known until tomorrow or the next day, Capt. Lipsner said, since reports from the various posts on advance ticket sales are not in.

May Bring National Races.

Clifford W. Henderson, managing director of the National Air Races, Inc., recently held at Cleveland, arrived in Chicago yesterday to sound out local interest in bringing the national races to Chicago next year, it was learned. He was said to be impressed by the crowds at the Legion meet. Attendance at the national races this year was below previous years.

A TRIP THROUGH WIEBOLDT HALL
with Bill Dreyer
President, Commerce Club
"Just so that you may realize the unusual opportunities on the McKinlock Campus, come with me for a tour through Wieboldt Hall. This is the million dollar laboratory for business training, where over 7000 young men and women spend their spare evening hours studying business courses and profiting through University contacts.
As you enter the front door, wide and beautiful corridors extend a hospitable welcome. Unusually attractive lecture rooms—memorials to prominent industrial leaders of Chicago—the James B. Forgan Room of Finance, the Clement Studebaker Room of Manufacturing, the John G. Shedd Room of Merchandising—are to be seen. As you approach the marble stairway you glimpse the Commerce Book Store. At the top of this stairway you find yourself in the Joseph Schaffner Library of Commerce—a beautiful and commodious reading room with thousands of references and textbooks at your disposal.
Up another flight of steps—of course, you can take the elevator if you desire—you find the comfortable, homey clubrooms of the Lydians and Commerce Club. The latter is reserved for male students, the former for the fair sex. Here is where you will enjoy yourself before and after class periods. Comfortable chairs, radios, pianos, current magazines, games—all for relaxation. And both clubs have the knack of sponsoring varied social activities throughout the year, which are known for their "good-time-was-had-by-all" spirit.
I could take you on through the remaining four floors of Wieboldt Hall, to point out the Bureau of Business Research, the Institute for Economic Research, the forty or more modern classrooms and lecture rooms—even up to the sixth floor where the executive and general offices are located—but why don't you come down and get acquainted yourself? You will be convinced that evening students enjoy every advantage of this great university—social, cultural and educational.
The fall term begins September 21st. Now is the time to register. Visit the club rooms and look up the representative of the Commerce Club or the Lydians after you register."

GREET CERMAK ON ARRIVAL IN NEW YORK TODAY

Szymczak and 15 Chicago Officials to Meet Him.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 12.—[Special.]—A group of fifteen Chicago officials arrived in New York this afternoon to welcome Mayor Cermak back from Europe and outline plans for a civic reception in Chicago.

Mayor Cermak, who has been visiting his native Czechoslovakia, will arrive on the steamship Bremen late tomorrow afternoon after a stormy voyage. The Chicago delegation, made up of fifteen political leaders, has chartered a yacht and will meet the mayor at quarantine, take him from the liner, and escort him to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. The Chicago mayor will remain in New York until Wednesday afternoon, taking time to call upon New York bankers in an effort to sell city tax anticipation warrants.

Will Call on Bankers.

City Controller M. S. Szymczak, a member of the welcoming party, will accompany Mayor Cermak on his visits to the New York bankers. The plans for the trip down the bay to greet the returning mayor were arranged here this afternoon by County Commissioner Charles A. Weber, who toured Europe with Mr. Cermak, returning ahead of the official party.

Regret was expressed this afternoon by members of the Chicago delegation that Mayor Cermak would arrive too late to call upon Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate. An engagement with Gov. Roosevelt had been tentatively arranged for this afternoon, but stormy weather delayed the arrival of the Bremen and the meeting had to be canceled, as the New York governor left tonight on his speaking tour which will take him to the Pacific coast and back.

Judge Harry M. Fisher and Patrick A. Nash, Cook county chairman of the national Democratic committee, who came here to meet Mayor Cermak, were enthusiastic about Gov. Roosevelt's chances in the middle west.

Ask Many Questions.

Both Judge Fisher and Mr. Nash asked more questions than they answered. They were particularly interested in the New York mayoralty tangle and its effect on the Democratic presidential prospects.

Mr. Szymczak talked with Mayor Cermak soon after he arrived at his hotel and said the radio telephone connection had been perfect. The mayor told him the crossing had been stormy and the boat would be late in reaching port.

Commissioner Weber, who was with the Chicago mayor on a part of his European tour, said that the Chicago executive was in splendid health and that the trip had done him a world of good. Mr. Weber was enthusiastic about the receptions accorded Mr. Cermak abroad.

Among those in the welcoming party were Judge Fisher, Mr. Nash, Controller Szymczak, Mr. Weber, E. J. Kelly, president of the south park board; Mathias Bauler, district leader from the 43d ward; Joseph B. McDonough, county treasurer; Peter Carey, president of the Board of Trade; Tom Nash, attorney for the county treasurer; Ald. Henry Sonnenschein; Ald. Joseph Bowler, Ald. John Toman, Commissioner E. D. Denemark, and Robert Sweitzer, county clerk.

ENDS OWN LIFE

CITY HALL PLANS TO GREET MAYOR WITH SPEECHES

Plans for a public recepton for Mayor Cermak on his return to Chicago Thursday were announced yesterday by Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, who has charge of the arrangements. The mayor is scheduled to arrive at the La Salle street station at 1 p. m. He will go to the La Salle street entrance of the city hall, where a platform is to be constructed for the speakers and the welcoming committees.

Five welcoming committees, representing the Century of Progress, the mayor's advisory committee, labor organizations, the Democratic political organization and the Chicago Association of Commerce, have been appointed. The speakers were announced as Col. Sprague, Rufus C. Dawes, County Recorder Smith, and Sewell L. Avery.

"This welcoming has no political significance," said Col. Sprague. "It is being given to show our appreciation for the work he has done in Europe on behalf of the Century of Progress and in representing Chicago in its true light."

LEG FRACTURED, BOY CRAWLS 4 MILES FOR HELP

Sheridan, Wyo., Sept. 12.—(AP)—While alone in the Wolf mountains, Edward Garrett, 17, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg. He crawled 32 hours to reach the nearest ranch house, four miles from the spot where he was injured in a fall from a horse.

All Saturday night and until late Sunday night the Sheridan high school student crawled along, a few feet at a time, until he finally reached the Bar V ranch of State Senator Willis M. Spear.

From the ranch he was brought to a hospital here, where his condition remained uncertain today due to the danger of infection.

DR. POLING HUNTS FOR ROBINS, BUT DOUBTS HE'S HERE

Discounts Statements of Reformer's Friends.

The search for Raymond Robins, prohibition advocate and reformer, who has been missing more than a week, continued fruitless yesterday. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, New York dry leader who flew here from Portland, Ore., to aid in the search, discounted reports that he had been in Chicago.

Dr. Poling, who had lunch with Robins on Sept. 3, the day before he disappeared in New York, failing to keep an appointment with President Hoover in Washington, interviewed several friends of Robins who reported they had seen him in the loop last Thursday.

May Go on to New York.

"Although my investigation has not been completed, I am satisfied from the accounts of those to whom I have talked that Col. Robins was not in Chicago," said Dr. Poling. "I shall continue my investigation, but if I don't learn anything definite tomorrow I probably shall go on to New York, where he disappeared."

Dr. Poling communicated by long distance telephone with Mrs. Robins at Southwest Harbor, Me., but she could tell him nothing of value. Mrs. Robins, Dr. Poling said, still clung to the belief that her husband had bene kidnaped by rum runners in retaliation for his activities against a bootlegging ring on the west coast of Florida.

"Col. Robins has received many threats," said Dr. Poling, "but I think it more probable that he is suffering from a temporary illness, amnesia."

Discounts Amnesia Theory.

The amnesia theory was discounted by Dr. Henry C. Fleming of New York, who said the missing reformer was in the best of health and had never shown any symptoms of this illness.

Rumors that Col. Robins had been seen in various sections of the country were investigated without avail yesterday. In Boston the police, at the request of the federal department of justice, inquired at all lodging houses and shelters for homeless men. In Memphis a man claiming to be "Col. Robins" brought an excited call from Chief of Police Lee to Dr. Poling, but it was learned that he in no way answered Robins' description. In New York, police were closely scrutinizing all men found dead and Chicago police were asked to send Robins' dental chart by air mail. The Chicago police were informed that his dentist was Dr. Arthur D. Black.

Greeted by Friend.

The latest person to report having seen Robins in Chicago is Romaz F. Deuther, a friend of the missing man. He said he saw Robins leaving the Chicago Temple building Thursday morning, the same day on which four others said they saw him.

'I greeted him by name and he nodded, but walked on," said Deuther.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The bite of a spider proved fatal here today to Harry M. Johnson Jr. of Steubenville, O. The youth was bitten last week while driving from his home to Annapolis, where he planned to enter the Severn school and prepare for entrance to the Naval academy.

NEW N. Y. MAYOR ASKS COURTS TO FORBID ELECTION

McKee Claims Right to Another Year.

New York Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Mayor Joseph V. McKee moved today to strengthen his grip upon his office and at the same time widened the breach between himself and Tammany Hall and its allies.

The new mayor challenged the plan of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, and his colleagues to run former Mayor James J. Walker, or possibly a compromise candidate by starting a suit to test the legality of the projected mayoralty election in November.

He declared war on Tammany by removing from office Thomas F. Dwyer, commissioner of public markets and appointee of former Mayor Walker, and by appropriating Tammany's 18 karat campaign plank—the 5 cent fare.

Ready to Resist Tammany.

Mr. McKee's action confirmed the impression that he is determined to resist, with the backing of Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx and stanch supporter of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, any move by Curry and his allies to push him aside and install a mayor of their choice in city hall for the rest of the Walker term.

Although the suit to test the legality of the projected mayoralty election was brought as a taxpayers' action, Mr. McKee disclosed that it was brought at his suggestion and in his behalf. He said he had been advised by his former law partner, Harold R. Medina, who represented the petitioner, that the election would not be legal. If Mr. Medina was correct, Mr. McKee added, he felt it would be an unjustifiable waste of the taxpayers' money to have the election held.

Claims Balance of Term.

He contends that he is the legal mayor until the term for which Walker was elected expires on Dec. 31, 1933, and that no election can be held until November, 1933.

In ousting Dwyer, Mayor McKee made good his threat to fire the personal appointee of former Mayor Walker, if the commissioner failed to present a plan for cutting down the maintenance expenses of the Bronx terminal market within striking distance of the income from that $19,000,000 Hylan built project. The pay roll and other maintenance expenses are $162,455 and the income up to August of this year a little more than $13,000.

The new mayor took still another action calculated to embarrass Tammany. He ordered Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney to abolish slot machine gambling. The police promptly destroyed 650 machines seized in recent raids.

The initiation ceremony took place Saturday at Wakpala, S. D., while Whealan was en route to the American Legion convention in Portland, Ore.

EX-COP INVENTS A TEAR GAS GUN FOR THE WRIST

A new type of tear gas gun, small enough to be concealed in a coat sleeve but reputedly of sufficient power to rout a whole gang of pay roll bandits, was demonstrated yesterday at the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory.

A retired policeman, Elmer Carlstrom of 665 West 63d street, is the inventor of the pistol. It clamps to the wrist in the same fashion as a strap watch. A fine wire leads from the trigger to a ring in the middle finger. An uplifting of the arm and a flick of the finger are sufficient to discharge the tear gas.

Calvin Goddard, director of the crime detection laboratory, demonstrated the pistol before a dozen persons. One charge of the gas was enough to keep all the witnesses choking for fifteen minutes. The pistol is designed for protection of bank and money messengers.

TIME AND TIDE WAIT FOR NO ONE!

There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which taken at the flood leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries.

"JULIUS CAESAR" Act 4

YOU wouldn't book passage for Europe on a ship left stranded on the flats by the tide. No matter how fine she once looked at the dock, she's no longer transportation when she's run hard aground. And if her engines aren't strong enough to pull her off the shoals, churning the bottom won't move her ahead.

Left stranded by the flood of events that swept over America following the war, some Chicago newspapers are reminders that time and tide wait for no one.

To grow, a newspaper must keep up with the times. If it fails to note and understand and act upon the new forces, the new ideas, which move the public, which lift people out of deep habit and swing them into new channels, a newspaper loses favor, prestige, influence.

During the past fifteen years while Chicago and suburbs increased so tremendously, those newspapers which didn't give people what they wanted failed or faded. They don't deliver today the reader interest, the reader response, the coverage which a market this large requires.

In 1917 the Daily News was at its zenith. It had 57 per cent coverage of Chicago and suburbs. Today it has 35 per cent.

The American in 1917 had a city and suburban coverage of 42 per cent. It now has 40 per cent.

Clinging to an obsolete opinion of what constitutes news, doesn't get by with the public. A newspaper can't run counter to the reader's demand for prompt reporting and honest treatment of the news.

Only by getting and printing the real news, promptly and accurately, can a newspaper become a vital and necessary part of the life of its community.

Only by competent, comprehensive observation and intelligent, unbiased presentation of facts can a newspaper hold and get circulation.

Readers buy newspapers to keep up on the news. They want it while it is fresh, not history. They want it truthfully reported, not garbled to suit the purposes of some individual or organization. They want important news in detail, not sketchy bulletins. They want interestingly written accounts by trained reporters, not boilerplate rewrites of reports turned in by inexperienced, part-time correspondents.

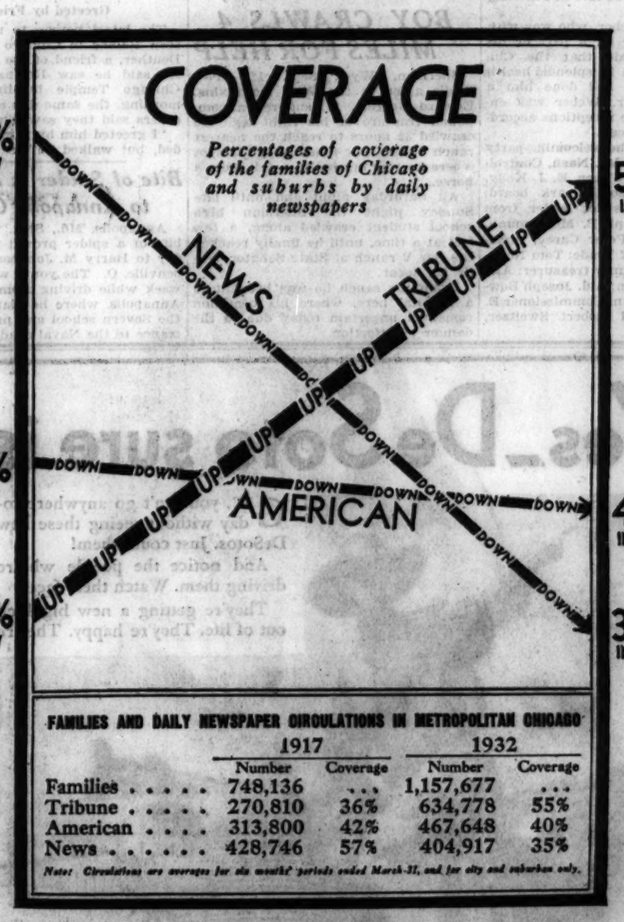
They demand this service and unless they get it from a newspaper, they stop reading it. Consciously or unconsciously, readers spot bias, insincerity, publicity writeups, rehashes—any reduction in the quality and quantity of news. They may not write about it to the editors but their disapproval shows up in the circulation records.

You can't gull the public by minimizing news in a newspaper. You've got to print it, all of it, when readers want it, as they want it. And no newspaper which makes a brag out of bias or economy or cheapness satisfies readers.

Because the Tribune kept up with its community, it is the only Chicago newspaper which delivers real coverage of this market. In 1917 it had 36 per cent daily coverage of Chicago and suburbs. Today it has 55 per cent.

The Tribune does not stint in covering the news in this or foreign countries. It employs a highly trained staff to run down and get the real news. It does not print handouts or propaganda. It curries no favor with officialdom. It prints the truth without fear or favor.

Today, because the Tribune delivers the news, it is the most popular newspaper in all parts of Chicago and suburbs and in every level of family life of interest to advertisers. It reaches 36 per cent more families than read any other Chicago newspaper—practically as many as are reached by any two other Chicago newspapers combined.



FAMILIES AND DAILY NEWSPAPER CIRCULATIONS IN METROPOLITAN CHICAGO

News	428,746	57%	404,917	35%

Note: Circulations are averages for six months' periods ended March 31, and for city and suburbs only.

After all, when you plan to put over an idea or product in a market this big, you don't get the business that is out by picking known failures. To get volume of sales you need coverage. The only Chicago newspaper which has it is the Chicago Tribune.

Ask a Tribune man for further facts and about the new discounts which mean more sales at lower cost.

LEGISLATORS RAP R. F. C. CHIEF FOR DECLINING VISIT

Pomerene Is Blamed for Special Session.

The refusal of Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to appear before the Illinois general assembly which reconvenes in special session today, may bring some harsh words down about the ears of the former Ohio senator.

E. J. SCHNACKENBERG.

"He had said he was willing to appear," said Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, "and that voluntary statement on his part prompted my resolution inviting him to Springfield.

"We had hoped to hear from him just what the federal corporation demands of Illinois as proof that the state has exhausted its resources for relief and just what the state could expect from the federal government after it has done its best.'

"Now we are left as much in doubt as ever. And we understand it was Chairman Pomerene himself who laid down the law to the representatives of Illinois when they asked for the advance of additional funds. That being the case, it is he who should tell us exactly what is expected of the state."

There were other assemblymen who appeared to feel much the same way toward Pomerene.

"We are informed that the chairman of the corporation assumed a dictatorial attitude toward Corporation Counsel Sexton, who represented both the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and Mayor Cermak, and toward DeWitt Billman, the official representative of Gov. Emmerson," said one of them.

"He ordered them to go back to Illinois and see that a special session of the legislature was held before they presented their request. That is the real reason for the special session. Otherwise it would not have been held since the prospect of its accomplishing anything substantial has been slim from the start and is growing slimmer every week."

Pomerene Sends Regrets.

While this heat was developing in the local situation Chairman Pomerene at Washington made public the text of identical telegrams which he sent to Gov. Emmerson, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, president of the senate; and Speaker David E. Shanahan of the house.

"I have delayed answering until this morning," ran these messages, "hoping I might be able to accept. Official duties require my constant presence here. I regret therefore that I must decline, much as I would personally like to attend.

"I am certain the governor and the general assembly of Illinois will work this problem out to the entire satisfaction of all."

Discuss Housing Bills.

A score of social service workers conferred yesterday with Senator Thomas J. Courtney to enlist his support for the housing commission bills. With Courtney were Senator Richey V. Graham and Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, Joseph L. Ratcgan, John R. McSweeney and Benjamin S. Adamowski. Among the social workers present were Dr. Graham Taylor, Mrs. Murray Nelson, Miss Mary McDowell, and Mrs. Esther Kohn.

Harry Stickney, president of the Cook County Retail Grocers' and Butchers' association, announced that the organization will oppose any sales tax which will place on the retailers the burden of collecting the levy. He said it should be placed on the wholesalers and distributors.

State Authorizes Extension of Irving Park Pavement

The state department of public works yesterday authorized the construction by Cook county of 4.2 miles of 20 foot concrete paving on Irving Park boulevard from Bartlett road to the city limits of Elgin. The contract calls for expenditure of $205,929 from the state aid fund. The highway, when completed, will provide a second route between Chicago and Elgin, entering the latter city a mile north of the present Lake street road, which is state route 5.

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—Winston Churchill, British statesman, was stricken with paratyphoid and was taken to a sanitarium at Salzburg, today. Doctors reported that it was only a light attack and that their patient was progressing nicely. Mr. Churchill arrived at Salzburg four days ago after an automobile trip through Bavaria. It is believed he drank bad water there.

BUTTER AND EGG MEN FIGHT FARM BOARD MEDDLING

Protest Competition by Government.

New York, Sept. 12.—[Special.]—The grievances of butter and egg distributors and artificial limb manufacturers against the federal government were taken up today by the congressional committee investigating the interference of the federal government with private business at a hearing in the federal building.

The committee, which consists of five congressmen, is headed by Joseph B. Shannan of Missouri and was created under house resolution 235.

States Case for Dealers.

Charles F. Droste, president of the New York Mercantile exchange, stated the case for the butter and egg men.

"The federal farm board with its affiliated organizations is one of the most outstanding examples of government competition with private business," Mr. Droste declared. "We desire to register our strenuous objections to the use of federal funds raised by taxation to promote cooperative associations and drive the regular distributors out of business.

"We are unalterably opposed to the financial provisions of the agricultural marketing act and ask its immediate repeal. We are also opposed to the present operation of the federal farm board.

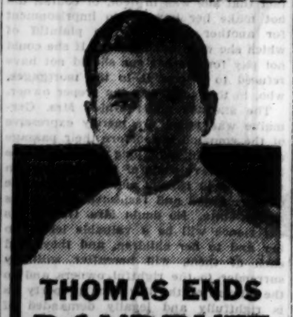
"We respectfully submit that, as far as butter, eggs and cheese are concerned, immediate steps be taken to entirely eliminate any special privileges through the use of government money in the marketing of these products."

Equality of Opportunity.

"We only ask from the government that the independent merchant has equality of opportunity," Mr. Droste said. "The government is now in competition with its own citizens."

George E. Marks, president of A. A. Marks, Inc., manufacturers of artificial limbs, objected to the operation by the government of an artificial limb factory in The Bronx.

Mr. Marks said the government had "entered the leg business" to supply limbs to ex-service men, causing loss of trade to private manufacturers.



THOMAS ENDS DANDRUFF GROWS HAIR

Dandruff clogs the hair follicle, causes itchy scalp, falling hair, and keeps new hair from replacing hair which has dropped out. Because there are several types of dandruff, cure-all surface remedies usually do not correct the trouble. One of the most dangerous types of dandruff is caused by a germ deep in the scalp, known as "flask bacilli of Unna."

Thomas treatment attacks this destructive germ by modern therapeutic agents and restores the scalp to a normal healthy condition. When your scalp is once rid of baldness producing germs, hairfall stops, and new hair starts to grow again. Call at a Thomas office today for a free scalp examination and learn for yourself just how Thomas treatment can make your scalp healthy.

An historic portrait, it was announced yesterday, has been acquired by Joseph Field, 5300 Sheridan road, son of Stanley Field. It is George Washington's favorite portrait of himself, painted by Gilbert Stuart. The picture now hangs above the buffet in the dining room of Mr. and Mrs. Field. It was preferred by George and Martha Washington as the best of a number of portraits painted by Stuart, and it was presented by the first President to the Jacobs family in whose possession it remained for 125 years.

Mrs. George Washington Jacobs Jr., a member of the family, sketched the history of the picture in a letter which accompanied the portrait to Chicago and is now in possession of its new owners. Gen. Washington presented the painting to the first Jacobs owner in gratitude for supplies furnished to his troops during the revolution.

Back to Valley Forge.

"The portrait was given by Gen. Washington to my husband's great-grandfather, John Jacobs, 1757-1846, of Chester county, Pa.," reads Mrs. Jacobs' letter written three years ago. "Over a hundred years ago the family built a mansion, 'Summit Hall,' where the portrait hung until I brought it here [Norristown, Pa.] and sold it. The Jacobs estate is some 18 miles from Valley Forge, and Gen. Washington rode down on various occasions to spend the night there.

"Since this friendship with Gen. Washington there has always been a Jacobs named for him, my husband being the last."

A Familiar Portrait.

Three types of portraits of Washington were painted by Stuart; the Vaughan, the Lansdowne and the Athenaeum. The Field picture is of the latter type, which is by far the most familiar, being the one that appears on postage stamps. The Vaughan type shows the right side of the face, whereas the Athenaeum is of the left side. The Landsdowne is a full length portrait.

G. M. Hecksober of New York, for whom the painting was purchased from Mrs. Jacobs by Jonce I. McGurk, a consulting expert of the Smithsonian institution and the National Gallery of Art, is reported to have paid $80,000 for it.

It was sold by him to the New York dealers from whom Joseph Field bought it.

SEEKS DIVORCE

Mitchell D. Follansbee Jr., 29 East Schiller street, was sued for divorce in St. Louis yesterday by Mrs. Katherine Y. Morton Follansbee, St. Louis heiress. Mrs. Follansbee charges her husband deserted her in 1931 and returned to Chicago.

Her husband is the son of Attorney Mitchell D. Follansbee, past president of the Chicago Bar association and member of the board of overseers of Harvard university. Mrs. Follansbee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stratford Lee Morton.

The Follansbees were married March 2, 1929, after a campus romance at the University of Arizona, where he studied anthropology following his graduation from Harvard. Mrs. Follansbee had previously eloped with another St. Louis social registerite, Robert McKittrick Johnes II., in 1927. The marriage was annulled by her parents because she was only 16 years old.

JEAN HARLOW TO FINISH PICTURE; BACK IN STUDIO

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Jean Harlow decided that her work meant surcease from her grief, and the film siren made an unexpected appearance at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio today and requested the studio to go ahead and use her for scenes in her incomplete motion picture.

Her appearance at the studio was her first since her husband, Paul Bern, executive for that film corporation, took his own life by shooting in a not yet explained tragedy Sept. 5. Miss Harlow appeared at the studio wearing widow's weeds. She asked for Irving Thalberg, official at the studio, and told him:

"Got to Get Busy."

"This staying around the house is driving me crazy. I've got to get busy. I want to get absorbed in something to get this terrible thing off my mind."

Miss Harlow conferred with Victor Fleming and Thalberg, accepted the few words of sympathy expressed by associates in her picture cast, including Mary Astor, Clark Gable, Donald Crisp, Tully Marshall and Gene Raymond, and stepped back out of the real life of tragedy into the role of a filmland siren.

Miss Harlow's decision to return to work was made which reversed an earlier announcement by Marino Bello, her stepfather and counselor, stating the actress would retire from Hollywood for a short time to rest.

Denies Visiting Woman.

The actress interrupted her resumption of film work long enough to deny that her visit to San Francisco, Aug. 18 had anything to do with the presence there of Dorothy Millette, her predecessor in Bern's affections who, according to Bern's relatives, was merely linked to Bern by an early love affair, but who according to others, had really wed Bern.

"I made no effort to see Miss Millette in San Francisco for the simple reason at that time I had no idea Miss Dorothy Millette existed," the film star said. "I knew absolutely nothing of Paul's alleged interest in her until I read about it in the newspapers.

"My trip to San Francisco was merely for a vacation and to buy some new fall clothes."

Miss Harlow's insistence that she knew nothing of Miss Millette's place in her husband's prior life was at variance with previously reported statements of Paul Bern's brother, Henry Bern, who said the dead man had informed Miss Harlow at the time of his marriage to her last July 2.

Continue Hunt For Body.

Meanwhile, the Sacramento river was being dragged in search for the body of Miss Millette, who disappeared, partly clothed, from her stateroom in a river steamboat the day after Paul Bern committed suicide.

Jury Starts Investigation of Tazewell Jail Death

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Inquest in the death of Martin Virant, murder witness found dead in his cell in the Tazewell county jail, will not be held for several days. The Tazewell county grand jury began its investigation of the case today. C. O. Skinner, deputy sheriff, held on a murder charge in connection with Virant's death, is free on $20,000 bonds.

Argentina Plans to Join League Again; 'Fight Force'

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Saavedra Lamas told the senate tonight that Argentina soon would return to the league of nations, where she would present the principle of "force does not give rights." She quit the league in 1920.

FIND NO NEW TRACE OF MISSING PRIEST AND GIRL TEACHER

Ottawa, Ill., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—For seven days Sheriff E. J. Welter has pushed forward a search for Miss Colette Haley, 21, Streator teacher, and the Rev. William Courtney, 40, Alexis Catholic priest, without being able to locate the pair. Father Courtney disappeared after leaving Ottawa in a borrowed auto last Tuesday at noon. Two hours later Miss Haley vanished from the rural school she was teaching, 8 miles west of Streator.

Members of the Haley family, who have caused a warrant to be issued for the priest's arrest, claim he kidnaped Colette.

"The sheriff believes the pair may be hitch hiking through the country, as a man and girl answering their description were seen on country roads not far from the scene of the kidnaping Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. They said they were en route to Texas. The car in which Father Courtney left Ottawa was found abandoned on a lone woods road two days after the alleged kidnaping.

ARRAIGN SOCIETY THREAT WRITER ON U. S. CHARGE

Rudolph Diez, arrested Saturday on the charge of sending extortion letters to the fathers of four society brides, was arraigned yesterday under the new federal statute forbidding the mailing of such threats. The law, passed as a result of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, provides a maximum penalty of twenty years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Federal officials will not prosecute Diez' wife, Bertha, but state prosecutors will proceed against her. She and her husband, before their appearance at the federal building, were arraigned yesterday before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston, on charges of extortion by threat. Each was held in $10,000 bond, and they were committed to jail when they were unable to furnish bond.

Edwin M. Ashcraft Jr., 1144 Asbury avenue, Evanston, wealthy lawyer whose daughter, Ann, was married Saturday to Raymond Otis Mitchell of Minneapolis, was the complainant in both the state and the federal cases. Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston said that the other three fathers who received threatening notes supposedly written by Diez will appear as witnesses for the prosecution. They are William S. Miller, 847 Spruce street, Winnetka, vice president of the Northern Trust company; Ernest High Noyes, 1242 Lake Shore drive; and George B. Harrington, 232 East Walton place, president of a coal company.

Mrs. Diez became hysterical following her appearance before Magistrate Porter. She threw herself to the courtroom floor screaming "I didn't do anything. I didn't do anything." Police removed her from the room.

Following the Evanston hearing, Diez and his wife were taken to the federal building, where he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Bond was fixed at $10,000 and the case was continued until next Monday.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MORE ABOUT THE BONUS MARCHERS.

The President and Attorney General Mitchell have joined in issuing a statement regarding the bonus marchers. Evidence is presented to show that the marchers included more than a few communist agitators and a considerable number of ne'er-do-wells. Of close to 5,000 who applied to the government for loans to pay their fares home, more than 1,000 had police records, according to the bureau of criminal identification, and more than 800 had been convicted.

It is a matter for regret that the government has been as slow as it has in presenting its evidence. Meanwhile a myth has taken root in this country to the effect that the bonus marchers were slaughtered by the regular army. The fact is that the two men who were killed were shot in an encounter with the civil police, who also suffered casualties in the mêlée. Later the regulars were called for. The infantry appeared in overwhelming force, supported by cavalry and tanks. The soldiers dispersed the bonus marchers without further bloodshed.

The army has been criticized severely for making so great a show of force. That happens to be one of the aspects of the matter about which there should be no conflict of opinion. Once the army was summoned, the advisability of its appearing on the scene in overwhelming strength is obvious. The certain way to avoid bloodshed was to make any resistance on the part of the bonus army seem obviously futile. A much smaller force of regulars without cavalry and without tanks could have forced the marchers to evacuate their two camps, but it is open to question whether a smaller force would have accomplished its purpose without a struggle.

DRIVING JOBS OUT OF WISCONSIN.

The futility of trying to help the jobless by artificial employment schemes paid for by taxes that strangle industry and impoverish citizens was vividly exposed by the announcement of the removal from Janesville, Wis., of the Chevrolet Motor and the Fisher Body plants. These concerns are to leave Wisconsin because they are no longer able to operate there profitably under the tax policy of the administration.

Former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, who is running again for the Republican nomination for governor, pointed out in his Madison speech that one year's normal operation of the two Janesville plants at forty hours a week gave more employment than the La Follette railroad crossover program has in its entire fifteen months of operation.

Incidentally, Mr. Kohler proved that the single plant of which he is the head had provided two and a half times the work created in the last year by the expensive grade crossing program.

The unemployment commission reports that 1,400 men worked on the grade separation scheme. The money to pay them came from an additional tax of 2 cents per gallon on gasoline, making the present state tax 4 cents per gallon. Wisconsin motorists pay, in addition, a high annual license fee and a ton mile tax for trucks.

The doubling of the gasoline tax was at once reflected in a reduction in the number of automobiles licensed to operate. People who owned cars stored them or refused to buy new ones. The fear that taxation would make operation too expensive deterred many prospective buyers, and the imposition of the federal tax on gasoline, oil, tires, and new cars discouraged others. In 1930 more than 700,000 cars were licensed in Wisconsin. This year there have been 562,000.

Wisconsin has built thousands of miles of good roads and seventy-two of the toniest railroad crossing elevations any one ever saw and is doing its best to keep its people from using any of them.

The taxes were laid without apparent regard to the fact that the manufacture of motor vehicles was in 1929 the first manufacturing activity in the state, while the manufacture of bodies and parts was seventh. The vast plan to put 1,400 men to work endangered the employment of all of the men employed in these industries as well as the men working in filling stations, garages, tire repair and sales stations, and automobile salesrooms all over the state.

Mr. Nash has never talked publicly of taking his great factories out of the state, although inducements have been offered him. His withdrawal would be a vital blow to Kenosha, Racine, and Milwaukee, where he is among the largest employers of men.

The removal of the two plants from Janesville, if there were no others, would more than offset all of the jobs given by the governor's ambitious plan. These two plants, in addition to giving work to around 1,400 men regularly, paid approximately $400,000 a year in state taxes. When they go, this tax must be spread among those who remain, including any of the 1,400 former employes who are not able to go along.

The loss of these two important industrial institutions is too much for Wisconsin to pay for whatever political prestige may have come to Gov. La Follette for the overhead crossings which now span the grass grown tracks in some parts of Wisconsin, an everlasting monument to the unknown taxpayer.

THE POST-CONGRESSIONAL RECOVERY.

In the month of August the value of shares listed on the New York Stock exchange increased more than 7 billion dollars. The total value of the listed shares on Sept. 1 was more than 27 billion dollars, about equal to their value at the time congress went to work at the beginning of the year.

While congress was in session the capital value of only the listed corporations shrank by 12 billion dollars. The owners of a corporation worth a million dollars when congress started to work possessed something worth only $600,000 when congress adjourned. Then the tide turned. All sorts of explanations have been offered to account for the rise which began in June, but the adjournment of congress is the obvious one and the one which those who have watched events closely in the last year will be satisfied is the true explanation.

It was not so much what congress did, though that was bad enough, as what congress threatened to do. The craziest schemes for punitive taxation were given serious consideration. The tax bill which was passed remains as a bar to a speedier recovery, but it is a sound measure in comparison with some of the proposals which came near to enactment, and which the country, almost until the day congress adjourned, had reason to fear would be enacted. The fear of ruinous taxes was coupled with the gravest doubts of congress' willingness to balance the budget, defeat the bonus, and safeguard the dollar. It was only after congress had adjourned that confidence in the future returned.

The striking characteristics of the last session were its lack of responsible leadership and the lack of self-discipline on the part of the individual members. Although the times were critical, the members seemed utterly unaware of the havoc they were causing. For their own political purposes they were shouting "Fire!" in a theater crowded with people already unnerved by the business depression. Only after that congress had adjourned could there be any basis for recovery.

PHOTOGRAPHS IN JAPAN.

The rumpus raised in Japan over the taking of photographs of Japanese industrial plants and harbor developments for an American international banking house is a suggestive minor episode of international relations. The excitement of the Japanese press will puzzle Americans, except a few tourists who have been in Japan and learned how strict Japanese regulations of the use of the camera are. They are military regulations in a country whose government is largely dominated by military ideas and standards and apparently always conscious of the possibilities of war.

The American people, who hardly know they have an army and who in spite of our experience think always of war as an improbability, if not an impossibility, cannot understand a national habit of mind, traditionally preoccupied with warfare as a principal aspect of national history, and, if we may trust appearances, not ready to relinquish it as an instrumentality of national policy, signatures to the Kellogg-Briand treaty notwithstanding. But making due allowance for the objects of internal politics, incidents like this press furor over the bank's photographs deserve American attention. Without exaggeration they ought to help us to interpret events in Japan and the trend of Japanese policy and to shape our own thought and conduct with more intelligence and foresight. Understanding is essential to the avoidance of collisions, though it does not insure it, and we have less understanding of Japan than of any western people. What seems to us supersensitive, unjustifiably suspicious, provocative or bellicose in the Japanese will take on a less sinister coloring if we take note of their history and culture.

There is another aspect of the photographing incident that is worth a little consideration. Does it not expose ignorance and tactlessness in our foreign enterprise? A concern doing business in Japan should be sufficiently aware of the Japanese point of view and conditions not to make such blunders. The photographing, it seems to us, reveals a rather stupid lack of preparedness for doing business with the Japanese. If our bankers are to invest American money and conduct American enterprise in foreign lands we could wish for them less assumption that our methods and standards, our customs and reactions are universal.

The Other Side

IT'S TOO BAD ABOUT POOR OLD CHICAGO.

[Wichita, Kas., Beacon.]

"The Unhappy State of Kansas." A doddering sage of the great TRIBUNE of Chicago weeps in his cups at his favorite speak, sadly contemplates the low ceiling of soot, smoke and despair that hangs like a pall over the second city of the land, and casts an envious, lugubrious eye to the distant west, meditating on the blessings which he has been denied, which are enjoyed in full measure by the progressive people of sunny Kansas, and pens a lament under the caption above.

"The unhappy state is stricken with a blight. With downcast eyes it plods to its destiny." He thus speaks of Kansas, shedding tears of crocodile dimensions which, dripping into his stein, flavor his favorite tipple with salty seasoning, quickening his thirst, inspiring him to wag a beckoning hand at the barkeep, mumbling fretfully, "Bring me 'nother one and put it on the cuff."

It is too bad about poor old Chicago. One was led to believe that that center of uplift where the arts of the racketeer and the machine gunner are essential to a finished education had sufficient troubles of her own without worrying herself sick over Kansas.

Poor old Chicago can't pay her teachers, her firemen and her policemen. Children of Chicago patriots are crying for food while their harassed papas are sobbing into their beer. Chicago has a bonded indebtedness comparable to the German national debt. Chicago citizens are awakened at dead of night by the shrill shouts of leather lunged newsboys crying their wares, extra editions affording a drowsy citizenry the intelligence of armed hoodlums in high powered cars speeding on missions of death.

"The Unhappy State of Kansas." Well, if Chicago can bear up under her troubles no doubt Kansas can do the same. The woes of Chicago are such that those of Kansas in comparison are joys unalloyed.

OBITER DICTUM.

Days of happiness,
Dreams of seductive glamour,
Nights of star glory,
The zest of youth . . .
Gone, say you? Not so!
They have been merely granted
Leave of absence
For a little space;
Eclipsed the while the moon
Of my misfortune
Darkens the sun of beauty;
Yet beauty never dies,
Suns always rise again
Blood-red from seas of gray,
Cold, yellow moons
Peer into mysteries
Which die with dawn,
Lips are still red, eyes blue,
And white flesh curves
Just as it did
Ten thousand years ago,
Green water curls beneath
The keels of cargo boats,
Palm trees still whisper,
Silver beaches dream,
Each spring the crocus blooms,
And lilacs come in May,
Music yet stirs the soul,
Snow-covered pines
Still point to God;
And there remains to me
My issue . . a high courage . .
Forgetfulness of past . . .
A will to dare and do . . .
Release from nagging tongue,
From putrid mind,
And lying treachery
Of silken lips . . .
Oh, well . . . and what is life
But this? . . . I wonder
At times if all this grief
Has been but just a tonic
To my pen!

PUNCH DRUNK.

ALTHOUGH Webster and Mencken fail to give the term punch drunk in their books, people seem to know about it. Prize fighters talk about it, the sporting columns of the newspaper refer to it, and at least one story on the subject has appeared in a magazine.

When the editor of this health column heard of the disease, well known to so many of the laity, he jumped to the conclusion that punch drunk was the fighter's name for temporary grogginess due to a hard blow. While that condition is not a drunk, in the sense of an alcohol or other drug drunk, yet it has some points of resemblance. The prize fighter who is dazed, but not knocked out, by a hard punch has poor control of his muscles, poor coördination, and poor orientation—in each case much like the effects of acute alcoholism. To this condition the term punch drunk could be applied with some logic.

However, when the prize fighter says a man is punch drunk he means that he has become insane in the course of a hard fighting career. The prize fighting fraternity think it is the result of being hit in the head often and hard. When asked for proof they will tell you of a half dozen prize fighters who have been thought to be mentally irresponsible at the end of their fighting careers, some of whom have ended up in insane asylums.

One physician, who was a prize fighter for several years in his youth, thought the trouble began as a disorder of the middle ear and extended to the brain. He said old prize fighters were generally rather deaf.

It is known that a person who has had a sunstroke is liable to develop a form of meningitis which causes him to have persistent headaches and, sometimes, to be peculiar. Death results eventually.

If this can happen as the result of one sunstroke why could not it, or something like it, follow repeated hard mauling of the head? The answer is that the symptoms of meningitis following sunstroke and the autopsy findings are well known, but no one has ever reported such symptoms in punch drunk, nor have there been any autopsy reports of such a pathology.

The story in the American Mercury, published last year, about a supposed punch drunk, described a type of insanity that a specialist would not give that name to. A young man, who may have been a precox case, or a high grade moron, who learned to be a prize fighter, handled himself pretty well in many fights, was often mauled badly, but whose worst wallop was that which his wife gave him when she turned gold digger, took his money, and ran away with another man. Our poor prize fighter had but a few ounces of brains and that small supply was addled by what he went through. A better diagnosis would have been—dementia precox with a breakdown due to domestic trials.

One man who spent years in the ring said the profession used the term as a way to let down easy those members who had lost their minds. They were not especially interested in the real cause. To charge it to hard fighting served very well so far as they were concerned, and that is about the fact. I don't know that any unusual number of fighters become insane. But if they do there is a better explanation than the head punches they get in fights. The causes lie outside of the ring instead of in it. The term should be shifted to the acute condition which now goes by the name, a groggy.

I read Menninger's "The Human Mind" and Myerson's "The Nervous Housewife." Now I have regained my interest in life and my emotional poise. I feel like I have taken a new lease on life.

1. No. However, quantity counts more than quality.
2. Sometimes.
3. About two.

MOTORCYCLING AND HEALTH.

E. G. writes: Is motorcycling detrimental to one's health? If so, in what way?

REPLY.

It is better than sitting indoors, but is not equal to other outings. The objections to it are the high accident rate, the exposure to gasoline fumes on crowded streets, and dirt on dusty roads. That is about all.

The advantage is that it keeps one in the open.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—[Friend of the People.]—After rainy days the alley in the rear of my home is in a terrible condition. This causes a strain on one's automobile when going through. I wonder if the city street department couldn't improve this with a few loads of cinders.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ATTORNEY AND ADMINISTRATOR.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two months ago my aunt died leaving a small estate of about $6,000. Prior to her death she had to have the services of an attorney, for which he charged an excessive fee. Before this occurrence and while she had confidence in him she had him write her will, naming my sister and me as heirs. She wanted a trust company named as executor, but he said they would not care to handle so small an estate and named himself without bond. 1. What is he permitted to charge for the administration of this estate, and if he should try to put in another excessive fee, what recourse would we have? 2. Now he claims that he is so busy it is necessary for him to have the services of another attorney in the handling of the estate. S. S. M.

1. We would say that a rough average would be 4 per cent.
2. We are not in a position to say how busy he is, but we would suspect that this claim is due to his having discovered the rule that where the administrator is an attorney and serves in both capacities he cannot recover both against the estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOT LIABLE.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a woman dies destitute, will a niece and nephews have to share burial expenses, etc., equally with her two brothers? J. O.

The answer is, No.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 13, 1916.

LONDON.—The French struck another swift blow north of the Somme. Gen. Foch's troops in a vigorous assault battered at the German four mile line from Combles to the river. Within an hour they had won an entire first line of the German trenches, taking more than 1,500 prisoners. The quickness of the French thrust took the enemy by surprise. Before the attack could be checked the pollus had reached the road from Bethune to Peronne, where they carried by storm a system of trenches which had been strongly fortified. By this stroke Gen. Foch has attained positions from which Peronne can be outflanked from the north. The British conquest of Ginchy—a loss which Berlin admits—opened the way for a push north. Peronne, an important position on the German second line, will then be caught in another of the pockets that have marked the progress of the allied offensive on the Somme.

VIENNA.—Gen. Pflanzer-Baltin has resigned from his command because of ill health and Emperor Francis Joseph has accepted his resignation. Recent reports were that Gen. Pflanzer-Baltin had been intrusted with the defense of Transylvania along the Rumanian frontier.

LONDON.—From Orsova, on the left flank, to Kavala, on the right, the entente armies made progress in the Balkan war theater. A late report says the Rumanians have occupied the island of Ada Kale, lying in the Danube opposite Orsova, near where Hungary and Rumania meet. The French war office announced the capture of enemy trenches on a two mile front to a depth of two miles in the region north of Marjadad. An official statement from Saloniki chronicles the capture of Yenimah by the French and British.

PETROGRAD.—New successes for the Russians in the Carpathians are announced. Several heights in the Bialy-Cheremosh region, near the Bukowina border, were taken and held, and Kapul mountain to the south also was captured, together with nearly one thousand prisoners.

NEW LONDON, Conn. — President Wilson decided tonight to return to his summer home at Long Branch, N. J., tomorrow. He was advised by physicians attending his sister, Mrs. Annie E. Howe, who is critically ill here, that she might linger in her present condition for several days. Her physicians advised the President that she will no longer be able to recognize him or comprehend his visits, as she must be kept almost constantly under the influence of opiates.

CHICAGO. — Mrs. Henry Chandler Egan announces her divorce from H. Chandler Egan on July 17. Mrs. Egan is glad to have it known now so as to relieve her of the embarrassment of having to answer the question: "And how is your husband?" The charge was desertion. Mr. Egan was the former western national and intercollegiate national golf champion. Mrs. Egan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McNally of Highland Park.

CHICAGO.—John A. King, for many years prominent in politics and finance and one time president of the Fort Dearborn National bank, died at 431 South Ashland boulevard, at the age of 82. He came to Chicago in 1861 and started a drug store which was burned out in the great fire. Later he acquired a controlling interest in the McAvoy Brewing company. He entered politics and was an important figure in the Democratic party. Another death of the day was that of Peter De Jonghe, one of the owners of the De Jonghe hotel and restaurant, who died at his residence, 4251 North Lincoln street. He had been in the restaurant and hotel business since 1892, when he and his two brothers and two sisters started a restaurant on the south side during the World's Fair. He was 52 years old.

JAILING FOR DEBT.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—In the issue of Sept. 1 appears the headline, "Judge Assails Law That Jails Woman for Debt," and the report beneath it begins as follows:

"Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday denounced as 'infamous' and 'a reversion to medieval England' the statutes under which the C. I. T. corporation, an automobile finance company, had held Mrs. Margaret Germaine, 34 years old, 2212 Craft street, in the county jail since Aug. 15 because she failed to pay a judgment on an automobile sales contract.

"The judge held, however, that under the law he had no jurisdiction to grant the writ of habeas corpus to free Mrs. Germaine."

And in the issue of Sept. 2 appears the headline, "Woman Held in Jail for Debt," beneath which is a picture of Mrs. Germaine and her two children.

It seems to me that these headlines and reports may cause readers to believe that a person may be imprisoned for debt in Illinois when in fact such a thing is forbidden by both the federal and state constitutions, and to the best of my knowledge has never been done in this country.

This afternoon I examined the file entitled "C. I. T. Corporation vs. Margaret Germaine, John Doe and Mary Roe," Municipal court No. 2702183, and find that the plaintiff filed against the defendants a replevin suit for a Buick sedan automobile, and that on Feb. 25, 1932, Deputy Bailiff Joseph Crawford made a return of the summons showing that he had served the writ upon Margaret Germaine and demanded of her that she give up the property, which she refused to do.

On March 17, 1932, the plaintiff filed an amended statement of claim with a count in trover, which showed that the plaintiffs had a mortgage upon the car which provided that in event of default under its terms the right to immediate possession of the automobile should vest in the plaintiff; that default occurred Dec. 10, 1931; and that demand was made of the defendant Feb. 22, 1932, that she surrender the car to plaintiffs, "but the defendant, intending to cheat and defraud the plaintiff, maliciously, tortiously, and fraudulently converted said automobile to her, the defendant's, use, to the damage of the plaintiff in the sum of $800."

And the records show that on April 4, 1932, a judgment was entered by Judge Hayes of the Municipal court, finding defendant guilty of conversion of the property described in plaintiff's statement of claims, and assessing plaintiff's damages at $700. And thereafter a capias adsatisfaciendum was issued for her arrest.

Thus the court records show that Mrs. Germaine was not jailed for debt, but for a tort, the wrongful conversion of property which she should have surrendered when it was demanded of her by either the owner or the deputy bailiff. The fact that she was in debt, of course, did not make her immune to imprisonment for another wrong to the plaintiff of which she was found guilty. If she could not pay for the car she should not have refused to deliver it to the mortgagee, who, in this case, was the proper owner.

The statutes under which Mrs. Germaine was jailed are merely expressive of the common law before their passage and, no doubt, will long continue to be law. We have some of the best laws in the world in Illinois and they should be duly regarded and respected by citizens of the state. No doubt Mrs. Germaine's experience will be a valuable lesson to her and to her children, and they, and each of them, will hereafter willingly surrender to the rightful owners and to the officers of the law such property as is rightfully and legally demanded of them. FORGOTTEN MEN.

Shortsville, N. Y., Sept. 5.—There isn't much difference between Prof. William Graham Sumner's "Forgotten Man" and Mr. Roosevelt's. Prof. Sumner was a bit conservative in his selection, while Mr. Roosevelt has in mind all those who are eligible to vote. O. S. RYAN.

PRURIENT INDIVIDUALS.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—The decent citizens of the country have been shocked and scandalized by the shameful scenes that have occurred in various courtrooms, not only here but elsewhere, during the trials of certain notorious murderers as well as in the hearings of divorce cases of individuals well known in social and film life. The things that have occurred have come as near as they possibly could to contempt of court. They have also contributed largely to the all too general disrespect of law. Prurient individuals, largely of the feminine sex, I am sorry to say, have stormed the entrances to the courts and filled the seating and standing capacities of the sanctums of the law. Many of these persons have brought with them their lunches in order that they might not miss one iota of the distressing and often revolting records of the trials. It seems to me this is a state of affairs that should not be tolerated. Guards at the doors should rigorously exclude every one not connected with the trials. Only those vitally concerned should be admitted. I even think that much of the sensational matter should also be excluded from the press reports of the cases. Not only would the dignity of the courtroom and presiding judge be thus protected, but the morbid appetite of the degenerate portion of the public would be curbed. Why do not our judges agree upon some such procedure as this?

PREJUDICE.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Two news items in this morning's TRIBUNE attract the eye of the colored reader. One has to do with the enforced segregation of colored delegates to the Tennessee convention of the American Legion; the other with the experience of Mrs. Adelaide Hall with her new neighbors in New York.

There is nothing unusual about such articles. They are typically American. If such happenings did not occur occasionally almost anywhere in the country we Americans of African extraction would begin to worry and wonder if perchance our America, like Nineveh of old, has finally decided to put on sackcloth and ashes.

But back to the articles: The Tennessee incident can have but one reaction in the mind of the true American and that is that such an organization does violence to the name America, both in letter and in spirit. Such an action is diametrically opposed to true Americanism. And rather than being permitted to revoke the charters of the not offending—but offended—units, the Tennessee gentleman should be made to apologize to them—to promise future good behavior or suffer revocation of their charter by the federal body.

As for Mrs. Hall, she has just as much right to live on Kilmer road in Larchmont as any other prima donna, songbird, or what have you. Her ancestors contributed as much to the making of this young republic as did those of any other racial group. This being so, full and complete American citizenship, with all the prerogatives incident thereto, is her undeniable heritage. Permit me to say that the mayor of Larchmont, sworn to support and uphold the laws of the land with every resource at his command, is a striking example of what a real mayor ought not to be.

A NEW KIND OF ART EXHIBIT.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—What I would like to see in our Art institute is an exhibition of artistic articles which can be purchased in our 5 and 10 cent stores. It would be a revelation to most folks to see in this exhibition objects of real artistic merit which the lowly nickel and dime can purchase. It is all right to show the persons who go to our museums the masterpieces within the reach of millionaires, but it would be a greater service to let them see art which is within the reach of today's lean purse, art which they can buy for their homes and with which they can really live.

THREE CONVICTS SEEK FREEDOM FROM SHURTLEFF

File Pleas with Judge Who Released Sammons.

Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, who freed James [Fur] Sammons, murderer and gang machine gunner, from Joliet penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus, was asked to entertain similar pleas for three bandits now confined in the prison in petitions filed yesterday in the McHenry county Circuit court at Woodstock.

The three prisoners are serving terms of from 10 years to life for robbery with a gun. Their petitions set forth that the sentence for that crime has since been reduced by the legislature to a term of from one year to life. They are Harry Jennings, sentenced from Chicago in 1922; Peter Kiefer, sentenced from Bloomington, and Harold Sharp, sentenced from Ottawa.

Once Freed from Prison.

As was the case with Sammons, whom Judge Shurtleff freed on July 16, Jennings got out of jail once before, was caught in another crime and served a term in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., before he went back to Joliet to finish serving his sentence there.

Jennings studied law while he was in prison, applied for a writ of habeas corpus in 1929, and appeared before Judge Joseph B. David in the Superior court to argue his own case. He held that he was eligible to parole, but that the state board of pardons and paroles had refused to consider his case because he had neither money nor political influence. These charges, as well as his assertion that he had been treated brutally by prison officials, attracted considerable notice at the time.

David Issues Writ.

Judge David, following a hearing, issued a writ of habeas corpus on which Jennings was freed. Attorney General Carlstrom appealed to the Supreme court, however, and the high court issued a writ of mandamus reversing Judge David's order and committing Jennings back to prison. Jennings was not found, however, until he was arrested for an automobile theft and then he was sentenced to the federal prison for driving the stolen car across a state line. He went back to Joliet several months ago, after serving his federal sentence.

Nothing could be learned last night of the criminal records of Kiefer and Sharp. Petitions were filed on behalf of all three prisoners by A. L. Gettys, a Chicago attorney. Judge Shurtleff is holding court in another judicial circuit, and will not return to Woodstock until Thursday.

Since his release by Judge Shurtleff police have blamed Sammons for several recent machine gun murders. He also is being sought on a warrant charging him with complicity in a Baltimore robbery for which his pal, Willie Memoth, is now serving a term in a Maryland penitentiary.

Judge Shurtleff's term of office expires next June.

Farm Woman Disappears, Son Will Be Questioned

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Sheriff's officers of Knox and Warren counties today were searching through creek bottoms and timberlands south of here in an effort to find a trace of Mrs. Alice Boyer, 47, who disappeared from her farm where she lived with her son, Arvid, 21. The youth, who left for the week-end after notifying relatives of his mother's disappearance, is to be questioned on his return.

ORDERS 8 MILE SPEED ENFORCED IN SCHOOL ZONES

Violators to Face $200 Fine.

Motorists must slow down to eight miles an hour through school zones or face a fine of $200, Judge William E. Helander announced yesterday in the Traffic court. He pointed out that a statute sets the maximum speed through a school zone at eight miles, and announced that this would be enforced.

"I would rather have this law enforced," he said, "than have policemen busy arresting automobile owners for failure to purchase license tags or vehicle tax."

Motorists who fail to obey the law will be charged with disorderly conduct and assessed the maximum of $200, Judge Helander said.

Shelter Inmate Dies.

Daniel Coughlin, 70 years old, who lived at the relief shelter at 509 North Union avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by an automobile at Pennsylvania avenue and Adams street. John Brady, 30 years old, 5242 Kamerling avenue, driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving by Des Plaines street police.

The death of Coughlin and one other victim brought the motor toll in Cook county to 801 since the first of the year.

The other victim:

Mrs. Stella Leach, 40 years old, 1336 Campbell avenue, Chicago Heights, died last night in the St. James hospital in the suburb from injuries suffered Aug. 25, when the automobile she was driving rolled over into the ditch in Route No. 49, south of Richton Park.

Policeman is Injured.

Policeman John J. Mahoney, 42 years old, 854 East 65th street, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by an automobile at 67th street and the Illinois Central tracks. The accident occurred as Policeman Mahoney, who is assigned to the traffic division, was leaving a surface car. Denton Bass, 72 years old, of Mitchell, Ind., driver of the automobile, was held. Mahoney was taken to the Illinois Central hospital.

Clarence Ralls, 28 years old, 4851 North Damen avenue, was struck by a hit and run motorist yesterday in Dempster street, near Waukegan road. He was taken to the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where he was reported in a serious condition.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The drowning of Joseph Gonker, 1911 West Huron street, at Gary Sunday, took place off Central beach, and not off Carr's beach, it was stated yesterday by Philip Lavetter, proprietor of Carr's beach.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

SEVERANCE GRANTED U. S. SENATOR DAVIS ON LOTTERY CHARGE

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Because he is a candidate for reëlection in November, United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania was granted a separate trial today from those of seven others also charged with participation in lotteries. His trial is scheduled to begin next Monday.

"The people are entitled to know what is what one way or the other," said Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy of Wyoming, in granting the motion for a severance.

Asking for early trial, instead of waiting until the other defendants could be ready, Senator Davis declared in an affidavit that delay would be "a grave injustice, not only to me, but to the electorate of the state of Pennsylvania."

"No one can measure the damage which a deferred trial might do to Mr. Davis," Judge Kennedy said. "If the government can proceed on the 19th, I think it should do so. I think it would be rather unusual to temporize with the entire future of a man under such circumstances."

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie said the government would be ready to proceed on that date, if desired witnesses could be summoned on time.

Charles H. Tuttle, Davis' counsel, urged the senator be given earliest possible opportunity to "secure vindication" from a jury.

Trials of the other defendants probably will be in November.

FIREMAN TELLS OF BOILER LEAK ON DEATH BOAT

New York, Sept. 12.—[Special.]—The boiler of the ill-fated steamboat Observation, which blew up in the East river on Friday with an estimated loss of sixty-three lives, leaked continuously after the annual inspection of the boat on April 28, according to the testimony today of a former fireman on the Observation. The witness, Victor R. Michaelson, also told the federal authorities that a welder who had tried to patch the boiler had grumbled that he "had nothing to work on."

Michaelson was fireman on the Observation until discharged two months ago, but he worked on the boat one day about three weeks ago, he said, when he noticed that the boiler was "still leaking."

Michaelson's testimony was given before the United States bureau of investigation, department of justice.

The fireman said that steam leaked through the water legs on the boiler most of the time and that he could hear steam blowing off whenever he had steam up.

Meanwhile Mayor Joseph V. McKee, after a conference with District Attorney McLaughlin of the Bronx and Police Commissioner Mulrooney, ordered a vigorous prosecution of those responsible for the disaster. He told his conferees that everything humanly possible must be done to insure the safety of those who use boats in the harbor. The matter must be sifted to the bottom, he said, even if the search leads to the official acts of the United States steamboat inspection service.

FLAT BUILDING CAUSES RUMPUS IN LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest's city council listened last night to arguments whether Van Wagenen Alling, wealthy contractor, should be allowed to finish the construction of an apartment house in Frost place.

"In 1927," explained Attorney Albert L. Hall, representing Mr. Alling, "the council granted my client the right to build either a music school or a residence on the site. Building was started for the school. Then Mr. Alling, after a long delay, decided to make it an apartment building. Now Building Commissioner William Pappe has stopped the work. The council surely must have realized when it issued a permit for a ten bedroom house with six bathrooms that the structure was not intended for one family."

"Indeed," retorted Ald. Kent Chandler, "there are many families in Lake Forest with ten bedrooms and six bathrooms."

Mayor A. D. Farwell held that it was a question of zoning. The zone ordinance provides that only residences may be erected in Frost place. The matter was referred to the city zoning board, which has not met for two years. Mr. Alling announced that he would appeal to the Circuit court of Lake county if permission were not granted to proceed with the apartments.

GARDNER STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR RELIEF FUNDS

Gardner, chairman of the fund raising committee for Chicago's 1932 relief fund campaign, returned to the city from a vacation in Maine yesterday and began the organization of the committees that will direct the drive. Funds raised will be allocated to charities that do not receive federal or state funds. Offices for the drive have been located at 10 South La Salle street. Mr. Gardner is a partner in Mitchell Hutchins & Co.

WHITES TO HONOR INDIAN HERO OF RED MASSACRE

Rededicate Robinson's Grave Sunday.

Days when Chicago was a frontier outpost are to be recalled next Sunday. In a picturesque ceremony, red man and white man will join hands in a rededication of the last resting place of Che-che-pin-qua [Alexander Robinson], hero of the Fort Dearborn massacre. The scene is the old Indian burying ground, half a mile east of the Des Plaines river near Lawrence avenue. The occasion is the inauguration of American Indian week.

A year ago an account was published of the protests made by the descendants of Che-che-pin-qua against the depredations of vandals at the grave. Fences erected to protect the burial plot had been destroyed. A large bronze cross set up by the family as a grave marker was carried off bodily. The tombstone of his wife, Catherine Chevalier, was destroyed in spite of all precautions. As a result of the protests the Grand Council Fire of American Indians determined to rehabilitate the site and to preserve it as a memorial.

Committee Is Formed.

Mrs. George H. Heafford, 6738 Cornell avenue, was named chairman of the committee by the Indian organization. The coöperation of Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, and Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the forest preserve, was enlisted, and the necessary restoration was made.

At 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the burial ground will be the scene of rites renewing the appreciation of Chicagoans of the present day to the Indian chief who proved his friendship for their forefathers. It was Chief Robinson who helped rescue Mrs. Helm, daughter of Capt. Heald, commander of Fort Dearborn, as the warwhoops of the savages resounded along the stretch of lake front that is now the Century of Progress site. Chief Robinson and Black Partridge, another friendly Indian, got her into their canoe and paddled across the lake to St. Joseph.

Descendants Will Attend.

The Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker will be the principal speaker at the services, which will be attended by descendants of Chief Robinson who still live on the old Robinson reserve near the burial ground. Among the descendants are three granddaughters of Che-che-pin-qua, Mrs. Francis Rager Winter and Mrs. Herman Boettcher of Chicago, and Mrs. Agnes Cooney Brothers of Lakeville, Indiana.

'SUNSHINE MAN' DIES AFTER 21 YEARS IN BED

Passaic, N. J., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Tom Shinners, "the Sunshine Man" who had made the best of life for nearly twenty-one years in a bed in St. Mary's hospital, died today of a complication of internal troubles. He was 50 years old.

People in every corner of the globe knew Shinners, either by actual contact or through correspondence. He was 29 years old and a fine big chunk of manhood when a derrick boom snapped from its base on the afternoon of Dec. 11, 1911, and fell on him. It broke his back, arms, legs, fingers and toes. For seven years he was unable to move as much as a finger.

Gradually he recovered the use of a few of his joints and could even move his head. He began writing letters—as many as 4,000 a year—to any one who would write to him. He turned to books and read an estimated 3,000 volumes in twenty years. In 1928 he campaigned by letter for Al Smith.

Novel Covers 6 Generations in Wool Trade

Phyllis Bentley Is Author of "Inheritance."

By Fanny Butcher.

"Inheritance," by Phyllis Bentley. [Macmillan.] Published today.

SIX days after Hugh Walpole's third volume of the tetralogy of the Herries strain, "The Fortress" (584 pages smallish type), there comes Phyllis Bentley's "Inheritance," another vast family chronicle (582 pages smallish type). And five days ago the most memorable contribution to the happiness of the reading public was "Van Loon's Geography" (504 pages, outsize).

PHYLLIS BENTLEY.

There is apparently a conspiracy on the part of authors these days to (1) wear from their sockets the eyes of reviewers and (2) give the public more, heapingly more, than their money's worth. They have not blinded this reviewer yet, however, and the public shows its appreciation for their generosity by making tomes best sellers. As soon as it gets around to it, mark my word, the public will boost all three of these offerings of the last six days into that enviable class.

"Inheritance" is of the genus of Hugh Walpole's records of the Herries family, and of John Galsworthy's "The Forsyte Saga," but it resembles more than it does either of those vast chronicles, the trilogy written by Storm Jameson, which was made up of "The Lovely Ship," "The Voyage Home," and "A Richer Dust." Both Miss Bentley's one volume tale [consisting of six short books] and Miss Jameson's three volume deal with industrial families, Miss Bentley's with a family of weaving overlords and Miss Jameson's with a family of overlords of the shipbuilding business. Both of them chronicle clashes not only within the family itself, but between the family's business and its workers. Both are as much fictional records of great industries of England as they are records of large local family groups.

There is a certain impressiveness in a very long novel which, if it is a book of any importance whatever, is enhanced by its very length. The river of life is a continuous stream, however dammed it may be by occasional drama, or diverted by death. On and on life flows, whether man individually adds to or subtracts from the component parts of the stream.

I have never forgotten a phrase from Shaw's "Antony and Cleopatra," which I read when I was just growing into a woman. It impressed itself upon me so deeply that I shall probably blink rheumy eyes as I quote it to, if not my own, somebody else's great-grandchildren. It read: "The crowds along the Appian way are ever the same age." Life which sometimes seems to us to have so definite a beginning with our own conscious lives and to cease so abruptly with the death of the person we love best in the world is "ever the same age."

The sense of the fluidity of life, of its going on and on, despite disaster or despite bliss, is what makes chronicles of families, generation after generation, appeal to readers so strongly. Such chronicles in a subtle fashion give the reader assurances of life's regeneration which is one of man's prime yearnings. Such books do not preach sermons of man's place in a constantly rhythmic onwardness. Often they tell of the disintegration instead of the integration of a clan. But subconsciously the reader gets from tales of generation succeeding generation an assurance that generations will go on succeeding generations. And one of the major desires of man's nature is thus given satisfaction.

"Inheritance" ends with the industrial wreckage of a great family, but the family with its vast ramparts of rich and poor, conservative and radical, is a human unit, and at the very end young David says to himself as he thinks of his ancestors, "When you come to think of it, the blood of ALL those people who began the conflict in 1812 runs in my veins. . . . God, how deep I am in the west riding; my roots go right down into the Ire valley soil. And I expect most of our elegant gentry are the same," he mused; "we're all blood brothers, we're all bound up together. And in the same way all the ideas the Bamforths and the Mellors and the Oldroyds stand for are woven together, too."

"Inheritance" begins in 1812 and ends in the depression, not, however, in a depression. It is a story of six generations of the direct line of William Oldroyd, owner of Syke mill in Yorkshire, who was murdered by the Luddites, and of the cloth industry of Yorkshire for almost a hundred and twenty-five years.

Phyllis Bentley was born in the west riding of Yorkshire. "I have spent most of my life there," she says, "my family on both sides being intimately connected with the local woolen textile industry. The whole 'feel' of the woolen industry, the social and industrial atmosphere I have got simply by living all my life in the west riding amongst it all."

The New Hats Are Refreshing to Fall Buyers

Sprightly Models to Fit Your Personality.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

PFLIPPANT and too numerous paragraphs about the new hats have made quite a few of the best and most enthusiastic hat collectors hesitate before plunging a good part of their clothes allowances for millinery.

A crowd of fellow citizens that rates everything in life, from the holy state of matrimony, the gold standard and the great flattened suppsy of cash, probably have more unalloyed fun out of feminine hat fashions than anything else they refuse to take seriously.

So, since we have at last emerged from under the plainest and dullest of hats to the sprightly models that casually perch on our heads this year, we can expect this avalanche of derisive comments.

New hats are the most refreshing, the most stimulating things the average shopper wears. No dollar spending female thinks they are funny. They may be exciting, different, they may be impudent, sophisticated, but they are not dull, nor are they anything to joke about.

Hats this year are distinctive . . . you buy them to fit your head as well as personality, and even though you see another just like it on some other shopper, your own achieves a certain bit of your personality.

This season you fuss with a hat until it dips and slants or tilts most becomingly on all sides . . . and the thing is as much yours as though it were modeled on your head in the beginning.

While velvet creations are still going strong, the newer arrivals that feature fabrics are hats to notice now. One shop is showing a most unusual display of dove gray hats of crinkled silk and wool crepe—of fine French felt combined with shimmering steel gray velvet, of swathed turbans of soft broadcloth and Bagheera.

The newest color contrasts for your brown costumes are accessories of gray . . . and the smartest hats, gloves and shoes of deep brown are used to subtly accent new dove gray dresses, suits and ensembles.

Black broadcloth hats are the best looking concoctions you have ever raved over . . . you are going to see lots of brimmed models, sleek smart things with wider brims than you have seen for a long time.

Shoppers who hunted for hats that they could wear straight across the brow will clamor madly for the new straights . . . some extraordinarily well designed black broadcloth "straights" are swanky enough for the most unbending dowager, for they will impart even a greater air of patrician simplicity. And, incidentally, there are at least three well known shops in Chicago that have outstanding hats for the sophisticate . . . hats with a definite distinction and wearableness . . . hats that are miles apart from the rakish, skittish, extreme things that the very young insurgents dare to don. These shops have plenty of interesting models, some subdued in color but alive with chic, others with a flair for difficult chinlines and others with brims to best flatter the eyes.

You will also find all the new tricky hats made of lastex, that rubbery braidlike material that fashions the very newest headgear. All hats are the same size . . . every head can be covered, for the stuff stretches obligingly over simple as well as complicated coiffures.

Lastex is used for berets, turbans and brimmed models . . . they are what the traveler packs, for these hats are as compact and as flat as anything you ever pulled on your head. All the new fruit or berry shades are particularly good looking in this new rubber fabric or braid.

Hold Shoulders Straight, Say Designers of the New Fashions

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The wide shoulder is with us for the fall and winter things.

A good many of you will get the wide shoulder effect by the simple process of adding a capelet to the coat or dress. Nor are we particularly in favor of the ladies going in for wide shoulder development. It's a bit too brawny for us. And next year, in all probability, the fashion play will have for its leading rôle a drooping or a narrow shoulder line.

BUT sufficient to the day is the fashion thereof, so you'd better be looking over that shoulder line of yours. If you have a drooping pair, a rounded pair, or a pathetically shallow pair—something should and can be done about it.

The object (fashion) of the wide shoulder is to make the waist look smaller by contract. Well, the very thing you do to straighten up those shoulders of yours automatically will indent the waistline, as wanted. Just take the simple business of standing erect. Not with shoulders squared, because that's too military for a siren, but with back straight, head up, and CHEST UP. Just put that order into effect before your mirror and see what it does to your shoulders—and to your waist.

It may be your shoulders are carrying more flesh high up on the back than is good for the new silhouette. That pad back there comes off easily with exercise. Putting your back to the wall and stretching high, high, and higher will help. Then, any good toe touching exercise will wrest the wad loose from its mooring. Or, you may stretch yourself prone on the floor; come up without aid of the arms, go forward until the fingers touch the toes. Then flop over, face down. Now bring the shoulders up and back as far as you can go comfortably, without arm or hand aid.

Good Morning!

If they're determined to waste George Arliss, I suppose "Successful Calamity" is as good a receptacle as any other to toss him in.

Admitting that the vehicle is froth and that the star and those supporting him play their parts with tongue in cheek, one still asks—why? Hollywood is full of actors who are entirely adequate for the rôle Mr. Arliss here portrays—but how many "Disraelis" does it pack? Better, so far as his future is concerned, for this star to rest on his laurels and allow us to continue happy in our memories of him as he was in "Disraeli" and "The Millionaire." If the man must make money now, that is, of course something else again, but arouses a new question which is—how long will he continue to make it if thus squandered?

Of course one realizes that plays like "Disraeli" don't grow on bushes like blueberries, but certainly the world is full of stories that would do this great actor more honor than his present encumbrance.

Ah well—urban and urbane, and with his usual fraudful smile, Mr. Arliss goes good-temperedly about the business of turning out the best job he can from the material at hand. He succeeds in making the picture reasonably interesting.

He portrays a great financier just back from Europe where he has been putting over delicate and important deals for his President and country. Arrived home he finds his family engaged in a perpetual and many-faceted orgy of extravagance. His wife, son and daughter are never home. Riches are what seem to be the matter—so, our hero decides on poverty as a cure. No, the yarn's not QUITE like "Down to Earth."

Grant Mitchell gives a keen performance as the faithful valet. He always makes me think of Burns Mantle whom he resembles. Nice as well as smart. Other players are satisfactory, direction doesn't irritate and staging pleases.

Because George Arliss is in it, "A Successful Calamity" is worth seeing. But it's certainly nothing to get all het up about.

The Real Work of Debutantes to Start Soon

Call Rehearsals for Revue of Service Club.

BY JUDITH CASS.

REAL work for the debutantes will start on Thursday of next week for they are being asked to appear that morning at the Illinois Women's Athletic club to start rehearsing for the Service club's annual revue, in which practically all the debutantes take part each season, and whether they take stellar or pony ballet parts, believe me, they work!

I doubt if any professional chorus girls are asked to do more strenuous rehearsing than are these girls during the month they prepare for the revue, and in addition to the hours they spend getting ready to dazzle their relatives and friends with their singing and dancing—every young girl thinks the Follies is missing something by not having her in the chorus, you know—they have plenty of other things to keep their days—and nights—busy, for they are going to parties and buying clothes and doing all the other things that being a debutante involves.

No wonder the sweet young things are worn out before the season is over and those whose papas can afford it dash away to winter resorts for rests!

Oct. 21 and 22 Are Revue Dates.

The revue this year is to be given on Friday and Saturday nights, Oct. 21 and 22, at the Goodman theater, and the girls in charge anticipate that it will be as lively and amusing as ever. Janet Bard, daughter of the Ralph Bards of Highland Park, who is making her debut this Saturday at a tea at the Exmoor Country club with Caroline and Barbara Bullard, is talented as a dancer, so she probably will do a specialty number in the revue, which is entitled "Stepping High."

Ellen Truax, Mrs. Sewell Truax's daughter, who was the first debutante of this season, making her formal bow at a tea at her grandmothers', Mrs. William C. Egan's, residence in Highland Park on August 27, is writing a song which she will sing. Mrs. Robert Hoffman who as Emily Pope scored a success in several Service club revues, also is to take part this year.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. [Harriet Lowden] is to play the piano, which she does beautifully as those who have heard her in recital know. Mrs. Scott Dow is in charge of the sale of tickets, Miss Florence Carr is chairman of the box committee and Miss Jane Willett of the advertising. Mrs. Stanley Zaring, president, has called a general meeting of the club for next Monday morning at her residence, 1250 Lake Shore drive.

Mary Miller Bride Today.

The marriage of Miss Mary Miller and Charles N. Proctor of Boston will take place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the garden of the Winnetka residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Southworth Miller, the Rev. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church, Winnetka, reading the service in the presence of the relatives and a few friends.

Miss Susan Miller will be her sister's only attendant and William W. Miller will act as best man for his sister's bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor will leave immediately after the ceremony to motor to Cambridge where they will reside. Among the out-of-town relatives here for the wedding are Mr. Proctor's mother, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor, of Hanover, N. H., and Miss Miller's aunt, Mrs. N. W. Argabrite of New York.

The English-Speaking Union and the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations are opening the season with a joint luncheon today at 12:15 o'clock at the Palmer house with Everett Millard, president of the former, presiding.

Carroll Binder will speak on "The Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa—An American Interpretation." Among others at the speaker's table will be Lewis Bernays, the new British consul, Graham Aldis, and Herbert Pope. Some of those who have signified their intention of being at the luncheon are Mrs. Frank H. Scott, William B. Hale, Mrs. Fred A. Poor, Alan C. Dixon, the Charles T. Atkinsons, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Bridges, Laird Bell, Mrs. Howard Chickering, the Silas H. Strawns, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Russell Tyson, Stuart H. Otis, and Mrs. Richardson Dunham.

Daughter Born to Thomas Fentresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress of Hubbard Woods certainly hold the record for acquiring grandchildren, for during the last year their daughters and daughters-in-law have presented them with five, the latest being tiny Mary Celeste Fentress, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Fentress of Glencoe. She was born on Sept. 5, at St. Luke's hospital, where the Thomas Fentress' other daughter was born a year ago this month. They also have a son.

The junior Calvin Fentresses, who are living with the seniors now, have a month old daughter; the Burwell Dodds [Mary Fentress] of New York have one son, born last January; and the Robert Stockings [Emily Fentress], who also live in New York, have a son who will be a year old this month.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr. suffered a spill on Sunday when her horse fell at one of the jumps of the Onwentsia hunt, but she was not badly injured, only bruised and a bit shaken up. David Adler also took a fall Sunday when his horse tripped on a low wire fence, but he escaped with bruises, too. Members of the Onwentsia hunt

Once in a blue moon . . .

Once in a blue moon, a manuscript comes to a publishing house which wins the immediate, spontaneous affection of all who read it. Its appeal is universal; it makes friends wherever it goes; enthusiasm for it spreads like a praire fire to the farthest bounds of the organization.

Such a book is the novel we have just published. It is a moving, dramatic story—a work of great power and of inescapable charm. It spans the lives of six generations into the last of which is drawn the composite life of a wide countryside. Its dynamic characters, driven by a momentum imparted by forebears, are sharply etched against a background of social and economic currents involving the very structure of the modern world. Its romantic-interest is varied and veracious in the telling.

It is moreover a book of distinct literary quality—a quality reminiscent of great masters of English and American literature.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and in great mental distress. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, a coarse, common person, as bailiff, and he and his wife occupy the lodge.

INSTALLMENT II.

A GIRL TO BEWARE.

"The—the bailiff? O, certainly! I'll come at once."

Miss Bundy sprang up with quite amazing alacrity, her color flared up, and her breath came quickly as she left the room in flurried haste. Neil looked after her, wondering curiously what had transformed the placid, phlegmatic woman of a few months ago into this excitable creature who started at the least sound and lost her temper over trifles.

Anyhow, she was very hospitable to invite him here. Not only would he be spared endless journeyings back and fourth but he welcomed the prospect of good food and a comfortable bed after last night's sample of what Glastonbury had to offer. Stoke Paulton, besides, was only a mile distant from two friends he hoped to see often, Giles Gisborne, vicar of the parish, and Rachel Gisborne, his sister. Yes, he would accept the invitation, and chance the old lady at close quarters.

There was a longish wait. He strolled about, and picked up a fine piece of Irish silver to study its hallmark. It was while he was holding this in his hand and squinting at the tiny characters that he received his second shock.

A violent clamor broke out. Deep throated barking of dogs and the bursting open of the glass doors caused him to jump guiltily as, with the force of a volcanic explosion a trio composed of a tall girl and a pair of gigantic Alsatians hurdled in, crashed down upon him. A voice cried out in stifled accents, "You——! O, why did you come here? I warned you not to—O!"

The beginning was a protest full of dismay, the last syllable a gasp of utter confusion. The speaker, seeing him face to face, fell back as though icy water had been dashed over her, staring at him transfixed. For an instant her hazel eyes were as fiercely accusing as those of the dogs, then a tide of crimson washed over her to the roots of her back blown hair. She seemed positively seared by mortification.

"Sorry," she muttered under her breath, "you must think me mad. The fact is I took you for some one else . . . not that it matters. Quiet, Bistre! Wolf, be still, you fool!" Her strong hands gripped the spiked collars to cover her confusion, but all the time she was searching his face with the same uncompromising fixity. "But I don't understand," she said with odd abruptness. "That two seater outside—did you come in it?"

"I did," he answered, smiling. "Is there anything wrong about it?"

Clearly there was, for she remained unplacated.

"Who are you, then?" she demanded brusquely. "What are you doing in this house?"

"My name is Starkey. I've come to see Miss Bundy on business."

Her rigidity snapped. She clicked her tongue in annoyed comprehension. "How stupid of me! Of course, you're the American. But all the same I don't see——"

What baffled her remained unexplained, but if Neil had hoped she would laugh over the situation he was doomed to disappointment. All she did was to edge away, remarking ungraciously: "Then I'd better tell Miss Bundy you're here. She probably doesn't know."

"O, yes, she does," returned Neil, now slightly ironical. "I've seen her, thanks. She was called away for a moment, that's all."

"O." She bit her lip, shook back her hair, and released the dogs, who bounded like springs uncurled into the open air. "In that case, I've made another blunder."

"A very natural one. Don't let it distress you."

She stood poised in the doorway, with the wind plastering her silk frock against her lithe contours. The thin fabric, colored like a ripe corn field and scattered over with black and scarlet spots, had to his eyes a savage suggestion, seemed in a way part of her, like an animal's skin. A human wolf dog, he thought, with a flash of fantasy. Yes, there were three Alsatians who stormed in just now, all ready to attack—and she's the fiercest of the lot.

She was not English, he decided. She couldn't possibly belong to this island, even though she spoke with no accent. He had seen features like hers in Hungary and the Balkans—wide cheekbones, almond shaped eyes, the bridge of the nose ever so little flattened, mouth straight and sullen. Her hair, too—bleached and crinkled as though a hot sun had scorched it, and that warm skin, lightly freckled and tanned to almost the same shade.

Unmannered, brutally direct—and yet with a touch of sophistication about her which piqued him. What was it? Merely that her nails were manicured, that her frock, with its rippling kerchief was cut after a recent Parisian mode, or something subtle, deep seated, which roused the male in him and made him say to himself, "Look here, this is the sort of girl you've got to watch out for"? Young enough, too—not more than two and twenty at most—but for all that look of self-reliance, the look that comes to those who have lived through a great deal.

The thread of his reflections was broken by her voice.

"Here's Miss Bundy back again," she murmured without turning.

Luckily his hostess herself seemed too flustered to concentrate, obviously torn between two interests. The arrival of the tea tray was greeted with relief, and at once she began peering about petulantly, questing something or some one on whom she depended.

"Natasha!" she murmured fretfully. "Crabbe, find Miss Andreyev and tell her tea is waiting."

Natasha Andreyev! Appropriate as the name sounded, it increased his bewilderment. He had heard last autumn some mention of a secretary, but none had appeared, nor did the young person here a moment ago suggest any such prosaic appendage.

As though notified by telepathy, the girl strolled in again, without so much as the flicker of an eyelash in his direction. He rose, expecting to be introduced, but the old lady merely said, "Ah, there you are, Natasha. Will you pour out, please?"—and subsided into her chair. No word of elucidation? None—but his chagrin gave place to covert amusement as he observed the grim efficiency of the unknown's movements, the tanned fingers clutching the silver teapot. From downcast eyes and set mouth he deduced smoldering wrath against himself for both causing and witnessing her humiliation.

One other thing struck him. Brief as the interval had been, she had smoothed her hair into glinting ripples and accented her lips with a vermilion streak. Why? Hardly for Miss Bundy's benefit, and certainly not to please the guest she seemed determined to ignore. Habit, then, and if his instinct was right, not the habit of rural Somerset. Yes, for all her uncompromising attitude, she was beautiful, arrestingly so—beautiful in his own interpretation of the word, and his, he complacently thought, was a tutored taste.

Meanwhile, his hostess showed a ravenous appetite quite at variance with her shattered looks. As the hot tea took effect a cloud appeared to lift from her brain, and she began again eagerly to speak of the projected biography.

"I'm glad you are willing to work here under my supervision," she said, blinking at him keenly through scanty lashes. "Natasha, another cup, please . . . . Yes, it will be useful. You see, later on I hope to—to offer you an important contribution. Mind, I don't promise—I only say I may."

Off again on that mysterious tack! He let her ramble on, utterly at a loss to comprehend her veiled allusions. Suddenly he intercepted a scathing glance directed at the speaker from the girl's stern eyes—a look so full of scorn and denunciation that he grew positively uncomfortable. The very atmosphere seemed charged with hostility as though he had stepped into the center of a brewing storm. What was it all about? A moment ago the third member of the party had held herself indifferently aloof. Now, all at once she was watchful, contemptuous, and, unless he was grossly misled, apprehensive—but apprehensive of what?

Miljan Gives Away Birds to Care for Son

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 12.—His hundred canaries, finches, love birds, and parrakeets interfered with his devotion to his new baby, so John Miljan has dismantled the glass covered lawn aviary which was his pride and joy prior to the advent of John Jr. 5 months ago and has given away the movie colony's greatest collection of bird life.

"I couldn't do justice to my birds and my little boy," Miljan said, "so I looked for people to give them to who, I knew would give the birds their bath water, their seed, their cuttlebone, and trim their toenails when they need it. I've been amply rewarded because little Johnny is already able to stand up alone for nearly a minute before he falls over, and he couldn't do this until I could take several hours every day and helped him exercise his baby muscles."

Can you imagine a foremost screen villain so domesticated and sentimental in real life?

Considerable interest has been expressed about the all-British cast to whom Fox will entrust its million dollar screen version of Noel Coward's Drury Lane drama, "Cavalcade," so now that the cast is completed, I'll name it over for you: Diana Wynyard as Jane Marryot; Clive Brook, Robert Marryot; John Warburton, Edward Marryot; Una O'Connor, imported for Ellen, and Merle Tottenham for Annie, the rôles they created on the London stage; Herbert Mundline as Bridges, the butler who becomes a publican; Margaret Lindsy as Edith Harris; Frank Lawton, Joe Marryot; Berle Mercer, a cook, and Ursula Jeans as Fanny Bridges.

All speak English as London speaks it; that's why so many of them were brought over out of the fog. Frank Lloyd directs and Winfield Sheehan, vice president and general manager of the Fox studio, attaches so much importance to this picture he's going to supervise it personally.

Considered the oldest comedy unit now playing in pictures, "Our Gang" passed its tenth milestone with a little celebration. Except for Robert McGowan, director, who started with the "Gang" and has stayed with the kids all ten years, there have been several complete changes in the group of youngsters, who were started in short reel comedies by Hal Roach in 1922. Jackie Cooper is the outstanding "Our Gang" graduate. Many of the other kids have gone into vaudeville. In point of service, Pete, the dog, is the present patriarch, with a span of six years.

Present members of the gang are Dickie, Moore, Spankie, Jacquie, Lyn, Stymie, Echo, Breezy, and Pete, and Dickie is getting ready to graduate into steady feature work at the bigger studios.

John Gilbert is adding a new wing to his home now that his new wife, Virginia Bruce, has moved into John's former hillside bachelor abode; something that John's prior wife, Ina Claire, decided not to do.

Use Brains to Charm Rather than Repel Men

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It must be pretty discouraging these days of eugenics conferences to be a college-minded young woman. Out of our most recent conference came several reports on the futility of high intellectual attainment if marriage as well as a degree is in a young woman's mind. For men keep on preferring their intellectual inferiors, if you believe these statisticians. Brains in a woman just keep on being the dubious marriage-marketable asset they were always acclaimed.

The eugenists worry because this dumb-dora inclination of the male scales down the intelligence of their children. The human race, they claim, consequently is being kept at a low average of brightness and ability. Worse, in fact, college women are being cheated of motherhood.

It does not work advantageously to the man, regardless of their personal views in the matter. The wife of inferior education helps the husband to build up fantastic ideas of his own importance, the eugenists claim.

All in all, it looks as if the males, if they are interested in race betterment, had better look around for women of high intellectual attainment than is their well-known wont.

But how to make them do it? Easy! Let the woman with high I. Q. use the other side of her brain. Men aren't so fearful of brains in a woman as they are of their arrogant exposition. The brains come in handy enough after marriage. A level of intelligence that insures a man companionable hours with his wife is not resented. So, why not submerge the degree for the time being? Anyway, until the cache is brought down.

Bring the college train out later when the demand arises. But don't flaunt it in the face of marrying males until you're asked for it. The great trouble with the type of college girl who doesn't marry is that she doesn't try to attract men. The inferior girls have to put up a fight. They do it with the meager gifts they have. With brains, why can't the college women go one better and put the brains over with such charm of person as to be irresistible? The race betterment end would justify the siren-means, wouldn't it?

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A Worthy Case.

"I am a young man, 26, and have been out of work for a long time. A few weeks ago I got my old job back and my clothes are so shabby I am almost ashamed to appear in the office. As I am working only part time and must support my father I cannot afford to buy new ones now. Do you think you could get me a suit, size 38 or 40, and a pair of shoes, size 9½ or 10?—L. D."

Asks for Saxophone.

"Has one of your readers a discarded saxophone, preferably an E flat alto, to give to a young man who is quite talented? He is earning a few dollars a week with one lent him by his teacher, but will need one of his one. His father is paralyzed, there are six younger children in the family, and this boy is their sole support—F. D."

Parents Pay Too Much Attention to Only Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Sometimes when I receive a letter asking for help in some behavior problem I feel about as at sea as a crossword puzzler who cannot find a beginning key word.

It would be easy if the clues and symptoms were all clearly defined and fell into some easy classification, such as inferiority complex, or shyness, or being fear-ridden, or attention-crazy or mentally subnormal. But most of our children seem, in their puzzling conduct, "to combine the best—or worst—features of all," so that the key to their behavior is sometimes hard to find, and the key to the behavior of their parents is completely lost.

But occasionally the answer to the mother's question is simple.

One writes me: "I do not know what is the matter with my daughter. She pays no attention to the things I say to her and makes no attempt to obey me. She does not remember to take her overshoes to school if it looks rainy; she doesn't put a sweater under her coat if it is cold unless I see to it myself. She doesn't put a muffler around her neck . . ." and the letter contains a list of all the things the girl does not do; the things her mother does tell her to do.

The girl is an only child. She is idolized by her parents, is given everything she wants—they are comfortably off—and is generally the center of their attention, the pivot around which her parents' interests and thoughts revolve. This center of interest and attention has resulted in endless directions and admonitions, for who, looking at a child constantly, cannot find endless things to suggest, direct, correct and admonish?

What this child needs is a large dose of this "wholesome neglect" which I have mentioned in other articles—a 75 per cent reduction on suggestions, orders, attention, etc.

Call Rehearsals for Revue of Service Club.

are riding to hounds at Millburn every Tuesday and Thursday and Sunday mornings, but there won't be a large company of hunters until the weather is a little cooler.

The young Oakleigh Thornes, who were the Oakleigh Thorne Lewises when they were here in the late spring, will arrive tomorrow or Thursday for a visit with Mrs. Thorne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, on their way from Santa Barbara where they have spent the summer, to Millbrook, N. Y.

They will bring with them their infant son, Oakleigh III., who was born early in August in Santa Barbara. The former Bertha Palmer's husband had his name changed shortly after the birth of their son so that the Millbrook estate of his grandfather, Oakleigh Thorne, might be inherited by a Thorne, the estate having been held by one of that name for several hundred years.

The junior Potter Palmers are in Boston now and the date for their arrival in Chicago is indefinite.

Ernest Noyeses Will Move.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest High Noyes have taken an apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue into which they are moving Thursday, having rented their own apartment at 1242 Lake Shore drive for the winter. Their daughter, Florence, and her husband, George Sensency, are honeymooning at Desbarats, and upon their return they will occupy the house at 55 West Burton place which they took and started to furnish before their marriage last Thursday.

The Charles Daniel Freys and their family are expected to arrive home tomorrow from Paris where Mr. Frey went to meet his wife and children after they had spent the summer at Mallorca. Miss Betty Frey no doubt will set the date for her marriage to Gail Borden soon after she returns.

Lieut. and Mrs. George V. Holloman [Dorothy Darling] left immediately after their wedding Saturday afternoon to motor to Dayton, where they are to live at 1830 Park place. They were so anxious to get into their house they decided to postpone their wedding trip until after they are settled and they are at the Biltmore hotel in Dayton now awaiting the arrival of the motor van in which their new furniture and lovely wedding gifts are being taken to the Ohio city where Lieut. Holloman is stationed at Wrigley field.

Hyde Gillette and his bride, the former Marie Smith, are honeymooning in Bermuda and upon their return Oct. 1 they will be at home in a cunning little house in the village of Barrington which is all ready for their occupancy.

Mrs. Gillette's mother, Mrs. Kinney Smith, had to get busy with preparations for moving as soon as the wedding was over, for she is moving from 10 East Schiller street to 1120 Lake Shore drive on Oct. 1. Mr. Gillette's parents and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Gillette and the Misses Helen and Marietta Gillette, went back to their summer place at Lake Beulah right after the wedding to remain until later in the autumn when they will return to Pasadena.

Mrs. Americus F. Callahan of 1325 Astor street has returned from having spent the summer in England with one of her sons, Samuel Miller Callahan, and his wife and baby.

Mrs. Ford Rodman Carter of 1315 Ritchie court has gone to New York for a fortnight's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kramer and their children, Catherine and John, have arrived at home from two years in Paris and are at the Drake.

Sailor Collars Seen on Autumn Coats in Paris

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Ways to make fall coat fashions look new, without drastically changing the silhouette, have been the concern of the French style makers this long while. They have finally decided that the treatment of shoulders will do the trick better than anything else, and a wholesale feminizing of shoulder lines has occurred.

One masculine detail, the sailor collar, is a new and popular way adopted by the dressmakers to feminize the fall coat. Naturally you know your rue de la Paix too well to believe for a moment that the sailor collar as is has been taken up by the couturiers of Paris. They've twisted and tortured the poor thing into something else, but with the essential characteristics of the sailor collar, and that is its width on the shoulders.

The Germaine Lecomte coat, shown in our sketch today, has one of the smart adaptations of marine neckwear. This coat is made of light, soft gray woolen, and it is trimmed with narrow bands of brown astrakhan. This color combination, by the way, is one of the most elegant and most difficile in fall styles. The sailor collar is square over the tops of the shoulders, and has two points in back. It has a small standing collar of brown astrakhan and is bordered with this fur.

Five Prodigies Are Welcomed to N. U. Studies

Received by President Scott at Home.

Five young students classified by Northwestern university as prodigies, but disclaiming that classification themselves, arrived at the university yesterday to enter the freshman class under a special educational plan devised to overcome the handicaps of their age in studying alongside of older students.

The students were received by President Walter Dill Scott at his home. They are to live together during their freshman year, the two girls of the group at Willard hall, where freshmen girls reside, and the three boys, with two more to arrive later, at Foster house. There they will have the advise of Harold Finley, who entered the university three years ago at the age of 13, and is now starting his senior year.

"But we never thought we were prodigies," chorused the youngsters as they gathered at Dr. Scott's home. "We're just regular people, who happen to be a little younger than most university students."

Both the fathers and mothers of all five of the students who reached the campus yesterday are college graduates, Dr. Scott pointed out. Most of the fathers are professional men. The students themselves are:

Jane Alice Hall, 15 years old, of Clovis, N. M. She is fond of tennis, plays the piano and violin, and is interested in writing, having started a journalistic career on her high school paper.

Mary Margaret Moore, 14 years old, of Danville, Ill. She is interested in music and sports, she said, but has "no idea" of what she wants to be when she leaves college.

William Duncan Stech, 15 years old, New York. He wants to be a lawyer, he said, "because I will get paid for doing the thing I like best—talking."

James Allan Norton, 15 years old, Flint, Mich. He wants to do research in organic chemistry. His mother was formerly a chemistry instructor.

George Edward Alcott, 15 years old, Weiner, Ark. He played basketball and football on his high school teams. He intends to follow the footsteps of his father, a physician.

Some 1,200 regular freshman students also arrived on the Northwestern campus yesterday.

The freshman registration is expected to be slightly larger than it was last fall, university officials said. They also remarked on the increasing proportion of men to women students. Sixty per cent of the new students are men.

Ice Fund Gets $100 for 3 Sets of Fete Records

The ice fund receipts yesterday revealed a new godfather of the fund. He is A. K. Liska. After hearing the Chicagoland Music festival records broadcast over W-G-N on Friday, Mr. Liska sent a $100 check with an order for three sets of records, adding:

"As the sale of the festival records is for a charitable purpose, please keep the change."

So the list of contributions is headed by $91.75, and a large portion of the remainder will later be turned over to the ice fund in the general receipts from the record sales. The records, as has been previously announced, may be purchased at THE TRIBUNE public service office, 1 South Dearborn street, lobby of Tribune Tower, and Lyon & Healy. The four double faced records were made during the Chicagoland Music festival in Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 20, and among them is the singing of "America" by an assembly of 125,000 persons.

A benefit for the ice fund was given recently by Geraldine, Virginia and Betty Breit, Betty Jordan and Catherine Marx. They raised $4 at a show at the Breit residence, 422 Essex road, Kenilworth.

A third gift of $10 from "Anonymous" brought yesterday's contributions to $105.75, and a total in the ice fund of $2,331.96. Gifts to both the ice fund and the Camp Algonquin fund may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS

Helps Correct Constipation with "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Has Iron

Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation. It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BY MARY MEADE.

This week fruit markets all over the city are welcoming in some of the first fall shipments of that quintessence of all that is piquant and flavorful—quinces.

The Portugal quince, large and yellow, is proving the happiest buy for jellies and preserves. It's much less puckery than the small apple or pear shaped variety.

Jellies first—Since the pure quince flavor is to some more pleasing if modified and pepped up with other fruit juices when used in jelly, we would suggest as A No. 1, half quince juice and half apple juice. For one cup of this combination use two-thirds cup of sugar.

Or if you're a true quince fan, 100 per cent quince jelly will gladden your heart. One cook with an economical urge finds the parings and cores of quinces from which the juicy inside has been used for sauce or preserves all that could be asked as a basis for quince jelly. Cover the parings with water and cook slowly, covered, for three hours. Next place in a bag and allow to drain over night.

In the morning boil the juice fifteen minutes, skim and again strain through a cloth and weigh. Wash the preserving kettle and return the juice to it together with three-fourths of its weight of sugar. Boil vigorously until a few drops will sheet off the spoon [about twenty minutes]. Pour at once into clean jelly glasses and seal with hot paraffin.

QUINCE HONEY.

Prepare three medium sized quinces by peeling and grating. Stew gently with just enough water to keep them from sticking, until quite soft. Meanwhile, prepare a sirup from four cups of sugar and two cups of water, boiling until a little will form a soft ball in cold water. Add the quince pulp and boil five minutes longer. Turn into sterile jars and seal at once.

QUINCE PRESERVES.

Quinces make delicious preserves, either whole or quartered. The latter, I find, are the most satisfactory. Peel, and if the fruit is to be cut, remove the core. Cook carefully until just tender in water to which has been added one tablespoon of lemon juice per quart of water.

Lift out the quinces and plunge into a sirup made of one part of water to three parts of sugar, which sirup has been brought just to the boiling point. Again bring to the boiling point and boil for six minutes. Place the quince sections in sterile jars and fill with the boiling sirup. Seal at once. If the sirup is not sufficient thick by the time the quinces are transparent, boil down to the proper consistency after removing the fruit.

Pretty Dress Lightens Tasks for Housewife

WOMAN'S DRESS.

The new fashion is kind to the busy housewife, for work certainly seems easier when prettily dressed. The deep open V with inserted vest narrows the breadth through the bust, and the skirt lines diminish the hip breadth. Novelty linens and piqué are among the suitable materials.

The pattern, 2611, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Holds Women Prove Ability as Ministers

The Rev. Mrs. Lyons Here for Convention.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Women are just as well qualified as men to enter the ministry and become powers in the pulpit and, moreover, they are doing just that. Such was the message brought yesterday by the Rev. Mary Alice Lyons, veteran woman minister of Cleveland, president of the National Association of Women Preachers. The minister will open the fourteenth annual assembly of the association today at the Chicago Evangelistic institute, 1754 Washington boulevard.

"We don't want to drive the men out of the pulpit," the Rev. Mrs. Lyons hastened to add, "but we do want the men to get used to women occupying the pulpit. The women preachers are growing in influence. In the beginning there was that first group of women, widows of pastors, but now we are training women in seminaries just as the men are trained.

"I get letters from many girls wanting to take up the ministry, and who wish to know where to get training. I tell them to go to their own denominations, that sooner or later the way will be open more widely for women in the pulpit as more denominations broaden their rules."

The young people, the Rev. Mrs. Lyons said, are beginning to put aside creeds and dogma and to "demand the real substance of Christianity. They are thinking for themselves more than they ever did.

"Young people are realizing that denominational platforms don't mean much. It is simplicity and honor in life that they want religion based upon. The time will come when there will be a universal Protestant church for the thinking people."

The evangelistic teaching of today should not be the dust rolling kind, the minister added. Too much religion has been queered by "emotional and radical people who are freakish in their methods," she said.

The Rev. Mrs. Lyons for many years was general secretary of the Disciples of Christ church for Ohio. She has preached 34 years, filling pulpits and lecturing in the interests of missionary work.

SPRAGUE WINS FIGHT FOR FREE DUMPING GROUND

Opinion Holds City May Use Old Canal Bed.

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, apparently had won his fight to obtain free dumping privileges for the city in the Illinois and Michigan canal with the approval yesterday by Corporation Counsel Sexton of an opinion holding that the sanitary district may legally fill in the old "tadpole ditch."

The opinion, which was prepared by Carl J. Appell, assistant corporation counsel, was believed to be a blow to a group of state politicians. These politicians, who were not named, had planned, according to reports in the city hall, to obtain a lease on the unfilled portions of the canal and charge the city for dumping ashes and refuse into it.

Halted by State Troopers.

Confirmation of these reports was seen in an action taken against the city several months ago, when Col. Sprague first attempted to use the canal as a dump. At that time, after a few city trucks had dumped their loads, state troopers appeared and ordered the dumping stopped.

When the city asked the sanitary district for a permit to use the canal bed, attorneys for the board held that the canal represented navigable water and as such was under the authority of the war department. The city's opinion, however, is that the statutes giving the war department authority over navigable water do not apply to man made channels, such as the canal.

Pays for Dumping Privilege.

The city now pays the Industrial Refuse Disposal company, of which Paul V. Collanni, Democratic trustee of the sanitary district, is part owner, 47 cents a cubic yard to dump in the abandoned quarry at 19th and Lincoln streets, and 35 cents to the Chicago Grading company for use of the old Ogden ditch at 39th street and Cicero avenue.

By dumping in the unfilled sections of the old canal, which lie within the city limits or adjacent to the city, Col. Sprague estimated that the city would save at least $150,000 a year. At the same time the city will be helping to fill in the old canal bed making it available for a state highway between Chicago and Joliet, a project that has been discussed for some time.

Attorneys for the sanitary board have indicated the district will not interfere with steps to fill in the canal and the dumping is expected to be resumed at once.

DEPRESSION HITS BEER TRADE; CUTS DELIVERY COSTS

The depression has hit the beer business and expenses have been cut to conform to income. Where a truckload of 45 barrels used to be a common order, present demands are for brew in two and three barrel lots. As a result the expensive and slow moving trucks are being replaced by inexpensive and speedy pleasure cars.

The change in the Capone syndicate equipment was discovered yesterday by Elliot Ness, chief prohibition investigator. Ness arrested two men driving a small sedan as they were unloading two barrels of beer in the rear of Hanley's club, 2500 South State street. The auto had an ingenuous unloading device which operated when the rear door opened. Skids dropped to the ground and the barrels rolled out with a minimum of effort and time. When the doors were closed the conveyance looked like a family automobile. Those arrested, John Smith and Robert Inham, both giving their home address as Grant park, were held in bonds of $1,000 by Commissioner Walker. Their hearing was set for Sept. 14.

ENJOIN INDIANA FROM BOOSTING VALUATIONS 10%

Circuit Judge E. Miles Norton of Crown Point, Ind., yesterday granted a group of taxpayers a temporary injunction restraining the Indiana state tax board from increasing by 10 per cent the total assessed valuation of real estate in incorporated cities and towns of Lake county.

The county board of tax review had certified the total valuation of such property as $367,000,000, a reduction of $111,000,000 from the 1931 valuation. After an investigation, the state board announced the 10 per cent increase.

Judge Norton ruled that the state body had not advertised the intention of making the increase. He also held that the state tax board could rule only on the entire county and could not legally increase the levy on the area restricted to incorporated towns and cities. Judge Norton will set a hearing date on the permanent injunction next Friday.

THE BATTLE OF THE GRAN CHACO

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 12.—(AP)—An official army communique tonight declared Bolivian troops had beaten back Paraguayan attackers all along the Fort Boqueron line in the disputed Gran Chaco region, and that the four day old battle was still in progress.

"Fort Boqueron had never been in possession of the Paraguayans, and its defenses are such that it can hold out against any attack," the communique added.

Another army communique said many Paraguayan cadets had been killed in engagements with the Bolivian 14th infantry regiment, which still was in the line and "fighting heroically." The communique told of a Paraguayan air raid on Fort Arce. No damage was reported from the attack of three planes.

Paraguay Claims Victory.

ASUNSION, Paraguay, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Reports describing "the withdrawal" of Bolivian troops from the Fort Boqueron area upon the appearance of 15,000 Paraguayan reinforcements were published here tonight. All the newspapers quoted intercepted radio dispatches which they said had originated with the Bolivian army operating in the heart of the Chaco region.

Official Paraguayan army communiques today reiterated that Paraguayan forces had taken Boqueron last Friday, and had "completely annihilated" the Bolivian 14th infantry in fending off subsequent counter attacks.

NAB PARRICIDE SEEKING CAREER AS A "GANGSTER"

James John Harvat, 19 years old, started on a career of crime from his home in Osceola, Ind., Sunday evening with the gun with which he killed his father last April 7, and his chum, Denver Whiting, 18 years old. The career ended in 24 hours last night with his return to South Bend to face three holdup charges after arrest by Chicago police earlier in the day.

The youths started walking 10 miles east to South Bend at 8 o'clock Saturday evening. In South Bend they held up Bart Makowski and took his automobile and a few dollars. With the car they robbed two gas station attendants and left for Chicago.

They were arrested on suspicion by Policemen Charles Andersen and Edwin Eichmann shortly after their arrival. They were held for South Bend police on a message broadcast for their arrest. They were returned to South Bend by 8 o'clock last night.

Harvat said he came to Chicago to become a gangster. He said he had been arrested but once before—for the murder of his father, Joseph, but was freed by a coroner's jury when he said his father attacked him with a knife.

MICHIGAN GOLFER LEADS IN U. S. AMATEUR TOURNEY

Jack Westland of Chicago Second.

The Cards

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—The cards of Johnny Fischer and Jack Westland in today's qualifying play in the national amateur golf tournament follow:

Fischer—Out	453	345	334—34
In	544	345	433—35—69
Westland—Out	534	345	343—36

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Johnny Fischer, 21 year old University of Michigan junior, who sprang into national golf prominence by his victory in this year's intercollegiate tournament, set a blistering pace in the first 18 hole qualifying round of the 36th annual national amateur championship on the Five Farms course today.

While many others of far greater repute were having trouble with the 6,630 yard layout, the tall, hard hitting Fischer established a new course record with a brilliant 69, one stroke below par figures.

Although conditions for scoring were perfect, the day cool and the air still, no one else in the field of 154 starters was able to match the innocent looking par for the rolling course.

Westland Shoots 71.

Jack Westland of Chicago, runner-up to Francis Ouimet for the amateur crown last year, came the closest, but his attempt was two strokes above the figures made by Fischer.

While par proved baffling, the scoring generally was good, so good in fact that tonight it appeared as if the hopes of all the British players have been swept away and that quite a few favored Americans are in danger of being eliminated.

Even Francis Ouimet, the defending champion, is in grave danger with his score of 78, for his name appears far down in the list with 48 men ahead of him with scores of 76 and better. If conditions remain the same tomorrow as they were today, it is believed the Bostonian will have to do a 73 on his next round in order to be safe and, judging by today, 73 is not easy to attain.

Five Come In with 72.

Only 13 men in the field managed to hit 73 or better today, five returning scores of 72 and six scores of 73.

Those who managed to stay within two shots of par with 72 were Charley Yates, young Atlantan, who has won his state championship for the last two years; Johnny Goodman, the Nebraskan, who, eliminated Bobby Jones at Pebble Beach in 1929; W. O. Blaney, former Williams captain; George Voigt, and Dwight L. Armstrong of Lancaster, Pa.

The men who scored 73s and hence are in a comfortable spot going into the final 18 hole test are: Edwin A. McClure, Louisiana state champion; C. Ross Summerville, former Canadian title holder; Sidney Noyes, member of the Yale golf team; H. Chandler Egan, 48 year old Pacific coast golfer who won the amateur championship in 1904 and 1905; Wilfred Crossley, former Massachusetts junior champion, and Perry E. Hall of Bridgeport, Pa.

Tolley, Guilford Safe.

Among the stars who appear to be on the safe side after the dreaded first round are Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion and now a resident of New York; Jesse Guilford, Boston, who won the title at St. Louis in 1921; and Chick Evans, holder of the title in 1916 and again in 1920. Along with six others the trio notched 74s, which puts them in a favorable position for the next round, with all the strain off their shoulders.

Young Charley Seaver, Californian, who was a semi-finalist two years ago, had a 75, as did three others, while among the twenty-two who were grouped at 76 were Johnny Lehman of Chicago, former western champion; Gus Moreland, young Texan who holds the western amateur crown; Eddie Driggs, Frank Dolp, former western title holder; and John E. Parker, who was runnerup to Tommy Tailer in the metropolitan amateur championship this year at Plainfield.

Many in No Man's Land.

From there on, in the zone that is "no man's land" for qualifiers, are all the British players, three former national champions, Ouimet, and several members of this year's Walker cup team. Jess Sweetser and Harrison R. Johnston, winners of the title in 1922 and 1929, have 77, slow work against tomorrow, while Max R. Marston, who beat Sweetser at Flossmoor in 1923, is even worse off with a 79.

Among the British invaders, Johnny De Forest, the present champion, had a 78 to lead the delegation. Eric McRuvie and W. L. Hartley had 79; Tony Torrance, the Walker cup captain who played with Ouimet, had 80; Rex Hartley had 81; and Eric Fiddian, supposed to be one of the strongest of the visiting golfers, catapulted himself completely out of the championship by taking a 90. A 10 on the sixth

Babe Ruth of 1932---Wiser, Richer and Still a Slugger

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1932 By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Sept. 12.—In the career and character of Babe Ruth, a post-war phenomenon, you may discover a miniature of the story of the United States. He was a nobody from nowhere who, by his own gifts and industry and happy accidents, became rich, reckless, extravagant, successful, and beloved. There have been times when his troubles have had him down and all but out.

BABE RUTH.

He is as sentimental, particularly about the ragamuffin type of kid who hangs around the players' gates of the ball yards, as the U. S. A. ever was about France. He has thrown confetti money to the winds and he has had moods of remorse and moral stock taking when he resolved to mend his ways, save his money, and live a finer life.

Being naturally joyous and generous, the Babe has celebrated his success and easy money a good deal the same way that the nation itself celebrated with governmental extravagance. He laughs easily and he can also break down and bawl sentimentally on slight provocation.. And now that the end of his personal boom is approaching he reveals a quality of common sense. For all his spending and nonsense, the Babe has amassed some assets. He also has the vitality to go on and is, as the statesmen would say, fundamentally sound.

End of the Babe's Boom Not so Near.

The end of the Babe's personal boom is not as near as he, himself, thinks and hopes. For two years he has been planning to retire from the baseball business. He has been a player since 1914, when Jack Dunn of the modern Orioles of Baltimore took him out of St. Mary's Industrial school as a sort of indentured apprentice, to teach him the baseball trade, at a salary of $600 a year.

He really wants to retire in one sense, but also is trying with every ounce of his strength to postpone the day when he must quit. He will quit, says he, when he is no longer a great ball player—when he is no longer Babe Ruth. He had rather thought that that time would come this year. The Babe speaks yearningly of a day when he will be able to go to the ball yard as a passenger, not a member of the crew, or sit on the bench and run a club as manager. He is baseball weary.

But in the year which he had expected to be his last he has made 40 home runs and hit for a batting statistic of .348. Therefore this obviously is not his year to quit, especially with the depression going and so many people out of jobs. Those 40 home runs and the statistic of .348 are not much for Babe, but a young ball player, coming along, who could do that well would be regarded as a marvelous athlete and the papers would publish his face next to pure reading matter. They might even call him the new Babe Ruth.

He's Made Million Since 1919, First Big Year.

The Babe has made approximately a million dollars since 1919, when he really began hitting the home runs that eventually reached a total of about 600. For five years he received $52,000 a year and pickings. For three years he was paid $70,000 a year. For two years more his salary was $80,000. This year it was $70,000 again. And always there have been the pickings from the movies, exhibitions and syndicates.

Next year his salary may not be more than $50,000. He is not the Ruth that he was and, anyway, prices are not what they were. But even if his pay should drop to $50,000 he couldn't afford to quit. That would be like throwing away $50,000 and the Babe is not throwing his money away any more.

He had the luck to mature as a great hitter at a time when the baseball magnates, for reasons of sound showmanship and business, had secretly decided to stimulate the official league baseball so as to exaggerate the hitting and minimize the scientific quality of the game. In furtherance of this plan they also decided to penalize the pitchers, forbidding the most effective arts which the pitchers had evolved in the course of years.

The stimulated ball, pitched at him

Ruth Back to Normal; Will Be Out in Two Days

New York, Sept. 12.—[Special.]—"The Babe is right back to normal and he will be out in a couple of days."

That was the cheering word from Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, tonight on the condition of George Herman Ruth.

Barrow said Ruth was allowed to sit up this morning. It is expected that he will be out of bed by Wednesday or Thursday.

Asked to be specific on what constituted "back to normal" for the famous invalid, the Yankee official replied:

"He has no temperature and it is no longer necessary to use ice packs. With another two days' rest he should be up and around. That's the report I have from Dr. King."

Whether Ruth will rejoin the Yankees before they return home has not been given consideration as yet.

WHEN IS SAFETY A TOUCHBACK? THIS WILL TELL YOU

It All Depends on Where Impetus Starts.

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on football. Technical questions will be answered. Address letters to Football Editor, Sports department, Chicago Tribune.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The score, of course, is of final importance in football. As soon as you mention how points are scored, the old problem of safety and touchback bobs up to confuse the fan. The safety counts two points, the touchback none, hence the importance.

The safety is recovery of the ball behind its own goal line by the team which gave the "impetus" or force to the ball. Here it must be remembered that a team defends its own goal line and attempts to advance to the opponents' goal. Several examples of how safeties are scored follow:

1 A player of the team putting the ball into play [he gives impetus to the ball] downs the ball in his own scoring zone [the zone his team defends]. This may occur after an attempted run, a fumble, or an inaccurate pass from the center who snapped the ball back.

3 A kick [punt] is blocked [by players of either team] and is recovered by the kicking team in its own scoring zone. If the blocked ball bounds completely out of the scoring zone of the team kicking but not into the field of play it automatically becomes a safety.

4 A safety also may be scored on a foul by the team in its own scoring zone or by an illegal forward pass by a team in its own scoring zone. These occur so seldom, however, that they may be disregarded by the fan.

There Are Many Touchbacks.

If the ball is sent over the goal line by the team striving to reach that goal, it is a touchback.

Touchbacks frequently are the result of [1] a kick [punt] from scrimmage by the attacking team which bounds into the opponents' scoring zone, [2] an unsuccessful place kick or drop kick into the opponents' scoring zone, [3] a forward pass which is incomplete, landing in or beyond the opponents' scoring zone, and [4] a forward pass which is caught beyond the scoring zone by a player of the attacking team.

The first three of these situations are very common and probably will occur in every game. The forward pass caught beyond the end line generally confuses the spectator who frequently believes that a touchdown has been made. There are other circumstances under which touchbacks are made, but these are sufficient for the average fan.

Kick Part of Touchdown.

Points are awarded in football for the touchdown and goal from the field. The point after touchdown, which raises the value of the touchdown to 7 points, is considered part of the touchdown. Briefly, a touchdown is made by a player who carries the ball to or across his opponents' goal line or a player who receives a forward pass in his opponents' scoring zone. A touchdown also may be scored by a player recovering the ball in his opponents' scoring zone when it has been put into play by his opponents.

Recovery of a blocked kick in the opponents' scoring zone by the team on defense is an example. On the kick off, if the ball goes into the opponents' scoring zone and is there recovered by a player of the kicking team it is a touchdown.

The field goal may be scored from scrimmage by a place kick (a player holds the ball on the ground for another to kick) or by a drop kick (the kicker drops the ball to the ground and kicks it on the rebound). To be successful the ball must pass over the opponents' goal posts or cross bar connecting the goal posts. The ball must not hit a player of the kicking team or the ground before crossing the bar or posts.

O, HOW THE MONEY ROLLS IN!

In the Wake of the News

POT POURRI.

DESPITE the depression, advance applications for world series tickets ar coming in fast, according to Cubs officials.

At a time when race tracks and football managements are reducing prices of admission to attract cash customers, baseball adheres to its series prices of $5.50 per game for reserved seats and $6.60 for box seats. Furthermore, tickets are not sold for single games, but in blocks of three, so the tariff is $16.50 or $19.80. That is considerable of anybody's money right now, but apparently the fans wishing to see the Cubs have it to spare. Anyway, they have it, as their ticket applications prove.

Ellsworth Vines, American net champion, proved again his superiority over Henri Cochet, French ace, in the national singles finals at Forest Hills Saturday. Vines had scored a surprising victory over Cochet in the Davis cup, at least surprising to the Frenchman, but that performance was discounted in Paris by the fact that the French, when this match was played, already had the international trophy in the bag. Hence it was argued Cochet was not keyed to his best.

Cochet came to the United States with the avowed purpose of avenging that defeat. Instead he took a more conclusive trimming. It was unfortunate that Cochet was forced to play one set of his semi-final match on the morning of his finals match. That, however, was hardly excuse for the temperamental outburst attributed to him that he never again would play in this country. That's up to him. There's no reason to think he would fare any better another time. He's growing older and Vines probably has not yet reached top form.

That the United States placed three representatives in the semi-finals with nine of the ten world ranking players entered is augury of ultimate recovery of the Davis cup.

That Walsh Jr.-Sullivan Jr. battery combination, although beaten in its advertised inaugural, furnishes about the brightest bit of color in the somewhat drab White Sox. Your baseball fan is a sentimental chap at heart, if given any excuse for so being, and the Wake, along with many others, will wish this pair well in their efforts to emulate their famous dads.

He searched for treasures
In countries near and far,
But by gold he was blinded
To the beauty of a star.
He never heard the music
Of the wind in tall treetops
Because he was listening
For the market's rise or drop.
He could not fathom the joy
In the laughter of a child,
Nor why simple things satisfied
The folk whom they beguiled.
He always shunned the misery
In a beggar's pleading eyes
And trampled on his fellows
In a mad desire to rise.
So, with relentless crushing,
He soon surpassed his goal,
But power had deadened him
To the noble demands of Soul.

Ten Victories Still Necessary for Cub Flag

Johnny Frederick's home run which beat the Cubs in the ninth inning yesterday did not dishearten the dopesters. Five games in front with 14 to play is considered a safe margin.

To clinch the pennant, the Cubs must win 10 of 14 contests if the Pirates take 14 straight. Such a winning streak would include four victories over the present pace setters.

If the Cubs break even in the four game series with Pittsburgh opening at Wrigley field Sept. 20, they can clinch the flag by winning six additional games. That would permit the Pirates 12 victories out of 14. The standing in that case would be:

Cubs	91	63	.591
Pirates	90	64	.584

If the Pirates win all 14, the Cubs would have to bear down for 10 out of 14 to make a final tabulation of:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	93	61	.604
Pirates	92	62	.597

Should the Cubs merely play .500 ball, 7 victories and 7 losses, the Pirates would have to win 13 out of 14 to nose them out, as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Pirates	91	63	.591
Cubs	90	64	.584

FREDERICK HITS HOMER TO WIN FOR DODGERS

One On, One Out in 9th; Then--Wham!

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Johnny Frederick, pinch hitting with one on base and one out in the ninth, this afternoon knocked his sixth pinch home run of the season to nullify a two run riot the Cubs had staged in the first half of the inning and gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 4 to 3 victory in the season final between the teams. It was Frederick's second pinch homer of the series and the fourth against the Cubs, but the first that did any damage.

Frederick's dramatic effort, which broke a major league record he set in Saturday's game, was at the expense of Burleigh Grimes, who had relieved Bud Tinning in the eighth inning, when the Cubs were behind, 2 to 1. It was Burleigh's tenth setback of the season and enabled the second place Pirates to gain a game on the Cubs, whom they now trail by five games. Tomorrow the Cubs will play a double header with the New York Giants while the Pirates will engage the Boston Braves in a single conflict.

On Way to a Record.

Frederick not only set a new pinch home run record, but seems in a fair way to set a general pinch hitting record which will give the part time workers in the majors something to shoot at for many years. In 14 pinch batting appearances he has knocked those six homers, four doubles and one single. Three of the homers and one of the doubles have decided ball games.

The manner in which today's game ended was a distinct shock to the Cubs because they have come to expect their ninth and extra inning riots to stick after their accomplishment. The Cub ninth this afternoon was like many they staged at home during their historic August-September stand. The main difference today was that the enemy had a subsequent time at bat.

English Starts Rally.

To give you some idea of the shock to the sensitive feelings of the league leaders, it may be well to set down here what the Cubs did in their final turn at bat.

In the seventh the Dodgers had broken a 1 to 1 tie. As a result the Cubs went into the ninth on the short end of a 2 to 1 count.

Herman grounded out to Finn for the first out, but English singled to right. Cuyler sent a high fly to right center and Wilson lost it in the sun, but Taylor was racing for it and English was afraid to start running. When the ball dropped for a single English decided to go to third, but he had started too late, for Wilson recovered the ball and threw to Finn for the putout, Cuyler reaching second on the throw.

Demaree Fools 'Em.

Stephenson was given his second intentional pass so Clark could pitch to Demaree, who previously had permitted four runners to die on base. Demaree shot a hot single to Clancy. Clancy recovered the ball and slammed it at Clark too hard for him to handle at such short range, so Cuyler came in with the tying run. Stephenson pulled up at third and Demaree stopped at first.

Grimm singled to right, scoring Stephenson with what the Cubs expected to be the winning run, and Demaree went to third. There was no great disappointment when Hartnett was thrown out by Finn. The Cubs had done their stuff in the fashion which recently had made them famous. They were content.

It's All Rosy at Start.

In the Dodger eighth Grimes had not allowed Finn, O'Doul or Wilson to get near first base. He started pitching in the Dodger ninth and the performance seemed a routine matter as Koenig threw out Cuccinello for the first out.

Wright, however, blurred the picture of contentment and assurance when he banged a double off the right

Ineligibility Takes Duvall from Purple

Hugh Duvall, on whom Coach Dick Hanley had counted heavily in preparing for the coming Northwestern football campaign, is ineligible, it was announced yesterday. Duvall, who comes from Owensboro, Ky., and who attended Elgin academy, was one of the stars on the freshman squad last fall. He is a full back, weighing 190 pounds. He also is a baseball and track athlete.

Northwestern's list of losses also includes Ken Meenan, veteran of last year's team, who is ineligible under Northwestern's rules of competition, although meeting conference requirements. Meenan may not enter the university until the second semester. Henry Mellin, a substitute quarter back, also is lost to Hanley. Mellin, by his superior grades, won an Austin scholarship and now is touring Europe. Robert Notley, another sophomore full back, from Tulsa, Okla., where he won the state wrestling title in addition to playing football and basketball, has been declared ineligible.

BROWN WISDOM AGAIN DECEIVES HIS TURF PUBLIC

Jimmy Moran Wins, with Pancho Lopez Second.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Brown Wisdom, the old deceiver of the western turf, wasn't in a running mood again at Lincoln Fields yesterday. So once more the folks who refused to let him be a forgotten horse lost their shirts.

He was the favorite at a little better than even money in the Lake Forest purse, but he came plodding home in third place. Jimmy Moran from Mose Goldblatt's stable was the unexpected winner. Pancho Lopez finished second and had a good respectable alibi for losing the race.

Pancho Lopez wore four bandages and the fellow who put them on didn't do a good job. Two of them came loose as he drove down the stretch in the lead. As the bandages unfurled they flew up and around like a kite which didn't want to fly. If Pancho Lopez had stepped on one of them, he would have gone down in a sprawl.

Lets Jimmy Moran Sneak In.

He went out of stride to keep from getting tangled up with the flying tape. Then he bore out just enough to let Jimmy Moran skim through on the inside next to the rail and win by three quarters of a length.

Almost from the beginning it appeared as if it would be Pancho Lopez's race. Stock Market beat him away from the barrier, but before they had gone half a furlong Pancho Lopez was in front by a length and then by two lengths. Brown Wisdom was going along in second place and gave his backers some hope.

As they wheeled into the stretch Pancho Lopez was leading by nearly two lengths. Brown Wisdom still was second and Jimmy Moran, saving ground at every stride while hugging the rail, had raced into third position.

Fast Six Furlongs.

Maybe Pancho Lopez was running so fast he kicked the bandages loose. At any rate, they began to fly around like a political banner unfurled on a windy day on Lake Michigan. Pancho Lopez faltered and raced wide. Jimmy Moran sneaked through on the inside and the race was over.

Jimmy Moran reeled off a fast six furlongs when he ran the route in 1:12.

The prize long shot of the Lincoln Fields season came along in the fourth race when Indian Mist got up in the last few jumps to beat Little Connelly, a field horse, by a length.

Connelly Runs Wide.

In the mutuels he paid $67.84 to win, $25.20 to place and $11.50 to show. Little Connelly was also at tall odds, paying $29.30 to place and $10.98 to show. Momo landed third money. The favorite, Gertrude L, was nowhere.

Little Connelly probably would have been the winner, but tore for the outside fence rounding into the stretch. It took some time for Jockey King to get him back into stride and he was up just in time to save second money.

SMITTY—A DIRTY TRICK

Flowery Lady Fails Fair Fan for $13,192

"Come on, Flowery Lady! Run, darlin', run!"

The shout went up from a woman on the veranda of the clubhouse at Lincoln Fields during the third race yesterday.

"Please, Flowery Lady! Run faster!" came another shrill plea from the woman.

One couldn't blame her for helping Jockey C. Meyer ride Flowery Lady. This woman, who disappeared soon after the running of the race, held the only daily double ticket sold on the combination of Miss Tulsa, winner of the second race, and Flowery Lady. If the latter had won her ticket would have been worth $13,192.

But Flowery Lady finished 10th. Only 11 horses started in the race.

The winning daily double combination was Miss Tulsa and Printemps. It paid $76.24. About 200 beat the daily double.

Bimini was out in front until the final strides and finished second. If he had won each daily double winner would have collected $1,199.34.

Jack Howard is the leading trainer of the Lincoln Fields season. A furious battle is taking place for the jockey championship among Wayne Wright, M. Calvert, T. P. Martin and Charley Corbett.

Tom Jack Jr. proved that he is something more than a morning glory when he won the first race. For two months he has been working faster than any other two year old in the Chicago district. In the afternoons, however, he ran like a plow horse until he drove home in front yesterday.

Jockeys Jimmy McCoy and Jake Heupel arrived from Dade Park yesterday. McCoy will go into action at once. Heupel, who was reinstated in Kentucky a short time ago, must wait for a time to see if the Illinois Turf association will grant him a license. He once was known as one of the bad boys of the Kentucky turf.

Most of the regulars at Lincoln Fields will back Ladysman in the Belmont Futurity on Saturday. The son of Pompey needs only the Futurity to clinch the two year old championship. He has accounted already for the Arlington Futurity and Saratoga's Hopeful stakes. The Futurity probably will be his last race this year, Owner W. R. Coe has indicated.

New Catholic Youth Center Is Dedicated

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

As the first step in a vast development in the youth activities of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, Cardinal Mundelein dedicated the new athletic center of the Catholic Youth organization yesterday afternoon. The new center occupies four floors of the Congress Bank building, Wabash avenue and Congress street.

Following the dedication rites in which the cardinal, accompanied by Msgrs. Dennie Dunne, F. A. Purcell, and Daniel Byrne, blessed the athletic equipment, a program was held in the gymnasium. The platform occupied by Cardinal Mundelein and other dignitaries was the steel boxing ring.

In his address the cardinal stressed the need of a wide range of recreational activities for young people. He pointed to "the great change which has come over the face of the city during the last ten years," and declared that "youth must be rescued from the street corner, speakeasy and gang headquarters."

Praises Bishop Sheil.

Cardinal Mundelein praised the work of Bishop Bernard J. Sheil for his leadership during the last three years in the development of youth activities which, he said, now reach 200,000 boys and girls of the diocese. As the cardinal referred to social changes which demand the church's attention to recreation, he pointed to unemployment and shorter working hours as presenting new social dangers unless constructive use of spare time is fostered by the church.

Further plans of the Catholic Youth organization will be explained at a banquet tomorrow night in the Stevens hotel. The banquet will be attended by 500 business and professional men of the city who will be addressed by officials of the youth organization.

Following the dedication program yesterday the Rev. Joseph F. Eckert told of the history of the youth movement which is gaining impetus throughout the world.

Movement Begun in Germany.

Father Eckert said the movement began in Germany shortly after the war, largely as a defense against communist propaganda which began seeping into that country from Russia. The youth movement grew rapidly under the sponsorship of both the Catholic church and the Evangelical State church of Germany. These two youth organizations, said Father Eckert, completely stopped the malignant growth of the communist youth movement.

"Before the war," he went on, "boxing was completely forbidden by the government. But the two youth organizations of Germany won repeal of laws against that sport, and now, in the athletic field, boxing is the most popular recreation among the organizations. You saw a few weeks ago at the International Golden Gloves matches at Soldiers' field how the German youths had developed in boxing."

Organization Active in Europe.

Father Eckert said he had been able to observe the development of the youth organizations in Germany and other parts of Europe during two tours of those countries in the last six years.

"You see the organizations everywhere," he explained. "They have completely blocked the communists. They hold great conventions. Not only do they have all sorts of athletic contests but also deep discussions of problems—very learned discussions!"

The new center in Chicago will be supervised by Bishop Sheil, assisted by the Rev. Gerald P. Scanlon, director of the organization. It was announced that in the afternoons women's activities will be offered, while at night both men and boys will have access to the bowling alleys, gymnasium and other equipment.

Bowling will be under the direction of James C. Archer, famous Cub catcher of former world's championship days. Patrick [Packey] McFarland, former lightweight champion, will direct boxing activities. Direction of the center will be in the hands of Jack Elder of Notre Dame.

SOUTH DAKOTA OPENS PHEASANT SEASON OCT. 20

Birds Will Be Plentiful, Sportsman Assures.

BY BOB BECKER.

"Plenty of birds. The season opens Oct. 20." This is the report just received from South Dakota concerning the 1932 pheasant hunting season, which annually lures scores of Illinois hunters into the coyote state, noted for its exceptionally good sport with the ringnecks.

Dr. W. A. Rothschild, sportsman-mayor of Madison, S. D., who in recent years has advised many Illinois pheasant hunters where to go shooting in South Dakota, writes that he will be glad again to act as an adviser this fall. Dr. Rothschild is an experienced upland game and waterfowl hunter who knows the South Dakota pheasant situation thoroughly. His letter follows:

"I was sorry I missed you in the Black Hills. As a matter of fact, I was just one day late in calling at the state game lodge where you stayed. You checked out the afternoon before I arrived.

Season Continues Thirty Days.

"Here is the news of the pheasant situation in South Dakota. It will give Illinois sportsmen who come annually to the state for pheasant hunting information on bag limits and dates.

"The pheasant season east of the Missouri river opens at noon Oct. 20 and continues 30 days. Don't forget that one can shoot only during the afternoons. The nonresident license fee is $25. The daily bag limit is four cock pheasants per day. The nonresident license allows the legal possession of 25 birds, all of which must be cocks. The out of state hunter gets tags for these. Thus there is no question about the possession or shipment of that number of birds.

"Notice that this 30 day season operates in counties east of the Missouri river. West of the river the season is so short on pheasants and prairie chickens that I think it hardly worth the attention of sportsmen who might come from the central states.

Ducks Will Move South.

"I cannot at this writing say much for duck conditions. At present there are hundreds of ducks on our sloughs and marshes. But the majority are of the early variety and will undoubtedly be moving south before Oct. 20. With plenty of fall rains, the late season may turn out well. However, I do not look for the old time canvasback and red-head shooting any place in the state this fall.

"There are many farms to shoot on, plenty of places where permission to hunt may be obtained and places for Illinois hunters to stay. I'll be glad to answer inquiries from sportsmen if stamped, addressed envelopes are inclosed."

Baer's Edge on Griffith to Be 12 to 20 Pounds

Max Baer will have an edge of from 12 to 20 pounds over Tuffy Griffith when they fight Sept. 26 in the Chicago Stadium, but Griffith is making sure he will be able to cope with this handicap.

Tuffy got down to hard training yesterday at Kid Howard's gym and among the human targets who reported to act as spar boys was a lad named Tiny Austin. Tiny weighs a mere 260 pounds. He stands 6 feet 4 inches. Austin will stage a daily work out with Tuffy, who thus will become accustomed to the weight handicap.

Griffith has been working for the last week. When he began his daily drill he scaled 194 pounds. His best fighting weight is somwhere between 184 and 188 and he expects to be closer to the latter figure at bell time.

STUHLEY BEATS RAY TRAMBLIE IN TEN ROUNDS

Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., boxer, won a ten round bout from Ray Tramblie, Rockford middleweight, at White City last night before a crowd of 1,000. Receipts were about $900.

Stuhley piled up points with his left jab throughout, but Tramblie slugged with the Kewanee fighter in the first and eighth rounds. The victory was the most impressive of Stuhley's eight wins in Chicago.

Dick Sisk, Brighton Park junior welterweight, defeated Harry Menering of Crawfordsville, Ind., in the six round semi-final. The bout was Menering's first defeat as a professional.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Members of the White Sox baseball school were able to offer little resistance yesterday to the Washington Senators' plans for second place world series money. The freshmen pitchers didn't do very well and the third basing efforts of Jack Rothrock were next to futile. The visiting contingent made good use of these items for their ninth win in a row, and also their eighteenth of the season from the south siders out of the 21 played. The score was 9 to 3.

Although the Sox weren't adept as pupils, they, at least, were given a lasting lesson by Alvin Crowder, who is more or less a master of pitching. The old fellow was so severe that for eight innings he permitted only one of them to reach second base. In the ninth, however, he took a more lenient attitude and the Sox were granted a few minutes of pleasure, during which three runs were scored on four hits and a pass.

Rothrock Gets Careless.

Bill Chamberlain, one of the Sox's freshman pitchers, started but was hardly given a square deal. He was all right in the first inning, but in the second Rothrock slipped in one of his costly blunders and three runs followed. Later Chamberlain gave up a pair of legitimate tallies before retiring. Then, to prove that he played no favorites, Rothrock erred again as soon as Phil Gallivan appeared in the sixth. This precipitated another three run outburst. After observing these actions by his third sacker, Prof. Fonseca announced that Red Kress would be stationed there today in the final with Washington and a place in the outfield would be found for Evar Swanson, the slugger due to report from the Columbus A. A. club.

As soon as the second inning opened Rothrock made a wide throw to Sullivan on Reynolds' grounder. Chamberlain didn't help matters any when he walked West. Bluege endeavored to bunt, but popped to Sullivan. Spencer boosted a long fly to Seeds and Reynolds sprinted to third after the catch. Chamberlain then made the biggest mistake of all. He walked Crowder, filling the bases. Kuhel slapped a single down the right field line, scoring Reynolds and West and shoving Crowder to third. The latter ran home with the help of a passed ball committed by Berry.

Senators Get Two More.

The Senators came up with two hits in the fourth and made them good for two runs. Bluege led off with a single to left and raced around to the plate when a fly by Spencer fell between Norman and Seeds for a double. Crowder sent Spencer to third on a sacrifice and Kuhel contributed a fly to center, on which the run scored.

Gallivan's start in the sixth was marred by Rothrock letting Bluege's grounder slip through his hands. Spencer beat out a slow roller to the unhappy third baseman. Crowder bunted, but Berry grabbed the ball and tossed to third to force Bluege. Kuhel's low drive shot past Gallivan and into center for a single, scoring Spencer and moving Crowder to third. Myer fouled out, and, while Manush was at bat, Gallivan let go with a wild pitch, Crowder counting and Kuhel going to second. Manush then singled and Cronin did the same, Kuhel scoring.

Hit and Run Play Works.

Another slight outbreak cost Gallivan a run in the eighth. Kuhel walked with one out and tore for third when Myer responded to a hit and run signal by poking the ball safely through short. Kuhel scored on Manush's single to right, whereupon a double play was completed to hurry the finish.

The harmless flurry indulged in by the Sox in the ninth started with Hayes scratching a hit to Cronin. Seeds beat out a roller to Bluege. Sullivan grounded into a forceout at second and Appling walked to fill the bases. Kress' single to left drove home two of the runners. After Norman had fouled out Berry made his third hit of the day to score Appling with the final run.

hole, a dog leg, after he had started with a 5 and a 6, put him out of the running.

Dunlap Takes 77.

Other prominent players who went above the mark they were expected to hit were George Dunlap, Don Moe, Billy Howell, and Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., who were members of the victorious Walker cup team. Dunlap, who registered a 66 in the cup matches, had 77 at Five Farms today, as did McCarthy. Moe, who won the western title a year ago, scored 80, while young Howell, who gave Ouimet a terrific match in the semi-final round at Beverly a year ago, took 83.

Other topnotchers in the danger zone are Pat Sawyer, Minnesota state champion, 77; Keefe Carter, former western champion; Leonard Martin, former metropolitan district titleholder; and Nicol Thompson Jr., Canadian star, who took 79 strokes; Tommy Tailer, J. Wood Platt, and Eugene Homans, 80; Richard Chapman, 81; Charles H. Mayo Jr. and Watts Gunn, 82.

Ouimet in Trouble Early.

Most of the blame for Ouimet's trouble today falls on the second hole, where he drove out of bounds and took a 7, three strokes over par. Then just as he was at the top of his swing on his drive to the next hole, Torrance, his partner, took a practice swing unwittingly and unintentionally. Whether that was what put the champion off or not, the fact remains that his ball was badly hooked and he had to play three from the tee, losing stroke and distance. His second shot after that was to the right of the green, his next almost in a bunker, and he did well to get down in 7.

The unfortunate incident put both Ouimet and Torrance off their game and it was a struggle for them from there on. Ouimet did all right until he got to the tenth hole, where another hook put his tee shot into the brook that parallels the fairway and he took a 6. He also lost a stroke on the 11th and 15th holes, and pushed his drive under the apple trees playing the 18th, which cost him another stroke and brought him home in 40.

Fischer, one of the early starters, had three birdies on the first nine and two on the home nine to offset the loss of four strokes to par during the round.

Bernardi and Martin Shoot Best Ball 143

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Sam Bernardi, Briergate professional, and Dick Martin, Chicago district amateur champion from Sunset Valley, one of the best ball twosomes in this section on the basis of this season's play, put on another performance yesterday to win the third annual pro-amateur tournament of the Chicago District Golf association at the Medinah Country club. They finished the 36 holes of play over the No. 1 and No. 3 courses with a best ball score of 143.

The Bernardi-Martin twosome was only one stroke ahead of Frank Brady and Lewis Goesel of Idlewild, who came home with 144, which included a six on the eighteenth hole of the No. 1 course. Sam and Dick both agreed that they had done everything possible to present the victory to Frank and Lewis. Both encountered trouble on the afternoon round, Dick missing a number of short putts for birdies. They had gone over the difficult No. 3 course in the morning with a 70, but required a 73 in the matinee round.

Two father and son combinations, the Jock Hutchisons of Glen View and the Laurie Aytons of Evanston divided third and fourth honors with 145's. The Hutchisons tied with Bernardi and Martin at the intermission by getting a 70, but took 75 in the afternoon. The Aytons had a 73 in the morning, but clipped a stroke off that on No. 1, due, the senior Ayton admitted, to his namesake's play on the last three holes. Abe Espinosa and Oliver Schmidt of the home club took fifth, last place in the prize list, with 146.

It took Frank Brady, the Idlewild professional, to subdue the hazardous No. 3 course, with the best individual card of the day, a par 72. The mark establishes a new professional record for the course in competitive play.

Leading scores, with professionals listed first, follow:

Sam Bernardi, Briergate, and Dick Martin, Sunset Valley, 70—73—143.

Frank Brady and Lewis Goesel, Idlewild, 71—73—144.

Pirates Capture Third Straight from Phils, 4-2

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP)—A home run by Paul Waner with his brother, Lloyd, on base in the first inning helped Pittsburgh defeat the Phillies, 4 to 2, today. The victory enabled the Pirates to sweep the three game series in Philadelphia.

Doubles by Traynor and Piet gave the Pirates another run in the first inning. The Pirates scored their fourth run in the fifth inning on hits by Traynor and Suhr and a long fly by Piet. Swift went the distance for the Pirates and, although he yielded ten hits, was never in danger.

Cubs Lose to Dodgers, 4-3; Pirates Gain

field wall, but when Frederick was announced as hitting for Clancy no one seemed to think he was due to prolong his marvelous pinch hitting streak.

But that was where Johnny fooled the skeptics. He socked Grimes' second pitch and the players were ready to leave for the bath house at the crack of the bat. There was no doubt that Johnny had done it again. The ball went on its flight to the screen in deep right center—a screen which is 18 inches outside the ball park to make any drive that hits it a homer. The Dodgers had won their first victory from the Cubs in six starts.

Cubs Miss Two Chances.

The Cubs had two scoring chances before the Dodgers got their first run manufacture under way. In the first inning Cuyler walked with two down and stole second, after which Stephenson also walked. Demaree fanned.

In the third inning Cuyler singled to center after two were out and stopped at second on Stephenson's single to deep short. Demaree flied to Wilson.

The Dodgers got a run home in the third. Lopez opened with a single to center, moved up on Clark's sacrifice, and scored on Taylor's single to left. Finn hit into a double play.

Hartnett doubled to right center with one down in the fourth, but Jurges tapped to Finn and Hartnett was run down, Jurges reaching second during the procedure. Taylor then made a nice running catch of Tinning's drive to right center.

Charley Makes It 1-1.

Demaree fouled to Finn to start the sixth. Then Grimm tripled to center and came home with the tying run on Hartnett's single to left. Jurges fanned and Tinning forced Hartnett.

The Cubs had a runner on third with one out, and the bases full with two out, in the seventh. After Herman had sent his third straight fly to Taylor, English tripled to right, but held on while Finn threw out Cuyler. Stephenson was given an intentional pass and stole second, after which Demaree was walked, filling the bases. Grimm fouled to Clancy.

Herman booted Clancy's easy grounder to start the Dodger seventh, Clancy advanced to second on Lopez's sacrifice, and to third while Herman was throwing out Clark. Taylor got credit for his third hit when he beat out a slow bouncer to Herman, Clancy scoring.

You know what happened the rest of the way.

Yankees Buy Van Atta, St. Paul Pitching Star

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Russell Van Atta, left handed pitcher with the St. Paul club of the American Association, was sold today to the New York Yankees for an unannounced sum of cash and two players to be named later. He has won 20 games and lost 16.

World Series Ticket Demand Less Than in '29

Hard times has slowed down the world series business a bit. Not to the point, however, that tickets for the fall event will go begging in Chicago, granted that the Cubs win.

"The orders are coming in fast, but not at the rate that deluged the office force in 1929," said William Veeck, Cub president, yesterday. "It is possible that a bulk of the orders are being withheld until such time as the Cubs actually clinch the flag."

In 1929 so many orders were received that the club was forced to return approximately one million dollars after the supply had been exhausted.

Root, Warneke Pitch Today in Giant Double Bill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 12—Manager Grimm of the Cubs plans to give the Giants plenty to look at in tomorrow's double header. Charley Root, who was held over from today's scheduled appearance to make sure he had plenty of rest, will pitch the first game and Warneke will go after No. 22 in the second.

Clark this afternoon hung up his seventeenth win of the season. He tops the National league lefties.

The Cubs' extra base hitting today consisted of two triples and a double. A triple by Grimm led to the tying of the score, but English's triple and a double by Hartnett both went to waste, although each was knocked with only one out.

Mark Koenig, who has been out of the lineup for five days because of a wrist injury, will be in the starting lineup against the Giants tomorrow.

Ruth of 1932 Wiser, Richer; Still Slugger

under restraint and interrupted with the full power of his free swing, began to sail over the screens and fences and the home run era was on. The Babe soon passed a record of 19 home runs in a season established long before the major leagues had organized their profitable rivalry by some long forgotten slugger named Freeman.

Ruth hit 29, then 54, then on to 59, and finally, in 1927, 60 in a season. Ken Williams of the Browns, George Kelly of the Giants, and Lou Gehrig of his own Yankees tried to challenge him, but, however much the magnates may have helped him by their tampering, they had helped the others in the same degree and Ruth, under the existing conditions, was a magnificent champion.

His ills and injuries have been matters of great national concern many times in the years since the Yankees bought him from the Red Sox for $137,000.

The Babe Vows It's All Water from Then On.

The Babe's dramatic reform after one of his seasons of depression was one of the maudlin incidents in a career characteristic of a maudlin period in this country. Jimmy Walker, a wonder man with a rabble, presided at a dinner and called on the Babe to quit drinking and go straight for the sake of the little dirty faced kids in the street. And the Babe, raising his glass, filled with water, announced that water was to be his drink from now on and that if any one ever saw him drinking anything stronger, that one had the right to call him the dirtiest lowdownest swear name that he could put tongue to.

His first wife was burned to death a few years ago. They had been separated for some time. She had been an unhappy girl who couldn't handle the Babe. She just didn't know how. He wouldn't save his money for her; he wouldn't be nice; he wouldn't come home until late at night, if at all.

His sober, frugal phase began with his remarriage to a shrewd young woman who had worked in a Ziegfeld show. This time the Babe had married a manager and there began the rapid accumulation of an estate through insurance investments which on his retirement, whenever it comes, will yield him an income of at least $1,000 a month as long as he lives.

Five Run Attack with Two Out Beats Indians.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The New York Yankees turned loose their heavy artillery after two were out in the 12th inning today, scored five runs to crush the Indians, 8 to 3, and moved within a single game of clinching the American league pennant.

Ben Chapman started the landslide when he hit a triple down the right foul line with the bases loaded. Bill Dickey followed him with a lofty drive into the right field pavilion, the first home run by a visiting player in the new Cleveland park since it was opened July 31.

Up to the 12th, Charlie Ruffing and Oral Hildebrand had been locked in a tight duel, with the Yankee right hander hard pressed to win his 18th victory of the season. Hildebrand yielded only five hits for the regulation nine innings, as against 11 off Ruffing for the same period.

Earl Averill led the Cleveland attack with four hits, including a double, while Gehrig hit two doubles and a single for the Yanks. Score:

RUSSIA REPORTS BIG NEW IRON ORE DEPOSITS

Vanadium Also Available to Soviets.

(Copyright, 1932: By the New York Times.)

MOSCOW, Sept. 12.—Discovery has just been reported of important iron deposits in western Siberia, 125 miles from the metallurgical plant at Kuznetsk—now called Stalinsk—and less than seventy miles from the railway.

It is estimated that 200,000,000 tons of the ore—about one-third of it—is near the surface and that its iron content is 40 to 60 per cent.

When this was found there also was discovered a mass of titanomagnetite, from which vanadium is extracted.

The soviet organ the Izvestia, says these discoveries change the whole metallurgical situation of the Ural region, where the transport of ore and coke has been complicated by the great distances and the inadequacy of the railroads.

Affects Fivve Year Plan.

It is not generally realized that the Ural metallurgical development formed a sort of addition or "marxian variant" to the original five year plan when the danger of war made the soviet realize that the Ukrainian metallurgical regions and the great Leningrad plants were dangerously exposed to attack whereas the new Ural developments were virtually impregnable from the geographical standpoint.

Many of the short comings and difficulties charged to the five year plan have resulted from the pressure of building new cities and factories with supplies from the barren steppes, which are ill equipped as to transportation.

The first two Stalinsk blast furnaces now are producing almost 2,000 tons of pig iron daily and others are nearing completion.

Rival Plants are Competing.

The new town of 100,000 inhabitants is three-quarters built. The other big plant at Magnitogorsk is running the one at Stalinsk a close second and the shortage difficulties are minimized by the acute rivalry of those two "giants" in Socialist competition.

The Izvestia further reports a new oil field in the eastern part of Niinovogorod province on the Ural-Asian railroad and the bringing of the biggest gusher yet struck in the Emba oil field in the steppe southwest of the Volga which was barely charted by a British concessionaire prior to the revolution, but has undergone large development in the last five years.

Who Collects the Rent?

If a mortgage is foreclosed on a small cottage that is rented, does the one holding the first mortgage [the only one] collect the rent, or just what is the court ruling in the collection of rent?—W. A. R.

At the time foreclosure proceedings are filed, the court usually appoints a receiver. He collects the rent and is responsible to the court. Neither the owner of the property nor the mortgage holder receives a portion of this money until final settlement is made. Of course, expenses are deducted. When foreclosure is inevitable, it is advisable for the owner to have possession, as possession is nine points of the law and facilitates redemption at a later date.

Regarding Steel Homes.

We plan to purchase a home during the next six months and would like some information regarding steel homes. Where can we get a catalog? Do you think they are better than brick? We inspected a steel house in Glenview and liked it very much, but the price seemed as high as a brick home. How about A. O. Smith & Co., Milwaukee?—C. V. J.

A checkup with the large companies that plan to produce metal homes shows that it is still in the experimental stage. At this writing we don't know of one firm which has published literature pertaining to this product. A brick veneer home has generally been considered a satisfactory type of construction but there is no basis for comparison at this time. You must realize that the price on metal homes will be determined by the volume of business, and until this type of construction gets under way the homes will cost the same as well constructed brick homes.

The Milwaukee company referred to is still in the experimental stage of steel home construction. We understand they have not erected a steel home for experimental purposes as yet. Steel homes will take time to develop and should progress similarly to our automobile industry.

BUSINESS CHIEFS FIGHT TO FREE U. S. RAILROADS

Would Loosen Grip of Government.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States is preparing to lock horns with the interstate commerce commission over the commission's regulation of the railroads.

A special railroad committee of the chamber of commerce yesterday in Chicago concluded a series of three conferences on the plight of the carriers, it was learned.

Members of the committee, composed of twelve bankers, big shippers and railroad presidents, have arrived at the conclusion that too much regulation by the commerce commission is a primary factor in the present financial troubles of the carriers.

Directors to Get Report.

The committee will present a set of recommendations to the board of directors of the chamber at the annual meeting of the board in Washington, D. C., on Sept. 23 and 24. Approval of the recommendations is said to be practically assured.

Thereafter it is expected that the chamber will throw the full weight of its influence into a legislative fight to withdraw from the commerce commission some of the arbitrary powers that body has wielded for the last 20 years and restore to the railway operators some of the business discretion which other industries enjoy.

"In its discussion the committee was in agreement that there is need for new transportation policies, taking into account the changed conditions surrounding railroad transportation," the members declared in a formal statement.

Freedom Urged for Roads.

"As the first step in this direction the committee is expected to recommend that proper financial stabilization of the railroads, like any other industrial operation, requires that they should have freedom of opportunity to make earnings in accordance with business conditions, reduce their fixed indebtedness and establish adequate reserves.

"It is the belief of the committee that much of the present credit difficulties of the railroads are due to excessively rigid policies of regulation. This applies both to the existing system of control over rates, earnings and financial policies, and to the elaborate regulation of details of railroad equipment and operation."

As an instance of excessive regulation, the committee declared that the carriers, facing an entire loss of credit last year, were obliged to petition the commerce commission for a rate increase to sustain their credit.

Seek Revision of Law.

It is understood that the committee will recommend revision of the transportation act to allow the operators greater latitude in making rates to permit the roads to build up reserves in good years to meet the exigencies of lean years.

The committee will recommend repeal of the recapture clause which arbitrarily limits the earnings of the carriers in good times and, in theory, compels them to turn over surplus earnings to weaker lines.

The committee will contend that any monopoly which may have justified rigid regulation in the past has in large part disappeared.

"Under such circumstances," the statement said, "the committee believes that the managements should have the fullest opportunity and responsibility for securing the greatest efficiency in operation and at the lowest practicable rates."

Members of the Committee.

The chairman of the committee is Judge F. C. Dillard of Sherman, Tex. The members include C. E. Bockus, president of the Clinchfield Coal company, New York; E. George Butler, secretary of the John C. Butler company, Savannah, Ga.; J. S. Crutchfield, president, American Fruit Growers, Pittsburgh; Pierpont V. Davis, vice president, National City company, New York, and Carl B. Dennett, president, General Capital corporation, Boston.

Other members are Thomas H. Hanrahan, president, Buffalo Freight Terminal Warehouse company, Buffalo; Dr. Emory R. Johnson, dean, Wharton School of Finance, Philadelphia; E. B. Ober, president, Motor Power Equipment company, St. Paul; W. L. Petrikin, chairman, Great Western Sugar company, Denver; H. A. Scandrett, president, Milwaukee road, Chicago; Harry A. Wheeler, president, Railroad Equipment Finance corporation, Chicago, and R. B. White, president, Central Railroad of New Jersey, New York.

U. S. HOME LOAN BANK TO OPEN IN EVANSTON

Offices for subscription of stock of the Illinois-Wisconsin regional unit of the federal home loan bank system will be opened in the Evanston Chamber of Commerce building, 510 Davis street, according to word received yesterday.

H. D. Bent, president of the Evanston chamber, has notified Washington officials that hearty coöperation will be given to help the bank system get started. Loren P. Meyers has been placed in charge of the stock subscription office, he stated.

The chambers of commerce in Springfield, Ill., and Milwaukee have also been requested to provide facilities for subscription offices in those cities.

New U. S. Tax Met by Rise of Tire Prices

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 12.—Increases, effective today, of from 11 to 15 per cent in prices of both passenger car and truck tires and of 15 per cent in tubes were reported by the leading tire manufacturers and mail order houses. New price schedules were sent out over the week-end, it is understood.

This advance places tire prices slightly above the level prevalent on June 21, besides absorbing the federal excise tax, which went into effect on that date.

Moreover, it breaks the deadlock between the manufacturers that were a unit for raising prices when the tax became effective and the large mail order firms that had bought large quantities of tires at pre-tax levels and refused to increase prices when the tax went into effect.

Early Division on Policy.

It will be recalled that when the tax was placed in operation leading tire manufacturers attempted to raise prices, but Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, whose combined tire and tube sales account for a substantial portion of the total of such products distributed at retail, and Firestone Tire and Rubber company absorbed the tax and forced the rest of the industry to do the same.

The latest step by tire manufacturers is accompanied by an announcement that the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing company has advanced tire prices 11 per cent on first, second and fourth grade tires and 14 per cent on truck and third grade tires. Tube prices will be advanced 15 per cent.

Ready to Raise Prices.

Both the mail order houses about ten days ago placed themselves in position to advance tire prices in all their stores on short notice, but took no action pending definite developments in the tire industry.

While the actual increase by the two leading mail order firms was held in abeyance, the move, it is believed, was predicated upon the fact that the enormous supply of tires and tubes bought by those two firms in June has been disposed of in the retail market, necessitating new supplies.

VAST GERMAN ELECTRIC FIRM TO CUT CAPITAL

[Copyright; 1932; By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—In connection with the presence here of Clark Minor, president of the International General Electric company, there have been rumors that reorganization of Allgemeine Elektrizitaets Gesellschaft, involving reducing of capital stock, now 185,000,000 marks [$44,030,000 at the current rate] of which the national concern holds a substantial part, is under discussion.

It was learned from the German company that neither the extent nor the date for such capital reduction had been decided on as yet.

That reorganization eventually will be necessary has been accepted as a foregone conclusion for a long time. Allgemeine Elektrizitaets stock quoted on the Berlin boerse for many months of 25 per cent of its nominal value, has advanced lately to more than 40 per cent. This would indicate that the concern does not intend to reduce its capital at a ratio of one to four, as has been rumored. The current business year ends for the company on Sept. 30. In view of the government's recently issued emergency decree for the reconstruction of German business and in consideration of the hope that there will be improvement in business, there is no way of predicting what ratio of reduction will be necessary. As the liquidity of the concern at present is satisfactory the board does not intend to press for reorganization.

HIGH PRESSURE STOCK SELLING FIRMS ACTIVE

The bucketeering stock brokers and their near relatives, the high pressure security distributors who use the long distance telephone, are doing a land office business again, thanks to the reawakened public interest in the stock market.

There are at least three high pressure "telephone" firms located in one loop office building which is within shouting distance of the stock exchange and the Board of Trade.

The formula is the same. Customers are "built up" for a period of 60 days or so, during which they receive without cost the market reviews of the distributing house. These reviews, or "market analyses," are carefully prepared by experienced market writers. They furnish the "inside" on current developments in the security markets. A pretence of scrupulous "disinterestedness" is maintained by these organs. Frequently the nefarious plots of pool operators are exposed but outright tips are seldom furnished in the printed matter.

When the house feels that the proper confidence has been instilled in the customer a salesman gets busy on the telephone. A customer is sold a medium or high grade listed security. Delivery is not made unless the customers insist on it. In a few days if the customer has a small profit on his purchase the salesman again calls him to recommend that he shift into another stock—the issue which is being sponsored by the firm. If the sponsored issue is a listed stock it is usually a low priced inactive share.

Convinced by his modest profit of the financial acumen of the firm's officials the customer usually follows the salesman's advice. As yet he has seen no stock certificates but he has a profit even if it is only on paper. He has bought on margin and is satisfied to watch his stock through the market quotations.

Dog-and-Cat common may go up a bit or rule steady but soon it takes a sudden dip under the price which the customer has paid. The salesman calls to say that he is sorry but he has had to sell out the account because the margin became impaired by the decline in the market. Mr. Customer is out the money he advanced to buy on margin—the firm is sorry.

The formula varies but the result is invariably the same.

The Ladies Go in for Briars.

Tobacco companies have been offsetting the ravages of the depression by building up new sales fields. Some light on this is shed by a Lake Forest druggist who says that he sells more cigarets to women than to men. But that's only a beginning. The same druggist proudly displays a carton of pipes, labeled "Special for Afternoon Teas." "This is the third lot," he says. The ladies are going in for briars.

Third Quarter Earnings.

It is generally agreed among brokers and traders that the boom in stock prices during the last 60 days has not been based on the prospect of favorable third quarter earnings reports. Little of a bullish nature is expected in those statement. Results are expected to make poor comparisons with last year. Those comparisons by themselves, however, should not be a particularly adverse market factor because the trading community is already reconciled to the facts.

NEW YORK SEEKS $75,000,000 LOAN FOR ITS VEHICLE TUNNEL

New York, Sept. 12.—[Special.]—A special committee representing the port of New York authority will confer in Washington tomorrow with officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation on details of a proposed loan of $75,000,000 with which the port authority hopes to start actual construction of the new Hudson river vehicular tunnel between 38th street, Manhattan, and Weehawken, N. J.

Filing of a formal application for the loan now rests only upon determination of a rate of interest suitable to the port authority and certain technical construction and financing details desired by the corporation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 12.—Heavy selling overtook the stock market today. Leading issues were forced down 2 to 6 points and the losses in some of the more impressionable specialties and preferreds ran as high as 10 or 11 points. Trading was at a fast clip for most of the five hours, the total running in excess of 1,000,000 shares.

It was the worst reaction since the advance got under way back during the second week of July.

Call Market Pace Too Fast.

The news offered nothing to account for the sudden turnabout. Brokers were of the opinion that the decline was due almost wholly to technical reasons. Commentators have been warning the public for two weeks or more that the recovery had outrun business improvement too far to be safe. Brokerage house letters have reiterated that advice. In spite of the warnings, however, professional speculators kept hurling prices up to new and freshly new heights almost daily up to Thursday of last week when announcement of the "bearish" government cotton estimate put something of a damper to their enthusiasm. The three last trading days of the week showed declining tendencies in the list and this morning found the uncertainty giving way to frank weakness.

Weakness in wheat and cotton, the grain dropping 2 cents a bushel and cotton $2.50 a bale and fresh reaction in the bond market sped the selling movement as the session clicked ahead. Up to the last few minutes when prices firmed slightly above their lows, the pressure was unrelenting.

Rail Stocks Hard Hit.

Railroad stocks were the first to feel the effects of large selling and were, as a group, the worst sufferers. Acute weakness in railroad bonds—featured by a drop in Nickel Plate 6s—was a special worry of the division. Issues which had scored the heaviest gains in the long runup led the retreat and losses of 2 to 7 points were the rule with Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, New York Central, Reading, Southern Pacific, and Norfolk and Western showing the way down. In the late trading a bid and asked quotation of 100 at 104 was printed on the tape for Norfolk and Western against a previous closing price of 109½.

Public utilities had a bad day, with such issues as Consolidated Gas, North American, Brooklyn Union Gas, Public Service and Standard Gas giving up 2 to more than 4 points. Peoples Gas kept in the background and eased only a point on a couple of sales.

The motors ran backwards after their spurt during the early part of last week. Copper shares turned down on the belief that they had run too far ahead of their earnings.

Preferred Shares Decline.

A long list of preferreds went downward, among them those of American and Foreign Power, Spaulding Brothers, Mullins Manufacturing, Wesson, and Goodyear firsts. Losses of 6, 8 and 11 points told the tale of suffering here.

Case Threshing Machine surrendered 4½ points of the gains it ran up when things were coming its way and International Harvester trailed it down with a loss almost as great.

All the pivotals were lower. United States Steel closed at 45⅝, off 2¾ points.

O. K.'S U. S. LOAN TO CUT DISTANCE TO PACIFIC COAST

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today authorized a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $3,850,000 to the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad to construct the Dotsero cutoff to reduce the distance between Denver and the Pacific coast by 174 miles.

At the same time the commission gave its approval to an agreement between minority stock holders of the Denver and Salt Lake Railway company and the Denver and Rio Grande by which the time for purchase of their stock by the Rio Grande is extended until Dec. 31, 1934.

The Rio Grande a year ago was authorized by the commission to acquire the Denver and Salt Lake railway, which runs from Denver through the Moffat tunnel to Craig, Colo. One condition of the authorization was that the Dotsero cutoff be constructed and that minority stock be purchased at $155 per share. Due to business condition, the Rio Grande could not borrow money to construct the 40 miles of track and buy the stock.

China's Finance Minister Denies Rumors of Default

NANKING, China, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Finance Minister T. V. Soong today denied a report that China had informed the American, British and French governments of inability to meet obligations maturing this month. He asserted a default on the September payments had not even been considered. He added that chief inspectors of the salt revenue department had been instructed to pay during September the usual installments and interest on outstanding loans.

How Dairy Groups Invoke Laws Against Oleo Makers

BY SCRUTATOR.

A week or so ago this column pointed out some of the ways in which different states restrict interstate commerce, in contravention of the federal constitution, which provides for free trade between states. Now comes a complaint from the Institute of Margarine Manufacturers that state regulations, superimposed on federal regulations, have imposed undue handicaps on that industry.

"Many of the dairy states have for years been trying to keep oleomargarine from being sold in such states," Secretary Abbott writes. "The methods they have employed to this end have been to put prohibitive taxes on dealers and on the product itself, and to prohibit the use of color and milk in the manufacture of the product.

Stores of Rivalry.

"In 1884 and 1885 Missouri, New York, Maine, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin enacted laws prohibiting the manufacture and sale of margarine. New Hampshire, Vermont, and South Dakota passed laws requiring it to be colored pink. These radical measures were either held to be unconstitutional and void or lapsed for other reasons.

"Oregon and Washington enacted laws in 1923 prohibiting the use of vegetable oils in making margarine. These laws were killed by a referendum vote of the people in 1924. California enacted a law in 1925 taxing margarine 2 cents a pound. It was killed by a referendum vote in 1926 Wisconsin enacted a law in 1925 prohibiting the use of milk in making margarine. The state Supreme court in 1926 declared it unconstitutional and void.

Congress Adds to Burdens.

"Congress enacted a law in 1931 taxing all yellow margarine 10 cents a pound. This tax automatically prohibits the use of our valuable domestic yellow beef fat, cotton oil, peanut oil, soy bean oil, June butter, or any other yellow fats and oils in the manufacture of the product.

"One hundred and thirty-six bills were introduced in the legislatures of some 30 states in the early part of 1931 avowedly to raise the price of butter by driving margarine out of the market. These bills were all of the same general form and proposed to put an excise tax of from 5 to 20 cents a pound on the product or to prohibit its use in state institutions or to impose prohibitive license fees on dealers in it or to set up all of these trade barriers to traffic in the product. Some of these bills were enacted into law; most of them were killed.

"At the present time margarine is taxed 5 cents a pound in Iowa, Utah, and Idaho; 6 cents in Wisconsin, 15 cents in Washington, 10 cents in Kentucky, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, and Tennessee; 15 cents in Colorado, 'except margarine that contains 45 per cent or more of animal fats, not including fish oil or fish fat'; 15 cents in Nebraska, 'except margarine containing more than 50 per cent of animal fats produced in the United States and containing no imported oils or fats'; and 10 cents in Wyoming if it 'contains less than 20 per cent of any animal fat.'

Further Troubles Faced.

"The use of margarine is partially or wholly prohibited in all or some of the state institutions of California, Connecticut, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Washington, and Wisconsin. Twenty states require certain high license fees to be paid by those who make and sell margarine. Similar license fees ranging from $1 to $50 a year are required of boarding houses, hotels, and restaurants that use or serve margarine."

NATIONAL TAX GROUP TALKS ABOUT REVENUE

Columbus, O., Sept. 12.—(AP)—How to cope with increasing tax delinquencies, how best to curtail governmental expenditures and to develop new sources of revenue were among the subjects for the National Tax association convention here tonight.

Harold M. Groves of the Wisconsin tax commission declared that for the last two years relief has followed two main lines, "that of reducing governmental expenditures and that of shifting the burden from general property to other sources of revenue."

"There is a great deal to be said," he added, "for stable government expenditures during hard times Such a policy maintains the existing number of governmental employes and maintains their purchasing power, but during the last two years we have been confronted by a condition and not theory."

GREATEST CORN CROP IN 7 YEARS CHEERS MIDWEST

Frost Danger Is Nearly Past, Experts Say.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The corn belt's largest corn crop since 1925, ten days ahead of its normal maturing date, will be past danger from early frosts before the end of this week, it was reported yesterday by veteran crop observers.

Following several years of corn crops that even with subnormal production brought decreasing prices, farmers of Iowa and Illinois this season are expecting larger yields per acre to make up partially for prices ranging between 22 and 50 cents a bushel. Country cash prices are varying between 20 and 25 cents, while cattle and hog feeders in many localities are realizing as high as 45 to 50 cents when their corn is marketed "on the hoof."

Rains an Important Factor.

Persistent rains in recent weeks in Iowa and parts of Illinois have brought about an unusual situation in the corn crop, it was pointed out by Nat C. Murray, veteran crop statistician. Iowa, he said, will have the largest corn crop on record, nearly a half billion bushels.

"It is singular that the greatest yield is in the regions where the crop is most important," Mr. Murray said. "Iowa and Illinois, the heart of the corn belt, have bumper crops. Yet extending in any direction from these states the crops become poorer.

"In view of the fact that the south and east have both poor corn and hay crops, and that the corn crops are light in the northwest and southwest, there will be an unusually large merchandising of the crop. Dairy herds and other live stock at distant points will bring a demand for the corn belt's production, which should be reflected in rail and truck shipments during the fall and winter."

Maturing Conditions Favorable.

Since the government estimated the entire crop as of Sept. 1 at 2,854,000,000 bushels, it was pointed out, maturing conditions have been favorable for boosting these figures. These conditions are said to have more than offset earlier damage from insect pests and local droughts.

The oat, soy bean, cowpea, cotton, potato, sweet potato and garden crops in Illinois are above average at this time, said A. J. Surratt, state and federal crop statistician, in his report from Springfield last night. There are indications of a reduction of about 5 per cent in winter wheat plantings, the apple crop is smaller than usual and the peach and pear crops approach total failure in commercial areas.

"The present prospect is for a heavy increase in cattle feeding, especially on a contract basis, in Illinois," Surratt said.

'AID YOURSELF' CALLED CURE OF CORPORATIONS

Banker Cites Some Slump Panaceas.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Along with the gradual improvement of prices and sentiment during the last three months there has come a dawning realization that business recovery will not come as the result of political panaceas, but gradually will be brought about as the sum total of the efforts of individuals and corporations.

After three years of looking for the corner and not doing much about it people all over the country are beginning to discard legislative nostrums and get down to the job of putting their own houses in order.

Still Field for Magic.

As long as business men still dreamed of past prosperity and failed to adjust prices and overhead to the present, there was fertile ground for such economic absurdities as the Goldsborough bill, which sought to order the federal reserve board and the secretary of the treasury to bring back the price levels of 1926.

There was much talk of going of the gold standard and there was—as in all previous depressions—agitation for the remonetization of silver. The whole nation was jittery. Everybody was hoping that some grand plan could be devised to put the country on the way back to prosperity, and was scared of every plan proposed.

"No plan would accomplish what corporations and individuals, working with enlightened selfishness, will accomplish," is the way one banker put it.

Gold Standard Secure.

"Now that agitation for going off the gold standard is a dead issue and various plans to depreciate money, such as that contained in the Goldsborough bill, have been dropped, the nation has recovered from its fright and each fellow is starting to clear away the débris on his own lot.

"The change in the trend of prices, after three years of almost steady decline, has put new heart into business men, big and little. Prices needn't shoot upward. If they will only stop declining, a lot of corporations can operate in the black by careful management and judicious pruning of expenses.

"We're beginning to find the way out as a nation, because individuals are beginning to solve their own problems instead of waiting for some legislatve 'open sesame.'

"The experience of other nations has taught us that going off the gold standard is merely confiscation of wealth and wages and that inflation

New York, Sept. 12.—Speculative bonds dipped sharply today in common with the market for stocks and most commodities.

Treasury issues sold off slightly after a runup Friday and Saturday following the success of the latest government short term security offering. Today's general trend elsewhere was also lower.

A severe break in Nickel Plate 6s, due Oct. 1 next, featured the market and reflected disappointment over the terms authorized Saturday by the interstate commerce commission for a loan to the road from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Nickel Plate 6s opened at 49, against Saturday's closing at 58. Later losses were as much as 16 points.

The loan approval provided that only $5,000,000 out of an authorized $6,800,008 be devoted to payment of the 6 per cent note maturity and that the remaining $15,000,000 of maturing notes be refunded by the issue of new notes due in not less than three years.

Expected Better Terms.

Wall street generally had been led to expect more favorable treatment for holders of the maturing notes by the road's application for a loan to pay one-half of the maturity in cash, which many observers believed would be granted.

The price action of Nickel Plate, together with the implication of a less liberal loan policy on the part of the finance corporation, gave the signal for a general decline ranging up to 4 points in the speculative rail bond group.

Missouri Pacific bonds declined from one to four points and materially lower prices were commanded by Baltimore and Ohio, Milwaukee, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern and Southern Pacific issues.

Among the public utilities weakness was most pronounced in International Telephone bonds. That was not surprising in view of the fact that they were selling at two to three times their low prices of the year. Bonds of American and foreign power were another weak spot.

Some Other Bonds Lower.

Miscellaneous industrial bonds moved lower, with principal losses occurring in Goodyear 5s, Pan-American Petroleum 6s, and others.

Meanwhile high grade bonds were maintaining a fairly steady market, some of them, in fact, making slight improvement on a few transactions. The financial community's valuation of news from Germay was translated into lower prices for Reich 5½s and 7s, but a number of German city and corporate issues held their ground or even showed some improvement.

ABITIBI POWER CO. TO BE REVAMPED IN RECEIVERSHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 12.—Appointment of a receiver last week for Abitibi Power and Paper company, Ltd., is in line with the plans of the bondholders' protective committee formed in June, according to a statement issued yesterday by the committee's chairman, Joseph P. Ripley, vice president of the National City company.

The committee, formed in the interests of the holders of the company's first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due 1953, retained Price, Waterhouse & Co. to report on the financial condition of the company, and also engaged George F. Hardy, consulting engineer.

"Abitibi is one of the outstanding units in an industry which is basically sound but which is suffering from over expansion and the severe business depression," Mr. Ripley said. "This is based upon the study which the committee has made of the company and of the industry. A reorganization of Abitibi's corporate structure probably will be required, but in any reorganization the first mortgage bondholders should occupy a strong legal position."

MORE BUTTER, LESS EGGS IN STORAGE NOW

Butter supplies on hand Sept. 1 totalled 107,431,000 lbs, according to the monthly estimate issued Monday afternoon by the United States department of agriculture. While this supply was 2,735,000 lbs heavier than last year, it is necessary to go back to 1923 to find a total less than the September holdings of last year and this year. The total was 35,800,000 lbs less than the September five-year average.

There were 5,955,000 cases of eggs in storage on the first day of the month, 3,061,000 cases less than the year ago holdings and 3,551,000 cases less than the average for that date. This is the smallest total for Sept. 1 since 1916.

The rebuilding process will not be without casualties. As a corporation effects its own salvation by reducing overhead, improving its sales methods and writing off the results of past mistakes some suffering is inevitable. But at least the course is charted and the destination is known.

Each Case Is Different.

No two cases are alike. Some of the joint stock land banks have been saving their skins by buying in their own bonds at low prices to offset their losses on farm mortgages. That has kept some money from going back into farm mortgages, but it has kept some important joint stock land banks out of receivership and when they have strengthened their condition sufficiently they will again be in a position to extend credit to farmers. They are at least avoiding the tremendous waste of receivership.

In real estate as the mopping up gets under way the number of foreclosures will mount rapidly. Superficially, increases in foreclosures would indicate greater distress, but that is not the case.

A very great number of properties have been on the edge of foreclosure for a year or more, the owners long since having defaulted on the mortgages. The actual putting through foreclosure, however, was delayed because that action would have been futile at a time when even the most conservative loans went begging. Now that credit is beginning to be made available for sound real estate loans properties are being put through foreclosure.
